'SECRET' START - NOT SO SECRET

Cluster of newspaper, newsreel and TV photographers waded in ankle deep to take final pictures seconds before start of swim, which was witnessed by less than 100 spectators. Start was deliberately planned to be

15-Mile Wind, Chop Hampering 2nd Try

By DENNY BOYD
Times Staff Reporter

Marilyn Bell at 1 p.m. today was swimming against wind and wave in what threatened to any moment to become a "trial swim" as adverse weather conditions whipped Juan de Fuca strait into a froth of whitecaps.

She took off from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at 9.30 a.m. in calm inshore water, but in the face of ominous weather forecasts.

At the outset her coach, Gus Ryder, said she would be taken from the water unless conditions smoothed out, and the swim would be termed a "practice."

Marilyn appeared in better condition, mentally and physically, than on her first attempt, which she later termed "just not one of my days."

She swam strongly, her through the rolling troughs and over the spindrift crests of waves from a foot to 18 inches deep.

The calm inshore water was soon replaced by a light chop, which increased in intensity.

FAIR TRADE?

MONTREAL (CP) — A man telephoned The Canadian Press Montreal bureau today and proposed:

"If you'll give me some information I'll give you some in return."

"Shoot."

"Has Marilyn Bell started her swim yet?"

"Yes."

"Thanks. Alouettes will beat Argos Saturday. Good bye."

mills was whipped out parallel to the ground.

Winds at noon were south-west 15, gusting to 20, according to the official observatory report, famed flutter kick forcing her

SMILING, CHEERFUL

Smiling, cheerful Marilyn Bell applied usual light coating of vaseline before entering water at 9.30 a.m. from Ediz Hook. Gus Ryder lent steady hand as personnel from U.S. Coast Guard station watched.

NICOSIA (UP) — The EOKA extremist organization rejected Britain's surrender offer today.

The rejection was published in the form of leaflets circulated in Nicosia and Limassol.

Atomic Industry Starts in Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The start of a new atomic industry for Canada was foreseen here today in an announcement that a private company will manufacture uranium fuel rods for experimental reactors at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project.

Name Ex-Liberal Cabinet Minister

VANCOUVER (CP) — W. J. Asseltine, provincial Liberal minister of mines, trade and industry from 1937 to 1941, has been named Social Credit candidate for Atlin in the September 19 provincial election. It was learned here. He has been a Social Credit party member for some time.

The riding, in the far northwest corner of the province, was represented in the last legislature by Frank Calder, CCF.

Beaten, Robbed in Park

VANCOUVER (CP) — Thomas Lawrence Kennedy of Edmonton was found in Stanley Park by police Wednesday, beaten and robbed of $1,300 in travellers' cheques and cash. He is in hospital.

HIT 'CHIANG' PLANE, SAYS PEIPING

Lost U.S. Plane Target of Red Fire?

TOKYO (AP) — Red China said one of its planes damaged a "Chiang Kai-shek" aircraft early today over islands southeast of Shanghai—the area where a U.S. navy patrol plane with a crew of 16 was believed shot down.

In Washington the United States state department said it is asking Britain to find out whether Red China has any information on the fate of the missing U.S. plane.

Britain has diplomatic relations with Red China; the United States does not.

NAVY MEN RECALLED

U.S. naval authorities in Hong Kong tonight broadcast urgent recall messages to all officers and men of four American destroyers in port. They were told to return immediately to their ships in connection with the missing plane.

A Peiping broadcast, without identifying the plane beyond the reference to the Chinese Nationalist leader, said it had intruded over Chinese islands and made off after the encounter toward the southeast—this direction of Formosa.

"U.S. ships and planes were searching for the naval patrol plane, believed downed by Communist Chinese aircraft 32 miles off Wenchow, China. Nightfall came without any announcement word of the results.

A last brief radio message from the plane, a four-engine Mercator, reported it was "under attack by aircraft" at 1.25 a.m. Wednesday.

Vice-Admiral Stuart Ingersoll, chief of the U.S. Formosa defence command, said the Mercator "is assumed to have been shot down by the attacking aircraft."

A spokesman for the Far East naval forces said he could give no information on the nationality, type or number of the attacking aircraft. The Nationalist Chinese air force said none of its planes was in the area at the time.

It was the first attack on an American plane in the Formosa area since Jan. 18, 1953. On that date a navy Neptune was downed by Red gunfire off Swatow and 11 men were lost.

The U.S. navy spokesman insisted that the Mercator was over neutral waters of the east China Sea at the time the attack was reported.

"It was then operating 82 miles off Chinese Communist territory," he said, "160 miles north of Formosa."

Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., crown company which operates the atomic plant, said a contract for production of fuel rods has been awarded to AMF Atomics (Canada) Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of the American Machine and Foundry Organization.

The announcement said the contract has been awarded "as part of AECL's policy of providing for the greatest possible participation of private industry in the Canadian atomic energy program."

AMF Atomics Ltd. has agreed to set up a plant at Port Hope, Ont., and sell the rods at cost to the crown company.

It is understood AMF Atomics felt that by offering to produce rods at cost it would be placing itself in a position to establish a Canadian industry which could later supply other purchasers in Canada and sell on world markets.

Value of the contract was not disclosed.

Fuel rods for research reactors are made by rolling uranium metal into 10-foot cylinders. The uranium oxide to be used in the power plant probably will be in the form of compressed pellets.

Big Plant for Regina

REGINA (CP) — A group of Canadian business men including N. N. Turvey of Vancouver, have formed the Prairie Pipe Manufacturing Company which will build a $3,000,000 steel pipe plant at Regina. It was announced today. Construction will start next month on a site five miles north of the city.

CCF Pinpoints Election Program For B.C. Forests, Farms, Housing

VANCOUVER — An 11-point platform keyed to public ownership, including full public management of timberlands, was unveiled by CCF leader Robert M. Strachan Wednesday night.

The Opposition leader is scheduled to sketch his party's program when he appears on CBU-TV tonight at 7.30.

The CCF platform calls for public power, government assistance for low-income housing, public distribution of natural gas and public car insurance.

"The sales tax is not one of the major items" in the Sept. 19 election," Mr. Strachan said in an address at a Vancouver Burrard riding nomination convention, "because any political party must reduce the sales tax."

The Liberal party has announced one of its election planks is a promise to reduce to 4 per cent the province's 5 per cent sales tax.

Ryder Cautious on Progress

To Capt. Gavin, Gus passed this message: "Well just see how things are. If the wind is too strong and the strait acts up, I will just tell Marilyn to come out. There is no use her going on if conditions aren't good."

This was shortly before 10.30 a.m. At 1 p.m., Marilyn was still plugging along, despite conditions which were anything but perfect.

The ebb tide on which she took to the water took her in a westerly direction; her swimming carried her north. At 11.40 a.m. Capt. Gavin said he wasn't satisfied with her position.

"I had hoped she would be opposite Race Rocks at 1 p.m. but she won't make it," he said. "I'm not alarmed but she'll have to speed up."

Word was passed to the coach boat to have Marilyn step up the pace. Shortly before, Ryder had said "she's looking better

PRAYER FOR TODAY

Help us to learn to use our time wisely. Help us to remember that lost time can never be recovered. Through Jesus Christ, Amen.

3-WEEK BRINKS TRIAL REJECTS 1,146TH JUROR

BOSTON (UP) — The Brink's trial expected to seat its first juror today despite defence manoeuvres which challenged 262 veniremen of 1,146 so far rejected by the court.

The defence exhausted its remaining challenges Wednesday in the nearly three-week-old trial of eight men accused of robbing Brink's of $1,219,000.

Defence challenges wrecked court efforts to speed up trial. More than half of Suffolk county's venire list was used up during the steady fire of rejections.

Tory, 2 Papers Called to Court

Sommers' Claim of 'Contempt' To Be Heard Monday By Judge

VANCOUVER (CP) — Counsel for a former British Columbia cabinet minister will try to prove in Supreme Court Monday that two Vancouver newspapers and the B.C. Progressive Conservative party leader have been in contempt of court through election campaign statements.

Counsel for R. E. Sommers—lands and forests minister in the Social Credit government who resigned after launching a slander suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy—was granted leave to apply for writs of attachment for committal of the Vancouver Sun, Vancouver Herald, and PC leader Deane Finlayson.

The writs are legally defined as court orders commanding the sheriff to bring before it a person who allegedly has been guilty of contempt.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson will be asked to rule that an election campaign speech made by Mr. Finlayson last Monday and reports of that speech in the newspapers were prejudicial to the outcome of Mr. Sommers' pending slander action.

Mr. Finlayson's speech, in which he read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence in the slander action, was the start of his campaigning for the Sept. 19 provincial general election, called 10 days ago by Social Credit Premier Bennett.

NAME INDIVIDUALS
Individuals named in the contempt actions against the two newspapers are Donald C. Cromie, president and publisher of The Sun; Frank Walden, Sun staff reporter; and Gerald M. Brown, publisher and editor-in-chief of The Herald.

Mr. Sommers' counsel will ask for costs of the actions.

The Province, Vancouver's third newspaper, is not involved in this latest development of the election campaign and of the Sommers-Sturdy slander suit. Mr.

CROMIE MAKES STATEMENT

VANCOUVER (CP) — Donald Cromie, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, said today The Sun published the statement of defence in the Sommers-Sturdy libel case because it felt "Our duty lay in treating the case as news."

CCF CHALLENGE

Why Hide RCMP File On Sommers?

VANCOUVER (CP) — Attorney-General R. W. Bonner was challenged Wednesday night to publicize before election day what the RCMP found about charges against former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers.

CCF leader Robert Strachan called on Mr. Bonner "to stand up and speak for the people of British Columbia" by making public the report.

His reference was to a report of Inspector Butler of the RCMP, recently superannuated. The inspector was assigned Feb. 9 by Mr. Bonner to investigate the photostatic documents of lawyer David Sturdy, on which accusations against the ex-minister have been based.

Mr. Strachan was addressing a CCF Burrard nominating convention here.

"This is a government which has promised to keep the people of British Columbia informed, and it's hiding behind a civil case."

"If the report which the RCMP made to Mr. Bonner indicates that Mr. Sommers is guilty, then it is no longer a civil case, it is a criminal case. The attorney-general would have no alternative but to act on it."

"If there is nothing in the RCMP report which indicates Mr. Sommers, then it is Mr. Bonner's duty to tell that to the people of British Columbia."

Egypt for the Indian plan which would recognize Egypt's right to own and control the canal but would set up an international body with advisory capacities only.

They said there was no point in considering the Indian plan because only four nations backed it.

EGYPT WARNED

Even as the conference adjourned, Britain was pressing its mid-Eastern military build-up. It also issued a stern warning to Egypt not to hold up British and French shipping in the strategic waterway.

In New York, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld disclosed he had cancelled a projected visit to Latin America because of the "present situation—the Middle East Suez and the situation generally."

OIL THREAT

In Paris the Egyptian embassy announced that Saudi Arabia had warned the United States that millions of dollars of U.S. oil installations would "go up in smoke" if the West tries to impose its Suez decision on Egypt by force.

London afternoon newspapers reported in banner headlines the Eden cabinet's determination to act if there's any slowdown in Anglo-French shipping in the Suez.

The British foreign office spokesman said the government had received cable reports of the Egyptian threat to delay British and French ships if western pilots quit.

He said this would be "a very grave matter" and "a serious discrimination against British shipping."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar reported that Russia has offered to supply Soviet pilots for the canal should some 300 British and French pilots resign.

CRACK UNITS LEAVE

Britain's fully mechanized Lifeguards, the senior regiment in the British Army, moved from its barracks at Windsor for a secret Mediterranean destination.

Hundreds of tanks, armored cars and trucks—also painted a yellowish-beige for desert warfare—continued to pour into the port of Plymouth where they have been arriving for several days.

Tomorrow's sermon from Cairo's Al Azhar mosque was published today. It will be broadcast to Moslems worldwide urging Arabs to take up arms and enlist for military training.

The sermon cites verses from the Koran and Mohammed's example for "general mobilization and national struggle."

If the Moslems were ever to launch a Jihad, or holy war, against the western powers it would be proclaimed at Al Azhar mosque. One was proclaimed during the 1948 war against Israel.

Announcement of the Friday sermon followed long conversations between Nasser and his military commanders.

At the same time, Kamal Ramzy Stino, Egyptian minister of supply, announced that Egypt had sufficient supplies and food stocks for six months. The supply committee yesterday reviewed the country's food position if faced by western blockade.

CCF LEGAL FOG REPLACES REAL THING

Lawsuits Over Doria-Stockholm Collision Could Run for Years

By GEORGE MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Legal fog is likely to hang over the Andrea Doria-Stockholm collision for some time, years perhaps, marine law experts say.

There is no international machinery to settle legal questions or to determine guilt in collisions between ships of different nationalities on the high seas.

Many admiralty lawyers, however, take the view that the legal jigsaw puzzle was fitted together when the Italian line and Swedish American line, the ship operators involved, took their dispute into federal court at New York.

Some believe that once the case went before an American court, the chances lessened that Swedish or Italian courts would ever be called upon to consider it.

The American courts are sitting in judgment because American interests claimed damage to persons and cargoes, and both steamship companies have assets in the U.S.

HOW BINDING? But some experts ask: "How binding will be the limits of liability set by an American court on a Swedish or Italian tribunal?"

These limits are bound, according to U.S. statute, to the present $3,021,655 value of the surviving Stockholm, or in the case of the sunken Andrea Doria to $55 a gross ton or about $1,900,000 plus cargo value.

Ordinarily the ocean tragedy could not be investigated officially by U.S. authorities. The U.S. Coast Guard can only sift for evidence of error arising out of the operation of ships under the U.S. flag or in American territorial waters.

Rules exist to promote safety at sea—the 1948 international convention for safety at sea. However, international authority to guarantee compliance from ships operated on the high seas is non-existent.

There are those who want the rule enforced by an international agency such as the World Court or the United Nations.

OPPOSES IDEA But maritime interests in many places favor enforcement as now—on a purely national basis.

The rules are there. Ships should keep to their side of the sea lanes. They should operate at a safe, moderate speed in low visibility areas.

Nonetheless, ship collisions are not rare. The coast guard reported that in 1955 there were 244 collisions, involving 580 vessels, and that damage in each instance ran over $1,500.

Not unlike motorists involved in a highway collision, shipowners generally tend to claim it was "the other guy's fault" and that he should be made to pay damages for whatever harm is done.

In the present instance, the Swedish American line started the legal action by seeking exoneration for the Stockholm in federal court. At the same time the company asked that its liability be limited to the value of the ship, now undergoing a $995,000 repair job at a Brooklyn shipyard.

In turn, the Italian line has asked the court to declare the Andrea Doria blameless. It has filed a $25,000,000 claim for the sunken ship. It also has sought an unstated sum as "indemnity or contribution" from the Swedish line for all sums which the Italian line may be called upon to pay for deaths, injuries and losses arising from the disaster.

The Italian line likewise has sought to have the court limit its liability in suits brought against the line to $400,000.

A number of claims running into the tens of millions have been filed since the Andrea Doria went to her Atlantic grave south of Nantucket on July 26, about 11 hours after colliding with the Stockholm. About fifty persons

... CONTEMPT

Sommers launched that court proceeding following statements made by the Vancouver lawyer last December, before the Sloan forestry commission, relating to Mr. Sommers' conduct as lands and forests minister.

LEGAL WARNING

Before Mr. Finlayson's Monday night speech, Alfred Bull, one of the former minister's legal advisers, had told the Progressive Conservative leader he would take contempt-of-court action if Mr. Finlayson made any reference to details involved in the slander suit.

However, Mr. Finlayson in his speech read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence. The Vancouver Herald and The Sun published quotations from the statement of defence next day. The Province carried lengthy excerpts from Mr. Finlayson's speech but did not mention the specific charges included in the statement.

The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative, also did not quote from the statement of defence. Subsequently it sought copies of both the statement of defence and the statement of claim filed earlier by Mr. Sommers in launching his slander action. Court officials said the statements were not available for publication at this time. Counsel for Mr. Sommers declined to permit publication of the statement of claim.

Mr. Sommers, nominated this week as Social Credit candidate to seek re-election in Rossland-Trail constituency, resigned his cabinet portfolio—but not his legislative seat—last Feb. 27.

He charged early this year that he was the victim of a conspiracy by a section of the forest industry and the Liberal party in British Columbia.

(Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for Mr. Sommers, was quoted in papers this morning as saying that further applications may be made in connection with the contempt writs. "We have decided to leave the Victoria Daily Times for the moment," Mr. Bull was quoted as saying. The Times published the report of Mr. Finlayson's speech.)

filed on behalf of 78 shippers, consignees and underwriters. Later, Judge Walsh named four well-known lawyers to serve as unpaid special masters to take a mass of pre-trial evidence beginning Sept. 10. The thousands of pages of testimony given by scores of witnesses before the special masters eventually will be used by Judge Walsh to fix blame for the accident.

Eisenhower and Nixon

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, AT its San Francisco convention, showed itself completely confident of victory, as the Democratic Party certainly is not. But that confidence is based on the personality of a single man.

So sure are the Republicans of Mr. Eisenhower's personal vote that they did not hesitate to renominate Mr. Nixon though knowing him to be a political liability. The President's coat tails, as the saying goes, should be long enough to carry Mr. Nixon but perhaps not to carry a Republican majority in the Congress.

The Republican convention applauded the party's record and approved a platform but its only real purpose was to make finally sure that Mr. Eisenhower ran again. Without him the party is two warring segments, almost certainly doomed to defeat. With him its unity may be artificial but its victory—provided his health remains sound—seems as sure as anything can be in politics. The President's health, indeed, was the only shadow over San Francisco and, as Mr. Stevenson has said with his usual chivalry, everyone hopes that the shadow has finally passed.

The Eisenhower of 1956 is not the Eisenhower of 1952. He has learned and unlearned much in that time. The professional soldier and amateur politician who beat the late Senator Taft for the nomination four years ago is now a professional politician and knows that politics is the most difficult of all professions. To lead an army, even the combined armies of the western world, is a simple business beside the leadership of a democracy.

Things have not turned out exactly as Mr. Eisenhower hoped in his days of political innocence. He has succeeded in many aspects of government. He has not succeeded yet in his original purpose of rebuilding the Republican Party and converting its Old Guard. He came to the San Francisco convention unchallenged as a man but his philosophy is still challenged within the party and the policies that he has vainly recommended to the Congress have been obstructed for the most part by his followers, not by the Democrats.

The two recent conventions confirm the thesis of a political historian writing in The New York Times—that the United States, ostensibly governed by a two-party system, actually maintains four parties.

The Democrats are divided between the New Dealers, heirs to Roosevelt, and the conservatives, mainly from the solid South, who are more conservative than the Eisenhower Republicans.

Both party leaders will gloss over these divisions in the campaign now beginning but they will remain and re-appear in the New Congress. In theory it will be dominated by the Republican or the Democratic Party; actually by an inter-party coalition as it has been since Roosevelt erected his odd but successful coalition of liberals and conservatives.

Mr. Eisenhower will campaign for a Republican Congress—but if he succeeded he might well find that it was harder to work with than the present Democratic Congress. For by nature he is closer to the New Deal than to the Old Guard.

The personalities and the policies of the election are now settled, so far as conventions can settle them. In practical politics the personalities will be dominant.

This is to be primarily a contest between a popular President and a political philosopher. The President must carry his party to victory almost single-handed for it could not hope to win either the presidency or the Congress without him. Mr. Stevenson, on the other hand, has behind him a party which, for twenty years, represented a majority of the nation and was defeated only by Mr. Eisenhower's intervention.

The rival policies of the election are customarily vague; indeed, much more vague than usual. No clear-cut issue has emerged between the parties, no obvious alternatives as in the time of Roosevelt.

The Republicans will find it difficult to convince the people that everything is well in the nation; the Democrats to convince them that the nation is going to the dogs.

As usual the nation stands somewhere between those extremes and the President is probably unbeatable, even after two grave illnesses, because he also stands in that same position and reflects pretty accurately the nation's collective mind.

Self-Denying Ordinance

MR. BENNETT SAYS HE HAS little time for election politics. He intends to make few speeches and will remain in Victoria to conduct the public business. A laudable decision but somewhat late.

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Bennett found time to take his entire cabinet, except Mr. Chetwynd, to the Saskatchewan and leave British Columbia with a one-man government in Victoria. Surely the people of this province are as much entitled as the people of Saskatchewan to hear the views of their premier.

But we may be sure that Mr. Bennett's self-denying ordinance will not be pushed too far. He may make few political speeches from the platform but he will make them several times a week at his press conferences.

For the last six months he has greeted newspaper correspondents with little but Social Credit propaganda and party advertisement. The newspapers have published these endless campaign documents not because they were necessarily accurate or even news, by the usual definition, but because people are entitled to hear anything the leader of their Government chooses to say, wise or unwise.

While accusing his critics of creating political instability and thus precipitating an election, he has been electioneering without interruption in British Columbia and Saskatchewan, since last spring. Perhaps he feels that he has said enough already and that British Columbia, well indoctrinated, does not require the complete treatment applied to Saskatchewan.

It is to be hoped, however, that he will find a little time for this election, and that he may even appear on the platform to answer certain obvious questions now disturbing many voters.

The most obvious of all is why he called an election at all when, as he tells us every other day, the affairs of British Columbia are going along perfectly and no one is obstructing the best of all possible governments.

The Price of Size

AN INDICATION OF THE magnitude of the police job in New York City may be seen in recent reports on juvenile delinquency. Figures show that arrests of boys and girls in the metropolis increased 41 per cent in the first half of 1956, over the previous year.

Although part of this increase is attributed to stepped-up police activity, rather than stepped-up crime, the basic situation remains far from satisfactory.

On the other hand, juvenile gang warfare is said to have decreased as the result of "saturation" methods by the police—involving greatly intensified supervision of bars, grills and other licensed premises which are off limits to youths. In addition various agencies are at work to direct juvenile energies into athletic associations and other activities designed to keep youngsters off the streets.

Obviously this is a marathon effort; one, indeed, which can never end. Equally obviously it is a very expensive campaign, although such expenditures are preferable to the waste of lives and the loss of property which are inseparable from juvenile delinquency. Such problems seem to be an inherent part of life in a metropolis. Victorians can only be thankful that for the foreseeable future they will be immune.

Mission Accomplished

THREE FRENCH ADVENTURERS on the raft L'Egare have successfully crossed the Atlantic, borne along only by wind and ocean currents. The men, residents of Montreal prior to their unlikely undertaking, suffered considerably from storms and hunger, but apparently have survived without ill effects.

Just what such a journey proved it is difficult to say. The earlier and more famous trans-Pacific voyage of the Kon-Tiki was designed to prove that inhabitants of the south sea islands could have had their origins in early raft voyagers from South America. L'Egare sailors naturally could not have had such a project in view. It would take more than a raft's wanderings to reverse the accepted flow of history.

However, they have proved that something could be done that had not been done before, and to that extent will reap as much human satisfaction as though they had solved one of the riddles of man's earthly distribution.

Men, Not Laws

We are hearing a lot about American political conventions these days but soon little will remain in the public memory but the four names of the rival presidential and vice-presidential candidates.

Hutchison
Fairbanks, Knox, Curtis, Garner or Marshall (except for his immortal five-cent cigar)?

The Americans have good historic reasons for trusting conventions. It was in the various conventions of Philadelphia that the Republic was conceived and brought forth.

They have also a much greater faith than the British peoples in political theories, formulae and general declarations. It was from a certain Declaration that the nation sprang.

Yet there can have been few elections in the United States or any country where men were so important as they are today. The contest now under way involves many questions of law and policy but it is essentially a contest between two men, without whom neither party would have any hope of success.

The Republican Party would be swept from office but for the massive popularity of a single man who, well or ill, is regarded by his followers as indispensable. The Democratic Party's only chance, probably a small one, rests in the personality of a great philosopher of politics who, under the American system, must win a single election or retire, all his talents lost to the nation; whereas under our system he would remain in the legislature as leader of the opposition and no doubt come to office later on.

The primary purpose of a convention is to choose a party leader, a potential president. In that respect our system, in its beginning, differed completely from the American system. Until recent times, in all British countries, the public had no chance to choose a potential prime minister. The leaders of great parties were chosen not by conventions representing the local constituencies but by the members of the House of Commons.

As Bagehot says in his classic work on the British constitution, the supreme function of the House of Commons is to choose the prime minister. All other decisions, as he remarks, are subsidiary to that choice.

So the system remains in Britain but not in Canada. The House of Commons no longer chooses the prime minister. He is chosen at a party convention. Parliament cannot choose but can only dismiss him. We have adopted, in this respect, the system of our American neighbors. Whether it is a better system than the old one is a nice point.

Our early prime ministers were chosen by their followers in Parliament and the choice was usually sound. Mackenzie King was chosen at a convention, and without a convention he would not have been chosen. In that case the nation would have lost the largest political talent of his time.

On the other hand, the Conservative conventions, since the choice of R. B. Bennett, have been a very qualified success. The Conservatives in Parliament would not have chosen Mr. Bracken, for example, perhaps not Dr. Manion, and they would have been wiser than the conventions that nominated these gentlemen. Mr. Drew was chosen by a convention and while he is a great improvement on his immediate predecessors he still seems far from office.

The second purpose of a convention is to frame a policy, but the policy thus framed usually proves irrelevant shortly afterwards. Conventions seldom foresee the course of events even a few years or months ahead.

Looking back over American history, "Fortune" recently observed that the conventions of 1912 prepared for an era of human progress which Woodrow Wilson called the New Liberalism, and within two years the world had plunged into the first war.

The conventions of 1928 proclaimed the conquest of poverty and the arrival of the golden age. One year later came the great crash.

In 1932 the Democratic Party's platform called for economy, budget balancing and good old-fashioned economics. By the following spring the Democratic president had embarked on the deficit spending and Keynesian theories of the New Deal.

In 1940 both parties were firmly pledged to avoid the Second World War, which the nation entered only 15 months later.

It would be naive, therefore, to read too much into the current party platforms or the speeches of the candidates. To take one notable instance—we listened the other night to Mr. Harry Truman denouncing the evil of inflation and, in the next breath, attacking the Republican administration for raising interest rates, the most effective weapon against inflation. (Mr. Stevenson, it should be noted, was not guilty of this transparent nonsense.)

In the end little will depend, in the United States or Canada, on the platform declarations of any convention. Everything will depend on the men chosen to lead parties and the legislators elected with them.

No country really enjoys government of laws, not men. In human affairs the human being is still the decisive factor, and since human beings change their minds almost every day, no convention and no prophet can possibly foresee the future. A year hence, we may be sure, nearly everything said with such conviction this summer will look extremely queer.

As Our Readers See It

No Truck Nor Trade

Referring to your report on the Central Saanich fire truck controversy in your issue of Aug. 15.

This used truck was bought by me and entirely paid for with my personal funds in 1951. This was done to meet an urgent situation to secure this tank truck for fire fighting purposes in the then newly-formed Central Saanich municipality. Other prospective buyers were likely to buy it, and used tank trucks were extremely scarce at that time.

Neither the municipality or anyone else has reimbursed me for the cash which I put up to buy this used tank truck.

The municipality has no evidence of actual ownership of this truck. It has no receipt or canceled cheque for the purchase of it. Also it has no valid document from me personally to support their present claim that I donated the truck to the municipality and that it is therefore now municipal property.

I made no such donation and it was never my intention to make such a large individual donation to the municipality.

My tank truck has given over five years' service to the municipality as a fire truck, without payment of rental, and it has never been included in the list of municipal assets.

When the present council recently decided to discard this No. 1 fire truck and replace it, I then asked to have my tank truck returned to me, after removal of all municipally owned assets, such as special tires, siren, lights, pumps, etc., as I wished to loan it to another fire department. Then the present contention arose as to its ownership.

The council have been advised by me that I was in no hurry to have my tank truck returned whilst it continues to be used as a fire-fighting unit by the municipality.

The council have also been advised by me that there is no sound reason why this matter cannot be settled in an amicable manner. This course would avoid costly law suits with the taxpayers footing the bill. It is hoped that the negotiations for an amicable settlement will be continued.

Cost of Virtue

In 1952, certain persons invaded this province from Alberta, seeking to establish themselves in the seat of government. They were not invited. The government then in office was not enmeshed in inefficiency and corruption. The economy of the province was not in a state of chaos or impoverishment.

Most of them lacked entirely experience in politics or the art of government. Because of supreme ego this did not deter them. Their sole purpose was personal aggrandizement, the establishment of a wider base for their particular political economic fiscal theories.

First they set themselves on a pedestal as a paragon of virtue, political morality, and Christian ethics. By implication they applied a wholesale smear to all and sundry then serving in public office.

Having assumed a place of prominent elevation, they are sensitive about anything that reflects, or may reflect on their virtuous role.

The premier voices pious platitudes about the Sommers vs. Sturdy case being "before the courts" . . . "sub judice." He will not discuss the matter. He is not so reticent about the things he believes he has to boast about. He will not discuss it for the sole reason that he wishes to deceive the people, keep certain knowledge from them, while he tries to persuade them to extend his term of office.

Mr. Sommers' legal counsel is concerned about conformity to legal procedure and restrictions in the interest of his client. He threatens action against anyone disclosing facts construed as being in "contempt of court."

What hypocrites! What is their record? What of the rights of the defendant?

We challenge this government with conduct unbefitting the representatives of Her Majesty in the provincial legislature.

People are justified in assuming that this government, with knowledge in its possession, has been sufficiently impressed with the seriousness of that knowledge to seek to extend their tenure of office, "hedge" their own political fortunes at all costs.

Speaking of costs, have not these political invaders caused more expense for elections, in a shorter period of time, than any other party in history?

High-Speed Finance

With reference to your "Velocity dollars" answer in your last Saturday's issue I hope that some correction and expansion, as given below, may be of help.

Aberhart, in 1935, believed that "velocity money" would help the depression situation then existing. He illustrated his ideas as follows:

"Four men were standing talking. A interrupted by saying to B, 'I have just remembered that I owe you ten dollars. Here's your money.' B said, 'That's opportune for I owe it to Mr. C.' He passed it over. In like manner C passed it on to D. D said, 'Well I owe it to you, A,' and passed it back. In this way four debts were squared and each man was in the same position that he occupied at the beginning."

Concerning the above, I might say that our Kiwanis Club experimented by paying debts by special marked cheques which would not be cashed by the banks for a month. The club reported the idea a flop. My personal experience was that of my two cheques one paid one additional indebtedness. The other was not reused.

Aberhart's "velocity money" consisted of $1 bills issued under his orders. As a government employee, I was advised that it would be wise to take part of my pay in this "funny money." I did so.

It was necessary to purchase very small one-cent stamps and stick one on each bill each week. Before the bill could be used it must bear a stamp for each week since its issue. The urge to get these bills off one's hands caused them to be called "velocity money."

As only certain of the stores would accept such currency, we often were left with the nuisance and expense of sticking on more and more stamps.

Thus in true "so-called" style, where statements and promises are intended to serve only to hoodwink a supposedly gullible public, Mr. Aberhart, who had promised the people "interest-free money and a fair coat to live," was charging us 52 per cent per annum just to use his provincial currency.

Scientific

The word "science" is from the Latin "scire"—to know; and when on rare occasion a scientist rushes into print in defence of religion, it must not be taken to indicate a reconciliation of two diametrically opposite concepts of the universe.

Needless to say rational physicists, who are in the ascendancy everywhere today, express keen disapproval at the action of such a scholar in doing public honor to superstition.

Even today a scientist may work his heart out on some problem, the solution of which may be of inestimable benefit to mankind, and so far as the clergy are concerned he will likely be ignored. But let him once say that there is a god, or that evolution is only a theory and that the solution of all our problems is in prayer, and he will be lauded in pulpit, press and radio as one of the greatest scientists of our time, and his backslider testimony cited as proof that science and religion are no longer divorced.

Who Can Deny?

Will you please publish this as an open letter to those who, like several acquaintances of late have sort of boasted of having no religion?

"Who can deny that the universe was created for the sake of the human race, in order that from it an angelic heaven might be formed, wherein God might dwell in the dominion of His glory? To promote and accomplish this end, what mediate cause is there but religion? And what else is religion than walking with God?"

Lumber Barons

May I comment on Mr. Snowsall's criticism of the lumber barons as a danger to our freedom which was recognized years before the CCF took up the battle, etc.

The first point to remember is that a small percentage of society own and control all the means and instruments of production, hence they legally own all the goods produced; on the other hand the great majority of the people own nothing but their labor power which they must sell to the former in order to live.

It should not be forgotten that capital and labor are both essential, one cannot exist without the other, and while labor applied to the natural resources produces all wealth, when the workers lift their wages on pay day, they have received the full value of the commodity labor power, hence they have no further claim whatsoever on the wealth produced.

What have the CCF this last twenty years or more done to remedy this constant accumulation of capital? Simply advocated state ownership of these various industries, which would ultimately bind the chains of slavery and regimentation more firmly on the Canadian workers than at present.

It is clear the reasoning powers of the CCF are very shallow in the economic field.

In refusing to recognize that the private ownership of the means of production is the cause of all our trouble they are not only anti-labor but also anti-socialist and should be treated as such on election day.

Responsible Beings

I am amazed that so many abusive letters have appeared in your paper and so few supporting Dean Whitlow's exposures of the Jehovah Witnesses' teaching.

Their followers, chiefly elderly women, used to call at intervals at my former home. I always told them, after reading their pamphlets, pleasantly but firmly that I believed God looks upon us as responsible beings and expects us to do all we can as citizens under His guidance, including defending our country. That Christ told us to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."

British Schools

Your correspondent, K. Macdonald, may be a retired school principal from a Scottish school, but his letter reflects very little credit on his profession and since I also feel competent to speak on English education—through experience—may I correct the entirely false impression his letter will undoubtedly create.

Certainly the term "public school" is a misnomer in England, but that has nothing whatever to do with English elementary, secondary and grammar schools or their Scottish counterparts.

Why Mr. Macdonald should deliberately misrepresent conditions of English education by saying that what he rightly claims for Scotland does not apply to England, I cannot imagine.

The English student goes to a very similar elementary school as does the Scottish pupil and following on much the same examination continues in an equally good high school during the course of which he benefits from all the free services mentioned by Mr. Macdonald plus, where necessary, free clothing, lunches and transportation.

Bursaries are available to assist students to further their education in the excellent English universities.

I cannot conceive that your correspondent is ignorant of these facts and can be serious in his assertion that standards of education differ so much in England and Scotland, especially since he was a professional educationist.

Canadiana

I SUPPOSE I have a low taste in literature, but I'm a persistent reader of the big mail-order catalogues. They strike me as such human volumes and such fascinating bits of Canadiana.

For nearly two decades now, I've bought enough from "the catalogue" to be on the mailing list for a new one every spring and fall.

I like the mental pictures they bring me, the pictures of other Canadians poring over the illustrated pages, adding up the prices, figuring out the freight on larger items, writing out the order, waiting for the parcel to come.

I know a ranch house in the Cariboo where the rancher and his wife spread the catalogue on the table beneath the hanging gasoline lamp.

I know an up-coast family where the father is a commercial fisherman. Each September when he comes home from the summer's fishing, they make out their list of winter needs.

I know a logging town where the people go down to the post office for their mail because there is no house-to-house delivery. On the day that the catalogue arrives, the general delivery pigeonholes are absolutely full of the familiar books.

I suppose that city folk who've never lived in little towns or isolated districts, just don't know what the catalogue means.

It's window shopping without tired feet, and price gauging the easy reliable way.

It's little girls picking out their favorite dress, and admiring the pictured girls who wear them. "She's cute, isn't she?"

It's tiny children whose first picture book is very often the mail order catalogue. (No fooling, I know whereof I speak.)

It's gangling boys saving up for bikes and skates and fancy sweaters in the colors of their favorite teams.

It's girls who are going to be married looking up the page with wedding dresses and bouquets of artificial flowers.

It's the young wife looking for a maternity dress. (And the moment she puts it on, every woman in the community will know her secret, along with the price of the dress, and the alternative styles she might have chosen.)

What a picture of our changing social mores. See how flypapers and bread mixers have disappeared. See how freezers and the extras you need with them now take up more space than old-fashioned canning.

Look, here are sad irons. Who remembers sad irons in these days? But some Canadian women are still using them. Here's that wife-killer, the washboard. Here's a handwringing as well as automatic washers. Here, shrunk to half a page, is horse harness for a farm team. Here's a hand pump for well or kitchen sink. (And what city child knows anything about priming a pump and working away at the handle before he can have a drink of cold, cold water?)

Here are pretty-petties for young girls, and heavy corsets for stouter women. Here are stalwart males, forever smiling and forever warm in long-legged, heavy knit underwear. Here's all the paraphernalia for babies and their bottles. Here's almost everything for either sex from the cradle to the grave.

And here's a special page introducing new Canadians to this country's ways and shopping habits.

"Neu Canadier," it says, "Schreiben sie an... in Ihrer eigenen Sprache."

"Nieuw Canadezen," it says, "Schrijf naar... in Uw eigen taal."

"Neo Canadesi," it says, "Scrivere ad... nella vostra lingua."

And finally, "Nowi Kanadyjczycy, Piszcie do... waszym obcym jazyku."

Canadians? I'll say it is. It's some of the most built-in-the-country literature we have.

Persons Always Tired

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

Following the publication of my column on the persons who are always tired and cannot do as much work as they wish they could do, I have received interesting letters from good people all over who tell me that I described their case exactly. They are grateful for the article because it has helped them and their family to understand the situation and to adjust to it.

As one woman said, "As a child I was very nervous and sickly, but I always had a great drive and a zest for living. I would rather work to help people than to have fun myself. But I never had the physical strength or nerve force to enable me to do all I wanted to do. Finally, I learned that if I overdid on my strength one day, I would have to pay it back the next day."

"Always I've been ashamed of my weakness, and some people have suspected I was coddling myself too much. This accusation always so distressed me that I tried hard to accomplish more, but I just couldn't do it. Finally, I learned to budget my strength, and then I was able to live more comfortably; I could enjoy life and could be much more useful. Now I am not ashamed when I have to give in and take a rest."

"What you said about heredity was true, many of my relatives for generations before me had poor nerves. Thanks to your article my family now has a much clearer understanding of my problem, and they are more willing than ever before to make allowances for me, and to help me. Fortunately, our doctor has always understood my problem as you do, and for this I love him."

CONGENITAL DISLOCATION OF THE HIP

Most persons must have noted those many men and women who walk with a peculiar rolling gait due to the lack of a solid joint in the hips. For lack of this, with every step the body sinks two or three inches.

The trouble is due to a lack of proper development of the hip joint when the child is in his mother's womb.

The disease is seen more commonly in girls than in boys. It occurs in one out of 500 girls, and in one in every 2,000 or 3,000 boys. In about 40 per cent of the cases, both hips are involved.

According to the Dight Institute of the University of Minnesota, the defect is inherited as if due to what is called a dominant gene, which does not always produce the abnormality even when the parents carry it. Only about one in six of the children who might inherit the defect from an ancestor actually get it.

When a mother has a child with congenital dislocation of the hip she often wants to know what the chances are that another child born to her would have the defect. According to the Dight Institute, the chance would be about 17 per cent for a girl, and considerably less for a boy.

ACHONDROPLASTIC DWARFS

Achondroplastic dwarfs are easily recognized with their short arms and legs, their large head and their full-sized trunk. This condition is due to a defect in growth in the cartilages at the ends of some of the long bones. It appears to be transmitted through what is called a dominant gene, but there are puzzling cases in which the inheritance does not follow the "rule." It is transmitted from the affected parent to the offspring without skipping generations. When an achondroplastic child is born to normal parents it is thought to be due to what is called a mutation, or a sudden change of a normal gene to a defective one. This accident happens to about one in 4,000 of the population.

Parents of such children write asking me if there is any clinic to which they can take the child for treatment, and I have to answer sadly that I know of none. There is no known treatment for the disease. These dwarfs appear to be normal except for the lack of growth in their long bones. They are sturdy and long-lived. When they marry, their children usually show the defect.

Primulas to Benefit If Dug and Divided

If you have a shady garden, here is a job which may be done even while the weather is warm. Without some sort of shade, however, it will have to wait for an overcast day.

The polyanthus primulas have made a fair amount of growth during the summer if water was supplied. They will now benefit from being dug and divided.

There is really no difficulty about this job, but if a new site for them is being used, prepare it before digging the plants.

For the spring flowering season, polyanthus enjoys a sunny location; under tall deciduous (leaf-losing) trees is ideal, since shade for the summer months is an asset.

The soil should be well dug, and if clay predominates, work in as much compost as can be spared. Blue Whale or straight peat moss, or leaf mould are all good additions. A little coarse sand aids drainage in heavy soils.

Dig the plants, and separate each crown complete with its roots, and replant about four inches apart all ways. Next fall, alternate plants may be dug and the planting extended by that number.

The auricula is one of the primula genus which tolerates considerable sunshine and will thrive in an open border or at the foot of a rock wall.

ODD OTTER DISLIKES FISH

LANSING, Mich. (AP)—Here's an odd otter.

Fishermen generally dislike otters because of their reputation as fish-killers, but the Michigan conservation department reports it has an otter with a positive dislike for fish.

The otter turns up its nose alike at mackerel, salmon, sardines, smelt and other varieties. Its favorite dish is hamburger, but it will settle for bread and milk rather than fish.

CREATED THOUSANDS OF JOBS

Farmers Would Beat Bennett, Says Snowsell

"If Premier Bennett depended on the farm vote he would have been out of office long ago," Frank Snowsell, CCF candidate for Saanich, told a campaign meeting at Sidney Wednesday night.

Mr. Snowsell said dairy farmers, faced by a hay shortage, had asked Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan for financial assistance to buy hay.

"The minister tells them to get rid of their cows. I guess Mr. Kiernan has never read that verse in the Bible: 'They cry to you for bread and you give them a stone.'"

MILK PRICE UP
"Our dairy farmers follow Mr. Kiernan's advice, sell the cows and up goes the price of milk. But you can't just replace dairy cows on the spur of the moment."

"It takes years to establish a good dairy herd. So there is a shortage of pure, fresh milk. The dairies, as they are doing right now in Victoria, mix up powdered milk and add it to the fresh milk and sell us this adulterated mixture at fresh milk prices."

Mr. Snowsell said the CCF will establish, in co-operation with producer and consumer organizations, a planned co-operative marketing system which will ensure the maximum return to the producer at reasonable prices to the consumer.

EXTENSION DIRECTOR
TORONTO (CP)—James Royden Gilley, 62, former director of extension at the University of Toronto, died Wednesday. A native of New Westminster, B.C., he had retired last year. He wrote the book "This Question of Calendar Reform" in 1935.

Woods Plan Built B.C., Says Wismer

Gordon Wismer, QC, former B.C. attorney-general, told the Sloan-Royal commission on forestry Wednesday forest management licence legislation passed after the 1954 report of Commissioner Gordon Sloan "has done more to strengthen and build the economy of British Columbia than any other statute from the earliest days."

"It has been directly responsible for capital investment amounting to more than $200,000,000, creating employment for thousands of our citizens," Mr. Wismer said.

Mr. Wismer, who is appearing as counsel for Forest Policy Development Association, charged Gordon Gibson, former Liberal M.L.A., with using the witness box of the Sloan commission as a forum for political attacks.

AIMED TO DISTURB
He said Mr. Gibson's submissions to the commission consisted largely of a "thinly disguised political attack designed to disturb and mislead the Commissioner and the people of British Columbia."

Mr. Wismer declared that when last June he attempted to challenge statements made by Mr. Gibson he had "run foul" of a ruling by Commissioner Sloan that such statements were inadmissible.

"I now find myself in the same position as I was at the outset," Mr. Wismer continued. "If I read any considerable part of Mr. Gibson's submission I have to use such words as 'Tammany Hall,' 'suspicion,' 'corruption,' 'political faction,' 'boys in the back room,' 'pressure politics,' and a host of other statements."

ISLAND DIGEST

Victoria Daily Times THURSDAY, AUG. 23, 1956 7

Minesweeper Aids Hurt U.S. Seaman

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Royal Canadian Navy minesweeper brought medical help late Wednesday to a badly injured seaman aboard the U.S. cable ship Albert J. Meyer, southbound off the coast of Vancouver Island.

Alsece Wore, 31, of Seattle, crushed when a cable drum toppled on him, was transferred to the minesweeper HMCS Oshawa which was to take him to Port Hardy. There an RCAF Dakota from Sea Island air base was waiting to fly him to Seattle. A doctor and nurse were to accompany him.

90 MILES OUT

The transfer took place 90 miles out to sea off Quatsino Sound, near the north end of Vancouver Island. Port Hardy is on the northern tip of the Island.

Previous attempts to transfer Wore from the cable ship had failed. The Albert J. Meyer could not alter course or speed for fear of breaking a $15,000,000 cable it is laying south from Alaska.

It outran a Canadian fisheries boat. Heavy seas and rough weather prevented planes from picking up the injured man.

Laing Scores Kiernan, Sacred Farm Policy

ABBOTSFORD—Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan "threw the anchor, not the life belt" at distressed dairymen and small fruit growers of the Fraser Valley, Liberal leader Arthur Laing charged here.

The minister of agriculture has done "too little, too late, and restricted it to a few" in response to appeal for help following November's disastrous freeze, Mr. Laing said.

The Liberal leader said agriculture has slipped alarmingly in the last four years in British Columbia. Farmers have lost control of the selling prices of their products, and the Social Credit administration has provided agriculture with poor leadership in time of crisis.

A blistering attack on Sacred agricultural policies also came from George Cruickshank, former Fraser Valley M.P.

"If ever there was a farmer's election, this is it," he asserted. "Every dollar Mr. Kiernan's policy has saved consumers has cost the farmer five dollars."

"Though friends admire my shining kitchen" explains Mrs. Marsh,

"... I don't wear myself out scouring and scrubbing as they think. Just a little Javex wipes away stains and gives the porcelain that lovely gleam. Javex kills odours, too."

Most women know at least 20 ways Javex lightens housework, cuts the cost of cleaning products, and protects the family health through its positive 5-way action.

BRIGHTEST SHAMROCKS OF THE YEAR

left, holds Laurie Dillabaugh Memorial Trophy he won as player best combining ability, sportsmanship and clean play; and Bill Bamford, right, displays George Black Trophy as most valuable.

IT'S MY VIEW

BY

Bill Walker

You're a football fan, see, and you're from Victoria, and the thing you want most in life this fall is to see the Lions play. But it's tough—the traveling, that is.

You catch a boat in the afternoon and you have to take half the day off work to get there. You can take a plane and get there in time, but the coming home now is the stickler. . . . You can't catch the last plane, because the last plane home that night leaves too early.

So you have to take the boat home, and that makes it an expensive game, either way.

So you figure you got a beef. Well, we got a guy to listen. He's Art Ousman, of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

"We'd be happy to oblige," says Art. "If sufficient interest is shown, we'd be only too pleased to provide an extra flight at night from Vancouver to Victoria for the benefit of football fans. But we'd have to have the interest; so far this year we have not had it, but last year towards the end of the season, we did."

So you're this football fan, see, and you want to know what to do about it. Well, what you do is phone TCA and express your interest in Ousman's plan; and if you've got any other football buddies in your crowd, have them do the same thing.

Because Art can't do anything until he's assured that the extra section is warranted, and will pay its freight. Now can he?

(CPR officials step forward; now it's your turn. You may have the floor if you wish. Anything to assist the sport fan will be welcome.)

So you're in our shoes, see, and you've given a special prize for the largest coho caught in the Ladder Derby fishoff. And someone takes a sneak look at the prize list shortly before expiration of the derby and there's a familiar name on top. It's James C. Tang, of the sheet down the street. It beats everyone how it got there; but we have one friend left and he makes it up to us. He gets one of the bigger than Jim's, and you come out of hiding, see, and why not?

So, you're another football fan, see, and you want to know "why in the Dickens isn't Higgs (Ken) playing for the Lions—instead of all those imports?" But what you don't realize is that Ken is a Victoria product, is a Canadian and the Lions know what he CAN do. What they don't know, and what they must find out before next week is what the U.S. imports CAN'T do; that's why Ken hasn't been playing; but the word is, he will.

And you're in this business, see, and you say that Teresa hasn't yet won Galiffa's job with the Lions. . . . And no sooner than the ink is dry, does Galiffa get the gate, the heavens, see, and some guy calls and says: "How wrong can you get?" . . . Of course, there's the other way—the easy way out, like predicting swims; you say someone's going to swim some time, and when they do, you're right. It's that easy.

And a bowlful of orchids to manager Joe Bryant and the Gorge Hotel softball team—three successive provincial championships is not to be sneezed at, and that's the record owned by the hotelmen, and Fletcher before them. . . . and a bouquet of roses to Polyettes for a commendable showing in their first year of senior A intercity competition. . . . The Polys lost out to Vancouver by the odd game in three, and Coach John Oster was fair in his appraisal of the winners: "We just couldn't hit their pitcher—she was too good," he said of the double shutout engineered against the locals in the final two games. . . . How different from the sour grapes that often accompany defeat.

ODE TO THE LIONS

You didn't roar, in fifty-four.
Winning one, but not any more;
You barely survived, in fifty-five,
Only in five did you have the drive;
But as playoff picks, in fifty-six,
Vereb's the guy with the winning tricks.

United Can Still Do It ---Get Lead Friday

Victoria United will get another day earned him a starting berth at chance to grab top spot in the inside right Friday. He will have Coast Soccer League Friday night Ced Robb on his wing, with Ken at Athletic Park, but this time it's Hibbert again at centre in place of can get only a piece of first place, lacrosse-playing Tommy Druce. United, tied for third with North and George Wright and Tim Walker Shore, plays second-place New Westminster Royals and a win will give the Victoria squad a tie for first with Vancouver Halcocks.

Halcocks downed Victoria, 2-1, in a battle for first place Tuesday in Vancouver.

Coach Willie Hamilton again has changed his line-up slightly for the game.

Milwaukee Jitters Says Rianey

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Experienced baseball men, who have been on the Braves' bandwagon since they left the east in first place a month ago, now are beginning to doubt that Milwaukee will win the National League pennant.

Only two days ago, manager Bill Rianey of New York Giants unequivocally picked Braves to beat out Brooklyn and Cincinnati. Wednesday, after his cell-dwelling outfit had managed to salvage the finale of the three-game series here, 2-1, he changed his mind.

"I'm not so sure now that Milwaukee will win it," Rianey said. "Those guys seem to be on edge. They don't seem to have that certain fire that a first-place team should have. They talk kind of funny, too, as if they're not so sure themselves they can win it."

Memo: Add Bert, Archie To Shamrock Honor List

Bertoia, Browning Spark Irish As Series Squared

Shamrocks 10, Pilseners 6
(Best-of-five series tied 1-1.)

By BILL WALKER

It was award night Wednesday at Memorial arena—honor roll call and the second game of the Intercity Lacrosse League semifinal between the Shamrocks and Pilseners.

The trophy winners were Alan Gill, Bill Bamford and Pee-wee Bradshaw. Gill won the Dillabaugh Trophy for his exemplary play and sportsmanship.

Bamford was picked as most valuable player and the winner of the George Blackstock Trophy.

Bradshaw was selected by the fans as most popular Shamrock and the Birks award winner. All this was at half time, and a good thing too.

For if the presentations had been made after the game, there might have been cause to suggest that a recount should have been made.

For two other Rocks rose far above the rest. They were burly Bert Bertoia and lithe Archie Browning.

They stole the curtain calls in the Rocks' 10-6 triumph over Pils, and an even break now in the best-of-five playdowns.

Double Quick Counters Cinched It

It was Bertoia with a total of four goals, and two quick counters during Jim Swanson's penalty in the third period to break a 4-4 tie.

It was Browning, who got five goals in the series' opener, for another brilliant display. Shadowed tenaciously, Browning finally broke the game open and closed the door on the Pils with two goals 12 seconds apart in the fourth quarter.

The Pils were dead then, and maybe even before that. For if you like the coaches' comments, they tell the story.

"We played better than Tuesday," said Irish mentor Whitey Severson. Bert and Archie—they were great; our defence was sound which it wasn't Tuesday.

Dour Jake Proctor, of Pilseners, in miserable voice, commented: "We were lousy; had penalties killed us."

It was a carefully calculated first period by both clubs—and it ended that way, tied 1-1, with Tom Druce and Elmer Buchanan sharing goal honors.

A penalty to Bill Barbour gave Rocks the green light and Bertoia pulled the switch after Alf Bremner had given Pils a 2-1 edge. Ed Kowalsky then broke away while Rocks were short-handed and the Irish were never headed after that, although sternly pressed.

Bradshaw made it, 4-2, and Chisholm, on a break, closed the gap to 4-3 by intermission.

There was doubt . . . and Goal Posts

It seemed the Irish may have shot their bolt when they failed to score with Pils short two men early in the third. More so, the lost advantage loomed bigger when Barbour equalized the count at 4-4.

But then Bertoia took over. Two shots in 19 seconds during Swanson's penance resulted in two goals, and Pils were on the run. Chisholm got his second to keep the result in doubt for a time, but a snap rebound by Lew Landess off Bertoia's shot offset that marker.

Then Browning made it certain, and Bertoia added another for good measure.

If the Pils had a legitimate excuse they didn't use it in the game post mortem. And it was a big one at the time. Three times on successive shots, with the Rocks leading 6-4, they hit the goal post.

But then Stan Joseph should never have committed the felony he did either. On four clean breaks by the Irish he slammed the door.

Geordy Johnston, on the other hand, was equally proficient, getting better aid from his mates than in the series opener, and giving that extra, made good use of it.

But really, Bert and Archie shouldn't feel too badly about losing out on the club awards. For there's another for the playoffs—and right now they lead the Irish voting.

They were the big difference Wednesday.

OLYMPIC PROSPECTS GOOD

Canadian Swimming Marks Tumble Again

TORONTO (CP)—The prospects for Canada's women swimmers, who haven't made an Olympic final since 1932, continued to look optimistic today as the Olympic trials went into their final day.

Brightest star in the swimmers' constellation is Sara Barber, a 15-year-old from Brantford, Ont., who not only has been making a hash of her opposition in the junior women's sprint events, but has also bettered some of the best times of the senior ladies.

Sara broke two Canadian records for 50-yard pools Tuesday as the trials, held in conjunction with the national championships, opened. She continued her whirlwind pace Wednesday.

She was timed in 1:07.5 in the junior 100-yard backstroke, lowering by a second the mark she set in a heat earlier, and surpassing

REPORT FROM THE OUTDOORS

The ways of salmon are many and varied, but most fishing establishments rely on their reaching a certain spot at a certain time.

The big tye runs, currently close to full strength at Campbell River and Port Alberni, can be traced directly to the fact that the congregation of salmon are just waiting to go up the river to spawn. Cowichan bay's fishing stems from the same circumstances.

But why are there salmon in Saanich Inlet? The spawning reason does not hold here, for the salmon that go up its streams are mainly chum, with a scattering of coho, while by far the majority of fish caught are spring.

Saanich Inlet doesn't lead anywhere, so the fish cannot be "just passing through." One answer is that the salmon are after feed, but then why isn't there good salmon fishing in such similar waterways as Portage Inlet?

No one knows the answer, but the man who finds it will be doing something worthwhile.

One of the largest tye this year, a 62½-pounder, was landed at Campbell River recently by Fred Jordan, a visitor from California. But the tale he'll recite will likely centre not on the weight, but on the fact that he caught the monster on nothing but a white bucktail fly. The battle must have been long and furious, and well worth the trip from California.

Other big ones boated in the past week were: Rufe Gibbs, 42½ pounds; Doug Joyce, 59; W. Covington Jr., 43½; R. Sinclair, 38½; J. Brimhall, 30½; Wade Newgatin, 53 and 35½; Archie McDonald, 59; Dr. Petray, 30, and Mr. Begg, 38.

The usual variety of lures prevailed, with every type being hooked on something different. It seems that when they're biting, they'll strike at everything.

Those who enjoy playing fish without the encumbrance of weights (and who doesn't?) would do well to look into reports from Miracle Beach and Oyster River. Humpies up to six pounds are being taken in the surf by spinners and bait-casters, and although the fish strike in anger and not hunger, they still provide exciting fare on light tackle. Best fishing is in the evening, while nearly any weighted spinning lure will get them on a good day.

Fresh water enthusiasts will find their best fishing at Lower Campbell Lake, where good-sized trout are taking gawg, spinner and worm, or flatfish rigs, while those who like to match wits with a tye should find satisfaction at Port Alberni. The big ones are striking both plugs and spoons.

Killer whales, which can play havoc with fishing wherever they appear, have been showing in Saanich Inlet according to reports from Sunday's ladder derby fishoff. One of the unlucky anglers to hook into these extra-big sea-going mammals was Mrs. Jessie Marshall, who was of the opinion that she'd struck bottom until she saw what she'd hooked. Amazing part about it was that no tackle was lost in the operation. Fred Booth, who reportedly forsook Saanich Inlet for Sooke, pulled in what would be one of the biggest cohes taken on the Island this year at Otter Point. Weighing 17½ pounds, the big silver was caught on a flasher and minnow outfit on Sunday.

And, in the derby department, the Victoria Kinsmen have their annual fishoff at Cowichan Bay on Sunday. Boating will be left to individual members, while fish must be on the docks at Ordano's not later than four in the afternoon.

Ronnie Really Rocks, But Riders Roll to Win

Galiffa Shown Gate By Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arnie Galiffa, all-American quarterback with Army in 1949, Wednesday was released by the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Coach Clem Crowe said it is expected that Galiffa, who piloted the Lions last year, will find a position with another WIFU club.

He did not specify which one. Crowe said Galiffa could land a job with a Big Four club, but he prefers to stay in the West.

"We hate to see him go," the coach said, "but cutting him now will give him a better chance to get another position."

The Lions could have kept Galiffa another week before deadline arrives for cutting their import roster to 12.

His release leaves the quarterback job to Tony Teresa and Paul Cameron, both of whom are regarded as more versatile than Galiffa. They can play halfback as well as quarter.

TIME OUT! BY JEFF KEATE

"ONE of you men might've caught the winner when she fell from exhaustion!"

Compton, Tyson Join English Side

LONDON (Reuters) — England's cricket team went into its fifth and final game with Australia today at London's Oval cricket ground a solid favorite to win decisively over their traditional enemies.

Having won two games, lost one and tied one, England already has retained the Ashes, symbolic of test cricket supremacy. Australia could tie the best-of-five series with a victory, but a draw goes in favor of the defending champions.

Only changes in England's lineup will be Denis Compton and Frank Tyson, who will play in place of Alan Oakman and Freddie Trueman, respectively. The home side still has the services of its whirlwind bowler, Jim Laker, who needs only one more wicket to beat the record of 39 set by Alec Bedser against Australia in 1953.

The Aussies will field a team much improved in county play during the last few weeks. They won four out of five games.

Colin McDonald, Ian Craig and Alan Davidson all showed up well against Essex on a wicket similar to that expected at the Oval—home ground for England's Laker, Tony Lock and English captain Peter May.

Howe Signs

DETROIT (AP)—Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' all-time high scorer, Wednesday signed his contract for the 1956-57 National Hockey League season.

Howe's signing by general manager Jack Adams marked the second signing in two weeks of a veteran player. Defenceman Red Kelly signed 10 days ago.

HAMILTON (CP) — Coach Frank Clair of Ottawa Rough Riders has shown once again he is a builder of dangerous football teams.

And Ronnie Knox has proved you can be a bit of a goat and a glamor boy at the same time.

The Rough Riders, who finished a pitiful last in 1954 and 1955 in the Big Four football union, came from behind Wednesday night to defeat Hamilton Tiger-Cats 29-21 in a thrilling game that opened the 1956 season before an estimated turnout of 19,500 fans.

It had been suspected that Clair, who produced two Grey Cup winners in five years with Toronto Argonauts, then coached at a U.S. college last year before coming to Ottawa this season, would unveil a sleeper.

Not many—if any—will disagree that he did.

Riders, although fumbling eight times, were quick to jump on Hamilton bobbles and treated the much-publicized passing ability of Knox with near-contempt to take the victory, their first here in five years.

In defeat, Knox, 21-year-old quarterback from the University of California at Los Angeles, was accepted by the fans as a long lost son. In the two quarters in which he played Ronnie indicated he may be worth every cent of the $14,000 Hamilton is paying him for the season.

The customers loved him, even after he threw away the ball in attempting to lateral in the fourth quarter; a mistake that led to an Ottawa touchdown and gave Riders a 22-21 lead.

The young quarter completed seven of 13 pass attempts and ran the ball with dazzling skill. In eight plays he fired one touchdown pass and masterminded a 65-yard touchdown drive.

Halfback Don Pinnaw was the scoring star with two touchdowns for Riders.

Bukich Case Unsettled

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Superior Judge John J. Ford Wednesday took under advisement the question whether he shall issue a preliminary injunction that would prohibit Rudy Bukich, former Southern California football star, from playing for Los Angeles Rams this fall.

British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union seek the injunction, claiming they have a contract for his services this season. The Rams claim they have a prior contract.

2% Cut in Sales Tax Possible, Says Gibbs

'Giant Killer' Again Choice Of Liberal Forces in Oak Bay

Premier Bennett's statement that a 1 per cent reduction in the 5 per cent sales tax would wreck the B.C. Hospital Insurance Scheme was challenged by P. A. Gibbs on his nomination as Liberal candidate for Oak Bay Wednesday night.

"I would like to debunk that," said Mr. Gibbs, who was acclaimed by an enthusiastic meeting as the "giant killer" who defeated two finance ministers in two provincial elections—Conservative Herbert Anscomb in 1952 and Einar Gundersen in 1953.

"It would be possible to make even a 2 per cent cut in the sales tax without curbing the hospital scheme," Mr. Gibbs said, "but our executive felt we should start with a 1 per cent cut."

FURTHER CUTS

"When we are returned to power we will see the picture as it is and plan further reductions accordingly."

Mr. Gibbs was renominated for Oak Bay without opposition and his candidature was supported by Dr. Frank Fairley, federal Liberal member for Victoria, and Harry Perry, a former minister of education in the provincial Liberal government.

"Where is Mr. Bennett getting his $28 per household tax exemption from?" asked Mr. Gibbs. "We could easily say he is taking it out of the hospital insurance fund."

NO SMEAR

"We are not smearing him when we say that—we are merely stating it is not the right thing to do. We believe any reduction in taxes should be a reduction across the board benefiting all—not just a grant at the whim of the premier."

Mr. Gibbs said the government is now collecting $66,000,000 from the sales tax and a 1 per cent cut would touch that portion of the tax earmarked for hospitals.

"The cut would leave 2 per cent for hospitals and 2 per cent for consolidated revenue," he said.

The Social Credit government, he continued, claimed to have spent more on B.C. roads in four years than previous governments had done in 40.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL APPEAL COST TAXPAYERS $2,000

Taxpayer costs in the recent school hearings which resulted in dismissal of Mount Newton principal Arthur Voege were about $2,000 in legal fees, Saanich school board heard Monday from the board's solicitor.

The bill was from Crease & Co.

Mr. Voege's hearing dragged on for weeks, based on the premise he was inefficient in administrative duties.

P. A. GIBBS
... renominated.

whereas the provincial debt stood at $214 per capita when Premier Johnson quit office, it had now risen to $350 per capita.

Mr. Perry, who was welcomed as "one of the great men of the Liberal regime, declared the Social Credit government's main activity had been extending policies initiated by the provincial Liberal government.

"Their only big new policy has been an increase in our sales tax from 3 to 5 per cent—a tax which all students of taxation deplore as placing a tremendous burden on small income men and women."

"We give them all credit for what they have done, particularly for their initiative in taking the Pacific Great Eastern Railway into the Peace River country. But that is not a new policy; it is just another extension of Liberal policies.

"And they ought to do something with the $250,000,000 revenue they get."

Dr. Fairley said there is a division in the Social Credit party at the present time "and the real old-time Social Crediters are annoyed at the new Social Crediters taking over."

"I believe this division will ultimately bring the party down," he said.

City, Saanich Combined City Hall Discussed

Pooling of Physical Resources Suggested

Pooling Victoria and Saanich physical resources was suggested Wednesday as a means of making a joint city hall economic.

First formal meeting of Victoria and Saanich representatives exploring the possibility of a single city hall for the two municipal governments was held at city hall this morning with acting mayor Ald. W. F. Pinfold in the chair.

It was his suggestion that pooling physical resources, thereby eliminating duplication to a large extent, would mean a financial saving to both municipalities and if carried on extensively over a period of 20 years might pay for cost of erecting the new building.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt emphasized that such circumstances would in no way interfere with the legislative or executive administration of either Victoria or Saanich.

SEPARATE OFFICIALS

Each would retain its own council and senior executive posts, upon which decisions regarding the welfare of their particular jurisdictions would continue to rest.

"This would have nothing to do with amalgamation," Ald. Pinfold said.

Meanwhile, the committee, represented today by Coun. J. Ronald Grant and Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich, and Aids. Robert Macmillan and Arthur Dowell for the city, is awaiting a report from the Capital Region Planning Board which was asked to recommend a site for the structure.

Ald. Pinfold said a reply is expected next week.

WORK WOULD BENEFIT

The public works departments of Saanich and Victoria could best benefit by a pooling of resources. For example a fewer number of gravel trucks would be required to do the work of both departments and those in the fleet would see full use.

Other areas where a saving could be made in the proposed system are centralized purchasing, heating and caretaking, reception and switchboard operation, mimeographing, cashier service, assessment service, single council chamber and committee rooms and staff rooms.

An important point, Mr. Wyatt mentioned, would be that a joint operation of administrative and operational services could result in a manpower saving.

Workability of the plan is exemplified by the present library board, union board of health and Greater Victoria water district, which are joint municipal enterprises.

Ex-Grid Star Trap Champ

VANDALIA, Ohio (AP)—Dan Orlich of Reno, Nev., former Northwestern University and Green Bay Packers football star, Wednesday won the clay target championship of America at the 57th Grand American trapshoot.

Hiestand and seven others, including George Genereux of Saskatoon, tied for first place in the Champion of Champions competition for regional titleholders with 99s. They will shoot off for the title today.

'Dead' Woman A Mere Slip Of a Ghoul

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Mrs. Sheila Baulch, an officially certified corpse who came back to life, said today, "if it weren't so serious I'd be laughing" over the incident.

"I'm 44 years old, a mere slip of a ghoul," she said in describing the incident in which she was knocked unconscious in a street accident and was certified dead by a Melbourne hospital.

A policeman noticed her eye twitch just as he was about to wheel her into the refrigerator at the morgue. She recovered a few hours later, apparently none the worse.

"It's dead right I'm starting a new life," she told the United Press. "except I don't want another 10 kids. It's like a lifetime since it happened last Saturday."

Deaths Mar PNE Parade

'Worst Confusion in Memory'
Police Reaction to Procession

VANCOUVER (CP)—Two persons collapsed and died Wednesday as an estimated crowd of 250,000 packed city streets to watch a mammoth two-hour parade herald the opening of the 1956 Pacific National Exhibition.

Dead are David Syme, 69, and Samuel Cook who collapsed at separate points along the parade route. Inhalators answered 10 other calls.

The downtown temperature was nearly 81 degrees. Brig. George Kitching, commanding officer of the army in British Columbia, took the salute as contingents from the armed forces of Canada and the United States marched past the reviewing stand.

Police said it was the worst parade in memory for confusion.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, opening the exhibition, said the letters PNE should stand for "progress never ending."

The premier said hundreds have worked together "to make this the greatest show in western Canada."

Mr. Bennett was introduced by PNE President W. J. Barrie.

B.C. Electric came first in the industrial class, followed by Grosvenor Laiding Ltd.

Evans, Coleman and Evans topped the retail and wholesale division.

In the promotional class, Connaught Skating Club won out with Pacific Western Airlines next.

Of communities in the Vancouver metropolitan area, Burnaby and North Vancouver fire-fighters were tops.

Outside Vancouver, White Brothers of Comox were first followed by Victoria City.

LABOR BOYCOTT?
Vancouver labor circles are considering picketing the Pacific National Exhibition.

Following a dispute between Vancouver Trades and Labor Council and officials of the PNE over alleged "censoring" of a labor-sponsored show due to be held on Labor Day, labor officials called off the show.

One union, at present on strike at a city bag plant, offered to send pickets to the fair.

The dispute arose when PNE officers asked for a copy of the "script," labor leaders said yesterday.

"IT'S CENSORSHIP"
"It's nothing short of censorship," complained TLC secretary E. A. Jamieson.

PNE officials, on the other hand, have denied they asked for the script.

All they wanted, said spokesman George Wainborn, was to look at the show's lineup.

The reasons for seeing the lineup, says Wainborn, who is backed up in the argument by PNE general manager V. Ben Williams, are that during the 1954 show, with Labor Minister Lyle Wicks present, several unpleasant remarks were passed.

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

The way things are going in this election campaign, a man has to be mighty careful what he says, does, or (especially) writes.

Therefore, I am issuing a warning to my friends in the advertising business.

Dear friends in the advertising business: do not write anything which may be construed as supporting or condemning one or the other of the political parties.

Do not, for instance, write an advertisement which states your client offers a liberal trade-in allowance.

This can be interpreted by the courts as being prejudiced opinion, and, to say the least, you will wind up in jail for a long time.

It would be unwise, dear friends in the advertising business, to announce one of your clients has sold more widgets than any other widget manufacturer by, at a conservative estimate, 10,000 widgets.

The courts would be inclined to regard this as apt to influence the electorate, cause them to pre-judge the merits of candidates, and cause you, dear friends in the advertising business, to be dunked in Finlayson's Arm (1,000 scenic feet below the Malahat Chalet. Adv.).

For the time being at least, dear friends etc. you would be well advised to stay away from co-operative advertising.

Even in regard to labor-saving devices, no matter how popular they are through the commonwealth. It would be so easy to have your names Strachan from the record.

And as for references to easy credit terms, 24 years to pay—need I point out the pitfalls, dear friends in the advertising business?

Your polished prose would likely be misinterpreted as a reference to credit used for social purposes, and you could well be marched to the wall by a firing squad with Bennett's at the ready.

To sum up, dear friends in the advertising business—and if you think I am being too liberal with advice, or laboring the point, give me credit for a conservative summation—don't sue us, we'll sue you.

Or, as the lawyer said to his pal as they left the bar: "I'll be suing you in all the old familiar places."

SHIRLEY FRAYN

LIKES DUTCH TOO

London Tops With City Girl

Men's and ladies' groups of the Esquimalt Salvation Army Citadel completed last spring to "send Shirley to London."

The ladies raised the most money, so they were treated to a social evening, and Shirley Frayn, daughter of the Citadel's Senior Captain, Cyril Frayn, got her trip.

The young teenager returned this week following the Army's 12-day international corps cadets' congress in London.

RED BLAZERS

Close to 100 corps cadets from all parts of the world attended to celebrate the corps' 60th anniversary. Shirley was among eight delegates from B.C., and 68 from other parts of Canada. All B.C. "Sally Anns" wore red blazers with a B.C. crest, presented to the group in Vancouver by Mayor Fred Hume.

An 18-year-old youth who admitted driving a car without adequate fenders, emergency brake, windshield wipers and horn, was fined a total of $20 in city police court today and lost his driver's licence for one month.

Robert J. Watt, 948 Hillside, also was severely reprimanded by Magistrate A. I. Thomas for his conduct.

Edward O. Stauffer, 60, former security supervisor for the department of national defence at Esquimalt, died Wednesday in Toronto.

Mr. Stauffer worked at the Esquimalt base for four years after retiring in 1945 from the Oshawa police force.

Spectators will line Willows beach on Labor Day, Monday, Sept. 3, for the annual Victoria Inboard-Outboard Association regatta which this year has drawn 40 entries from throughout the Island and the mainland.

There will be 16 races, starting at 1:30 p.m. Events are expected to wind up about 4:30 p.m.

Oak Bay Council is sponsoring the regatta in connection with the municipality's golden jubilee.

VIOA started activities in 1934 and have held yearly regattas since, excepting four years in wartime.

Funeral Saturday For Upcoast Drowning Victim

Funeral service for 16-year-old Merritt Station of Latoria road, drowned Saturday while working upcoast as an assistant surveyor with a B.C. Forest Service party, will be held Saturday.

The service will be held at St. Richard's Church, Langford, at 10 a.m. Rev. Father Estok will officiate.

The boy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Staton, Latoria road.

His body was recovered Tuesday from the Chuckwalla River in the mountainous Rivers Inlet area on the mainland, 50 miles north of the northern tip of Vancouver Island.

View Royal Set To Fight Water Rate Hike

'Not Justified' Says Official

View Royal and other rural residents will strongly oppose any move by the Greater Victoria Water District to boost their rates 35 to 40 per cent more for water.

This is the reaction of householders to an announcement made by water commissioner J. D. Lachlan Tuesday that the Water Board will apply to the Public Utilities Commission for permission to increase the water rates in rural areas.

The new rates would only affect homes situated outside the four municipalities of Greater Victoria, he explained.

He said the water district is seeking increased rates because the cost of servicing had risen steadily over a period of years.

"The rates we are asking for may sound like a fair wallop," he stated, "but it would be the first boost in rural areas in 24 years."

Costs of materials and labor have nearly doubled in that period, he said.

Persons objecting to the revision of rates, he said, will have until Sept. 12 to register their objections with the PUC at 620 View Street.

STROG FIGHT

W. Maude-Moore, president of the View Royal Community Association, said the proposed rate hike is not justified and will be strongly opposed.

Duncan McTavish, former city alderman and a View Royal resident, said the water district seemed to be seeking to force rural householders to subsidize areas which are not serviced with water.

"Saanich makes a big profit from its water," he said. "It uses the profits for the extension of the water supply to outlying districts."

Mr. McTavish said if Saanich residents are willing to subsidize other areas in the municipality that was their affair, but View Royal should not be forced to do the same.

Victoria's Lack Of Trailer Parks Brings Criticism

Victoria is criticized for its lack of trailer parks in a feature article written by "Trail-Trip" for the magazine "Trail-R-News" which caters to thousands of owners of trailers throughout the United States.

Otherwise the U.S. writer praises Victoria for its gardens and stately homes and urges "road-gypsies" to visit the city.

Mr. Tripp who visited the city recently, writes that Victoria has no trailer parks that Americans would call "parks" by their standards.

"The trailer idea has not caught on up there just yet, and such 'parks' as one finds are operated more or less as a side line to a motel," he said.

He added: "They are not landscaped and are not attractive. An attitude of casualness or indifference, seems to hover about them."

The writer's impressions of the city proves that U.S. tourists see things of interest which the average Victorian does not consider worthwhile advertising.

For instance, he raps Victorians for not publicizing Craigdarroch Castle and Hatley Park.

In addition, he writes that one of the most interesting things he saw were the many little roadside stalls or stands selling jams and jellies, in Saanich.

Tuna Industry Re-Birth Indicated by V.I. Catch

Fisheries Boat Ordered To Investigate Reports

Re-birth of B.C.'s $2,000,000 tuna fishing industry is a distinct possibility today as the federal fisheries vessel Kitimat speeds from Victoria to the West Coast to investigate reports of tuna strikes.

The Vancouver fishboat Anchor M III reported catches of 200 tuna Tuesday and 100 Wednesday off Estevan Point on the west coast south of Nootka Sound, 150 miles northwest of Victoria.

No tuna have been caught off the B.C. coast since 1950. That year showed a sharp decline over the record $2,000,000 catch in 1949.

SPECIAL PATROL

The Kitimat was ordered out on a special patrol today to check on the Anchor M III report. The fishboat is still out on the grounds.

Possibility that this may be the beginning of a profitable tuna run is strengthened by reports from Astoria, Ore., of a single boat catch of 300 tuna on Tuesday. The Oregon coast has also been minus tuna for several years.

Why the run disappeared is an unknown factor. Each year fisheries patrol vessels test the grounds, which run as much as 150 miles offshore.

The Kitimat returned from a patrol last week with encouraging reports of conditions suitable for tuna, but without having sighted or caught a fish.

12-20 POUNDS

Tuna caught off the B.C. coast average about 12 pounds, although some run to 20 pounds or more. In past years, they were frozen at storage plants here and in Vancouver, then shipped to canneries in the U.S.

Biggest demand for tinned tuna fish is in the United States. At one time, about 70 tuna boats fished out of Victoria.

ELECTION NOTES

Progressive Conservative candidates for Victoria will be nominated at a meeting in Lougheed's banquet hall, Douglas Street, next Monday at 8 p.m.

An election committee has been formed to plan a campaign.

Frank Snowsill, CCF standard bearer for Saanich, is making a house to house canvass in the Deep Cove area today.

Saanich Liberals will nominate their candidate Friday evening at 8 at Liberal headquarters, Government Street.

Mount Tolmie Development Gets Go-Ahead

Parking Area For 25 Cars

Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee today authorized Saanich's engineering department to go ahead with development of Mount Tolmie's proposed new scenic view car parking area.

The development will tie in with establishment of a new observation point there, and landscaping. Cost, $3,000, has already been earmarked by the committee for initial work.

Plans prepared by city architect Roderick Clark, on a voluntary basis as a Chamber of Commerce member, call for a parking place to handle 25 cars.

Levels have been established for blasting, he said, and one-third of the total cost would be spent on the parking area and paving. Total cost is expected to be approximately $10,000.

COMMON

Mr. Clark said the much-talked-about glacier markings on Mount Tolmie were common to this area—"Victoria has thousands"—and about one-half of those on the mountain would be cut off by blasting to establish the larger parking area.

Committee member, Ald. Robert Macmillan, said: "I'm not convinced Mount Tolmie is the place to spend money."

He suggested Mount Douglas, and intimated that there might be trouble from residents on Mount Tolmie if developments went ahead.

William A. Bayliss, spokesman for Mount Tolmie residents, said the majority there favored development, as long as there was no "honky-tonk" approach.

"An increased parking area is definitely required," he said.

MARRIED AT WASHINGTON FAIR

Wedding Contest Winners Honeymoon Here Sept. 3

A young Tacoma couple who "just didn't have the money to be married" will be here for three days starting Sept. 3 at the Empress Hotel—very much married.

Joyce Allen, 17, and Gerald Walden, 18, were chosen as winners of the Monroe Fair wedding contest, and they've received about $2,000 in gifts from Washington State businessmen, plus the wedding trip here.

They'll be married Sept. 2 at the fair.

The young couple competed with many other twosomes who had applied for assistance to the fair contest in a marriage contest with awards, based on "worthwhileness," of the engaged couples.

Walden is a short-haul navy vet; she's an adopted daughter.

"Gerald and I are very much in love," said pretty Joyce.

Half-Day Closing Tested

Court Rules Against Store

An attempt to defeat Victoria's "confusing" Wednesday store closing legislation was unsuccessful in city police court today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fitzgerald, operator of The Quest for Handicrafts store at 607 Fort, was fined a nominal $10 for violating the provincial Shops Closing Act.

Counsel Edwin E. Pearlman sought dismissal of the charge on the grounds the prosecution had not proved existence of a city by-law as required by the act.

He described the original Act of 1916 and subsequent amendments allowing exemptions as a "hodge-podge."

City clerk Frank Hunter testified for the prosecution that a 1918 referendum approved changing the half-day closing from Saturday to Wednesday by a margin of 1609 to 1459.

NO BY-LAW

Mr. Pearlman contended the record of this referendum did not prove existence of a by-law ordering half-day closing for stores. The provincial statute required individual municipalities to establish the closing day, he said.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas said he had "no doubt" there had been a violation of the statute in this case.

The charge was laid when a plainclothes policeman purchased a man's tie in the shop at 3 p.m. Wednesday, July 18.

Mr. Pearlman said the tie, made by disabled weavers in Canada, could be construed as a souvenir, which may be sold on Wednesday afternoons.

Forest Probe Conclusion Seen Today

After more than 18 months, hearings on British Columbia's forest industry are expected to conclude this afternoon at the courthouse here.

Last witness to be heard will be L. L. G. Bently, vice-president of Canadian Forest Products.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan will then proceed with his study of the monumental report.

Witnesses before the commission today agreed that clause 30 of the forest management legislation should be re-written, Mr. Sloan said.

Clause 30 provides for small loggers to have access to 30 per cent of the timber cut in management licence areas.

"If there is any unanimity in this inquiry it seems to be that clause 30 should be re-written," the chief justice said.

He was commenting on submissions made in rebuttal today by Ian Barclay for Columbia Cellulose Co.

False Pretences Charge Brings Two-Year Term

A two-year prison term in Oakalla was imposed by Magistrate A. I. Thomas in city police court today on Christopher Kately, convicted of false pretences.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said Kately had an "extensive" criminal record and read off a number of charges over the last 10 years including breaking and entering and robbery with violence.

Kately admitted obtaining $98 of paint from Mount-Grant Ltd. by false pretences.

Court was told he obtained the paint by charging it in the name of the landlady of his rooming house.

the yard and sew in at the division of each tier of your prettiest crinoline. Skirts and frothy formal will be bouffant and fashionable with no effort, and with no extra bother. A yard of the hoop boning costs 25 cents.

When guests arrive at your house, do you sometimes find that the youngsters are forced to sit on the floor or on hard chairs. If they like to sit on the floor it's fine, but if not, you'll be wise to look at the handy "milking stools" that can be bought for just $1.69.

These three-legged stools are just the right size for little children, and fit easily into a corner or cupboard. As footstools, they also are practical. Light colored wood, they can be painted to match room decor. In the children's rooms they would be just the right size and material.

It's almost back-to-school time, so grade school and high school boys and girls will be looking around for novelty items to make carrying books and pencils so much easier! A three-ring pencil case that will fit in the looseleaf case has a clear-view pocket kept closed by a zipper top. Black, red, brown or tan plastic is available to match or contrast looseleaf binders. These handy pockets are just 59 cents.

You who love Dresden china will be pleased to know that there has been a wonderful new shipment of ornate Dresden dishes, candlesticks, platters and figurines in a downtown store.

Call me at 2-3131 and I'll tell you where I saw the items mentioned in today's column.

Here's How to Kill Two Bulges With One Exercise

Today exercises are streamlined. Women used to go through many laborious, ineffective and rapid exercises and then wonder why they did not get the results they craved. Today a few highly effective motions, when indulged in for 20 or 30 minutes each day, will improve the figure remarkably.

Some exercises are especially effective in slimming a couple of figure faults. With each motion you kill two bulges. What more could you ask? I call these my combination exercises.

The following exercise is effective in reducing the thighs and the abdomen: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms out at your sides (resting on the floor) and your legs straight. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. As you stretch the legs, separate them and lower them to the floor as far apart as comfortable. Drag the legs together (not lifting the heels from the floor). Bend and continue. If you have sacroiliac trouble you should not try this exercise, or should be very careful when you do.

This exercise slims the abdomen, waist and hips. Lie on the floor on your back, with your legs straight and your arms stretched out on the floor extending straight from your shoulders. Palms cling to the floor. Lift your left leg up as far as comfortable with a stiff knee. Cross the left leg over the right and touch the floor on the right side of the body with the left foot. Lift the left leg up and then return it to place on the floor. This time lift the right leg up as far as comfortable, cross it over the left leg and touch the floor on the left side of your body with your right foot. Continue, alternating left and right.

Do all of your exercises with rhythm, in a smooth way, not jerkily. Also beware of doing them too rapidly. Take time for the stretch.

If you would like to have my combination exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 5 "Combination Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Autumn News In Paris

Jet! Not airplanes, but jewelry. Five or seven rows of jet for the newest necklaces (Dior); jet again for trimmings on black suits (Jean Patou); and again on a wonderful black velvet shawl-hat (Albony) inspired by the Saxe statues. For hats! Everyone's talking about them and everyone will be wearing them: high, Russian-ballet style, done up in fox, beaver, velvet, panther or colored Persian lamb, etc. (Balmain and most of the others). Blouses! They are most certainly here to stay. Under the loosely-fitted jacket of a thick autumn suit, you'll find a slim jersey blouse (Balmain), a wispy chiffon one (Dior), an elegant velvet one (Jacques Heim), a brilliant satin one (Madeleine de Rauch).

Ribbons! For wide satin belts on narrow frocks, Empire line (Patou); for bows and all sorts of trimmings (Dior). Perfume! Modiste Claude Saint-Cyr (who has H.M. Queen Elizabeth II and many of the court ladies) sought inspiration in a bottle of perfume. The hat she designed is swathed with apple-green crepe de chine and matching tulle: the effect is just as silky and feminine as the perfume which inspired the model: "Crepe de Chine," by F. Millot.

Wedding in Port Alberni Of Interest in Victoria

In St. Alban's Church, Port Alberni, Rev. G. H. Greenhalgh solemnized the exchange of vows and rings made by Miss Cora May Manton and Mr. Arthur Norman Skipsey in a recent early afternoon ceremony.

Pink and white gladioli formed the altar setting, and windows were decorated with vases of sweet peas, snapdragons and other summer blossoms for the wedding, during which organist, Mrs. Ken Hutcheson, accompanied the congregation who sang, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

The bride, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Manton of Victoria, was given in marriage by her brother, J. Manton. An afternoon-length dress of imported white Swiss eyelet with full skirt gathered daintily with a scalloped lowered waistline was worn by the bride. The bodice of her gown was fitted in princess style with tapered elbow-length sleeves and soft Peter Pan collar. A close-fitting hat covered with tiny white blossoms complemented her dress. She carried a white satin-bound Bible touched with a waterfall bouquet of roses, white heather and stephanotis, and also had a lace-edged handkerchief which had been carried by the groom's mother on her wedding day.

Miss Muriel Jones was bridesmaid, and wore a dusky pink gown of imported Swiss eyelet styled similarly to the bridal gown. She chose matching pink shoes and a close-fitting hat covered with tiny pink blossoms.

Rumors Stop Women's Work

LONDON (Reuters)—Four British women have quit their jobs at clinics in Jordan because of rumors they were poisoning hundreds of Arab children. The women have been running clinics in Moslem villages around Hebron, 30 miles south of Jerusalem, for the Save the Children fund.

After the rumors of poisoning were fanned by anti-British feeling over the Suez crisis, British consul William Wilson suggested the women resign and demanded a Jordan government inquiry into the allegations.

A slight outbreak of illness among a few boys is reported to have begun rumors in Arabic newspapers that the women had poisoned them. The suggestions were described here Wednesday as "scandalous and totally untrue" by a representative of the Save the Children fund.

honey-moon trip to Vancouver and the interior of British Columbia. The new Mrs. Skipsey chose a white linen suit with white linen shoes to match, a navy blue hat and bag and white gloves for her travelling outfit.

Mr. and Mrs. Skipsey will make their home on Faber road, Sproat Lake, B.C.

Victorian in England Finds Snow, Hail in May

Now home in Victoria after a two-year stay in England is 23-year-old Miss Joyce Watkins, of 4053 Torquay drive. She has been working as a secretary in the apprentice department of BSA, in Birmingham.

The purpose of her long "working holiday" was to see as much as possible of Britain and Europe, and she has travelled extensively in her spare time. Birmingham, she found, was a complete contrast to Victoria, for although the city covers about the same area as this city, it has a population of 1½ million. Joyce was fascinated by the crowded streets and what she frankly calls "the cramped quarters."

Although she was overseas two years, Joyce still feels she has only "scratched the surface." She describes England as "a little country but with so much to see" and she says that when she visited western Europe last summer she only "touched the highlights."

This young Canadian was rather taken aback by the notorious English climate, for she was unlucky enough to experience snow and hail in May, at the start of a typical British "summer." After that, she tried with great determination to wear her English friends away from their traditional open coal fires to the comfort of central heating.

Joyce returned to Canada on the RMS Loch Gowan, by way of the Panama Canal. It docked in Vancouver on the weekend and the young traveller immediately left for the Gordon

Joyce Watkins

Head home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Watkins. Before she left the BSA offices in Birmingham for the last time, Joyce was presented with a number of gifts by her colleagues, with whom she was very popular. "I've enjoyed every minute of my stay over here," she says, "and I hated to leave—but there are so many other places yet to see."

Once Shipwrecked Missionary Now To Go by Plane

LANSDOWNE, Ont. (CP)—After two years as dean of women at the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College at Peterborough, Mrs. Marion Parkinson is returning to her former job as a missionary in the West Indies.

Mrs. Parkinson spent 12 years as a missionary in Trinidad and leaves this month for a new post on Antigua in the Leeward Islands. She and her husband, the late Rev. R. A. Parkinson, were on their way to missionary work in Trinidad in 1941 when their ship was torpedoed. Mrs. Parkinson was one of the 75 survivors, but her husband was lost.

Recently, she decided to return to field work and took a refresher course. This time she will fly to take up her new duties.

ACCEPTANCE SPEECHES WIND UP GOP CONVENTION

PLAYWRIGHTS' MECCA? The day is growing nearer when top dramatists will write regularly for TV in the opinion of Mort Abrahams, executive producer of NBC-TV's "Producer's Showcase".

As quoted by NEA's Dick Kleiner, Abrahams figures that within a few years playwrights like Tennessee Williams and William Inge will be writing originals for TV.
"For one thing," he says, "the 90-minute show allows for greater plot and character development. Ninety minutes is not too much shorter than the two-hours of a Broadway play."

There is also a financial consideration. A play on TV has a guaranteed sum which is usually pretty hefty.
Broadway is always a gamble.

AND, LASTLY, Abrahams thinks that TV is becoming more adult and that the great playwrights need not fear that they will be confined to innocuous themes if they write for TV.

"Proof of that," Abrahams says, "is that NBC has accepted the idea of doing the Greek comedy, 'Lysistrata', on 'Showcase' though, of course, they are reserving the right to limit the treatment."

The theme of "Lysistrata" is that the women refuse to have any relations with men until the men promise to make no more war. It's a far cry from "Life With Riley," observes Kleiner.

And so it is.

MARILYN WINS! BREAKS ALL RECORDS

WE LOVE YOU MARILYN!

Nothing Like It Ever Seen Here

"Nothing like it was ever seen here before."

The whole Clover Point area is jammed with cars—cars full of people with radios blaring, double-parked all down Dallas Road.

"They're still coming—I figure there are 40,000 of them in the immediate vicinity. But they are strung out all along the waterfront."

This was how a veteran reporter described by telephone the scene at Clover Point as the Marilyn Bell triumphant flotilla headed in for shore.

Every description of vehicle was on hand, he said. Taxis were dumping passengers wherever they could and trying to hurry back downtown to get more.

Whole families were present with babies in arms, and some parties were trying to find places to sit to eat a hastily-collected picnic supper.

Every street on the approach to the waterfront near Clover Point was black with automobiles and pedestrians scurrying to greet Canada's champion woman marathon swimmer at the conclusion of her unprecedented feat.

Even as the crowds continued to pour in, it appeared as though the swimmer and ships were swinging toward Ross Bay and signs were seen that some in the huge crowd of at least 40,000 were getting ready to attempt a move in that direction.

"They're still coming and I don't see any end to it," was the reporter's closing message. "It's like a crowd jamming a huge football stadium that is already overcrowded."

Parked in a police car where they could move in any necessary direction were acting Mayor William Pinfold, to give Marilyn an official civic welcome—Ald. Austen Curtis and City Manager C. C. Wyatt.

A radio commentator described the crowds on shore, as seen from the sea, "like seagulls crowding one of our rocky islets."

Meanwhile at sea the original swim flotilla of six boats had been increased to 25 boats, as large and small ones headed out from Victoria to greet her.

SEEMED DOUBTFUL

Finish Made Up for Start

Marilyn Bell added another jewel to her athletic crown today with a swim which started in an aura of doubt—very real doubt, caused, not by her abilities or mental attitude, but by treacherous weather conditions.

It frankly did not seem possible, at the start of the swim, to expect a successful conclusion.

The start was seen by a handful of people, the finish by thousands.

The swim started on the understanding it would be a practice work-out if weather kicked up the strait too severely.

On the Port Angeles side, the sea was calm. But in mid-strait and in the Victoria shore the sea was kicking high wide and handsome when Marilyn started out. Two-foot whitecaps were dancing in the sunlight.

Navigator Cavin decided to go ahead after studying weather reports. He hoped for winds to die down and the sea to flatten.

One reason for the decision was the obvious healthy mental attitude on the part of Marilyn. Ryder had reservations at the start. He had no intention of keeping the young swimming star in the water if conditions became too tough, and was going to have her taken out to save her strength for another day.

But, from the first few hundred yards, Marilyn showed her coach she was in far better shape than on her previous attempt.

Sitting thoughtfully in the coach boats, his eyes watching Marilyn's powerful flutter-kick and easy arm motion, Gus muttered "she's way better than last time. There's no comparison."

Those in the swim party who crossed from Victoria to Port Angeles in the pre-dawn hours weren't very hopeful for success. They travelled over in Island Champion, slowed to swimming speed by two 80 foot boom logs towed behind. It was, to put it mildly, rough. And more than one passenger lost a breakfast which had yet to be eaten.

The weather office, too, was pessimistic, holding little hope for a break in the weather.

In fact, all signs pointed to a two-or-three-hour practice swim under actual strait conditions.

All signs, of course, were wrong. At the beginning of the swim, Marilyn stroked at 54 to the minute, gradually easing up to 58. "I want her to start slowly, see how her tummy takes this rough water," Gus commented.

Progress at first was slow. Marilyn started on an ebb tide, which drifted her westward as she swam in a northerly direction. At 10:15 a.m., 45 minutes after the take off, she had covered one and one half miles from her starting point, but not directly north.

At 10:30 a.m., she had her first feeding. Emulating Cliff Lumsdon on his successful Victoria-Port Angeles crossing of last week, she gulped it down hurriedly, went back to swimming in less than a minute.

Strategy was not only to avoid wasted time, but to cut down effect of cold while not moving in the water.

Visibility at this time was about 10 to 12 miles, and seemed to have a cheering effect on Marilyn—who, in fact, had been in high spirits from the moment she put foot on the take-off beach.

At 10:45 a.m. she was 2½ miles from Ediz Hook, in F10 on the Times' swim map. Just off the hook, she was seized by a tide rip which Capt. Cavin didn't like, but worked her way out of it.

The heavy ground swell which rolled the accompanying craft—and, of course, Marilyn—eased off to a deep ripple. Capt. Cavin, who had started to hold to a northerly course, now made north by west.

The indications from mid-strait were still ominous. A B.C. Air Lines pilot flying films to The Times reported a bank of fog in the middle of the strait, and white caps on both side of it.

Marilyn stroked on, accompanied by a flotilla of six craft—tiny compared to the armada which followed her on her first attempt, Aug. 10.

By 11 a.m., she had settled into a 62-stroke pace, was in high good spirits, while those aboard the boats still had the feeling the swim was foredoomed to failure.

At 11:42 p.m. the Times received an urgent flash from CKDA's Chatham Chief. Said reporter Denny Boyd, "Things don't look too well. The water is getting rougher and the wind is getting stronger."

Marilyn Bell's spirit and her swimming style were getting stronger, too.

From then until 12:30 p.m. the west wind blew fitfully, sometimes dying down to two or three miles an hour, giving

Defeats Heavy Sea to Victory Over Strait

Marilyn Bell conquered Juan de Fuca strait tonight, broke all previous records and put a new glitter on her crown as "the swimming sweetheart of Canada."

The plucky 18-year-old Toronto girl who was beaten in her first strait try on Aug. 10, swam ashore on the Victoria waterfront at 8:10 p.m. just east of Horseshoe Bay.

She was greeted by thunderous cheers from crowds that had gathered two hours before she landed and pulled and prayed for her as she went through the last agonizing miles in choppy seas.

A huge bonfire greeted her. Her time of 10 hours and 40 minutes was far ahead of the crossings of the full strait made by Bert Thomas in July 1955 and by Marilyn's team-mate Cliff Lumsdon last Friday.

Thomas did it in 11 hours 17 minutes and Lumsdon in 11 hours 35 minutes.

Fully Vindicated Herself

In making her epic crossing she fully vindicated herself for the defeat she suffered on Aug. 10, after which she admitted herself she "did not feel right."

And she also vindicated her famed coach Gus Ryder who was criticized in some quarters over her first swim for not taking her out of the water earlier.

Her victory and record breaking time was all the more remarkable because she swam against such terrific conditions, conditions which have defeated many other swimmers.

Within a couple of hours after she started from Ediz Hook at 9:30 a.m., she had fought chop and wind. At times the wind subsided, then came up again.

And with only two miles to go to the waterfront she ran into the worst seas ever, with white-caps breaking, her body rising and falling several feet with each stroke of her arms.

She was dead tired and she stopped more often for feedings as she neared the Victoria shore. But she kept going, under the gentle urging of Gus Ryder.

"Go, Go, Go" Wires Lumsdon

What heartened her shortly before 6 p.m. was a telegram saying "Go, Go, Go." It was the swim slogan of her swim mate Cliff Lumsdon, now back in Toronto, and was signed "The Chief," her nickname for him.

Marilyn's victory gave a clean sweep for the Toronto swim team under Ryder.

Lumsdon had conquered the frigid channel from north to south, the first and only person to do so. Marilyn completed the sweep by doing it from south to north.

And Gus Ryder, who has been suffering painful boils on his shoulder for the last two weeks, was probably the happiest man on the whole swim fleet.

Hours before Marilyn had even got close to shore the cars and people started to line up along the entire waterfront. There was sunshine but the brisk south wind continued to blow and whip the water into white caps.

It was a great tribute to the way Marilyn had captured the hearts of Victorians.

Marilyn a chance to make progress. Later, the wind hauled around to the South South West, and, despite the waves, it aided her final progress.

At 12:40 p.m., she was five miles from Race Rocks. "I'd like to see her a little farther north," said Capt. Cavin, "but I think she'll be all right to go into Victoria on the flood tide."

With Marilyn was the psychological advantage of seeing both sides of the strait—Port Angeles mill chimneys behind her, Race Rocks ahead. The early morning fog in mid-strait had lifted, although there was a slight haze over the shore lines.

At 4 p.m., she was about two miles east of William Head, still methodically stroking along at 60-62 to the minute.

At 4:30 p.m.—4½ miles to go. Tension mounted to the breaking-point, as observers wanted to say "she's home free" but were afraid to jinx her.

At 5 p.m.—directly east of Albert Head, plowing along with determination and hardly a break in her flawless swimming style.

Then Marilyn received a message from Cliff Lumsdon, by wire from Toronto, where he was following every second of the swim.

The wire said "Go go go Butch keep hustling love the Chief."

Transmitted to the Chatham Chief, the message went on Gus' blackboard—and Marilyn went, went, went.

Through rough, tough, cruelly cold water she went—until, tired but triumphant...

The world knows how the swim ended.

FEELING OF RESTRAINT
A feeling restrained, fingers crossed, optimism spread through the accompanying craft as the wind settled down behind Marilyn, the chop lessened

Egypt for the Indian plan which would recognize Egypt's right to own and control the canal but would set up an international body with advisory capacities only.

They said there was no point in considering the Indian plan because only four nations backed it.

EGYPT WARNED

Even as the conference adjourned, Britain was pressing its mid-Eastern military build-up. It also issued a stern warning to Egypt not to hold up British and French shipping in the strategic waterway.

In New York, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld disclosed he had cancelled a projected visit to Latin America because of the "present situation—the Middle East Suez and the situation generally."

OIL THREAT

In Paris the Egyptian embassy announced that Saudi Arabia had warned the United States that millions of dollars of U.S. oil installations would "go up in smoke" if the West tries to impose its Suez decision on Egypt by force.

London afternoon newspapers reported in banner headlines the Eden cabinet's determination to act if there's any slowdown in Anglo-French shipping in the Suez.

The British foreign office spokesman said the government had received cable reports of the Egyptian threat to delay British and French ships if western pilots quit.

He said this would be "a very grave matter" and "a serious discrimination against British shipping."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhbar reported that Russia has offered to supply Soviet pilots for the canal should some 300 British and French pilots resign.

CRACK UNITS LEAVE

Britain's fully mechanized Lifeguards, the senior regiment in the British Army, moved from its barracks at Windsor for a secret Mediterranean destination.

Hundreds of tanks, armored cars and trucks—all painted a yellowish-beige for desert warfare—continued to pour into the port of Plymouth where they have been arriving for several days.

Tomorrow's sermon from Cairo's Al Azhar mosque was published today. It will be broadcast to Moslems worldwide urging Arabs to take up arms and enlist for military training.

The sermon cites verses from the Koran and Mohammed's example for "general mobilization and national struggle."

If the Moslems were ever to launch a Jihad, or holy war, against the western powers it would be proclaimed at Al Azhar mosque. One was proclaimed during the 1948 war against Israel.

Announcement of the Friday sermon followed long conversations between Nasser and his military commanders.

At the same time, Kamal Ramzy Stino, Egyptian minister of supply, announced that Egypt had sufficient supplies and food stocks for six months. The supply committee yesterday reviewed the country's food position if faced by western blockade.

CCF CHALLENGE

Why Hide RCMP File On Sommers?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General R. W. Bonner was challenged Wednesday night to publicize before election day what the RCMP found about charges against former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers.

CCF leader Robert Strachan called on Mr. Bonner "to stand up and speak for the people of British Columbia" by making public the report.

His reference was to a report of Inspector Butler of the RCMP, recently superannuated. The inspector was assigned Feb. 9 by Mr. Bonner to investigate the photostatic documents of lawyer David Sturdy, on which accusations against the ex-minister have been based.

Mr. Strachan was addressing a CCF Burrard nominating convention here.

"This is a government which has promised to keep the people of British Columbia informed, and it's hiding behind a civil case."

"If the report which the RCMP made to Mr. Bonner indicates that Mr. Sommers is guilty, then it is no longer a civil case, it is a criminal case."

"The attorney-general would have no alternative but to act on it."

"If there is nothing in the RCMP report which incriminates Mr. Sommers, then it is Mr. Bonner's duty to tell that to the people of British Columbia."

Atlin Socreds Name Asselstine

VANCOUVER (CP)—W. J. Asselstine, provincial Liberal minister of mines, trade and industry from 1937 to 1941, has been named Social Credit candidate for Atlin in the September 19 provincial election. It was learned here. He has been a Social Credit party member for some time.

The riding, in the far northwest corner of the province, was represented in the last legislature by Frank Calder, CCF.

Helicopter Found

OTTAWA (CP)—A helicopter owned by Spartan Air Services Ltd., was found Wednesday in the Dawson Creek, B.C., area after being missing for two days.

Company officials in Ottawa said today the aircraft was damaged but the pilot, Frank Harley, of Ottawa, was not hurt.

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—The manager of last year's Amherst Ramblers of the Atlantic Coast Senior Hockey League said Wednesday Pierre Brillant, reported to have signed with Kamloops Elks of the Okanagan Senior League, is still the property of Ramblers.

LEGAL FOG REPLACES REAL THING

Lawsuits Over Doria-Stockholm Collision Could Run for Years

By GEORGE MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Legal fog is likely to hang over the Andrea Doria-Stockholm collision for some time years perhaps, marine law experts say.

There is no international machinery to settle legal questions or to determine guilt in collisions between ships of different nationalities on the high seas.

Many admiralty lawyers, however, take the view that the legal jigsaw puzzle was fitted together when the Italian line and Swedish American line, the ship operators involved, took their dispute into federal court at New York.

Some believe that once the case went before an American court, the chances lessened that Swedish or Italian courts would ever be called upon to consider it.

T. J. American courts are sitting in judgment because American interests claimed damage to persons and cargoes, and both steamship companies have assets in the U.S.

HOW BINDING?

But some experts ask: "How binding will be the limits of liability set by an American court on a Swedish or Italian tribunal?"

These limits are bound, according to U.S. statute, to the present $3,021,655 value of the surviving Stockholm, or in the case of the sunken Andrea Doria to $65 a gross ton or about $1,900,000 plus cargo value.

Ordinarily the ocean tragedy could not be investigated officially by U.S. authorities. The U.S. Coast Guard can only sift for evidence of error arising out of the operation of ships under the U.S. flag or in American territorial waters.

Rules exist to promote safety at sea—the 1948 international convention for safety at sea. However, international authority to guarantee compliance from ships operated on the high seas is nonexistent.

There are those who want the rule enforced by an international agency such as the World Court or the United Nations.

OPPOSES IDEA

But maritime interests in many places favor enforcement as now—on a purely national basis.

The rules are there. Ships should keep to their side of the sea lanes. They should operate at a safe, moderate speed in low visibility areas.

Nonetheless, ship collisions are not rare. The coast guard reported that in U.S. territorial waters in 1955 there were 244 collisions, involving 580 vessels, and that damage in each instance ran over $1,500.

Not unlike motorists involved in a highway collision, shipowners generally tend to claim it was "the other guy's fault" and that he should be made to pay damages for whatever harm is done.

In the present instance, the Swedish American line started the legal action by seeking exoneration for the Stockholm in federal court. At the same time the company asked that its liability be limited to the value of the ship, now undergoing a $995,000 repair job at a Brooklyn shipyard.

In turn, the Italian line has asked the court to declare the Andrea Doria blameless. It has filed a $25,000,000 claim for the sunken ship. It also has sought an unstated sum as "indemnity or contribution" from the Swedish line for all sums which the Italian line may be called upon to pay for deaths, injuries and losses arising from the disaster.

The Italian line likewise has sought to have the court limit its liability in suits brought against the line to $400,000.

A number of claims running into the tens of millions have been filed since the Andrea Doria went to her Atlantic grave south of Nantucket on July 26, about 11 hours after colliding with the Stockholm. About fifty persons

Sommers launched that court proceeding following statements made by the Vancouver lawyer last December, before the Sloan forestry commission, relating to Mr. Sommers' conduct as lands and forests minister.

LEGAL WARNING

Before Mr. Finlayson's Monday night speech, Alfred Bull, one of the former minister's legal advisers, had told the Progressive Conservative leader he would take contempt-of-court action if Mr. Finlayson made any reference to details involved in the slander suit.

However, Mr. Finlayson in his speech read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence. The Vancouver Herald and The Sun published quotations from the statement of defence next day. The Province carried lengthy excerpts from Mr. Finlayson's speech but did not mention the specific charges included in the statement.

The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative, also did not quote from the statement of defence. Subsequently it sought copies of both the statement of defence and the statement of claim filed earlier by Mr. Sommers in launching his slander action. Court officials said the statements were not available for publication at this time. Counsel for Mr. Sommers declined to permit publication of the statement of claim.

Mr. Sommers, nominated this week as Social Credit candidate to seek re-election in Roseland-Trail constituency, resigned his cabinet portfolio—but not his legislative seat—last Feb. 27.

He charged early this year that he was the victim of a conspiracy by a section of the forest industry and the Liberal party in British Columbia.

(Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for Mr. Sommers, was quoted in papers this morning as saying that further applications may be made in connection with the contempt writs.

"We have decided to leave the Victoria Daily Times for the moment," Mr. Bull was quoted as saying. The Times published the report of Mr. Finlayson's speech.)

filed on behalf of 78 shippers, consignees and underwriters.

Later, Judge Walsh named four well-known lawyers to serve as unpaid special masters to take a mass of pre-trial evidence beginning Sept. 10. The thousands of pages of testimony given by scores of witnesses before the special masters eventually will be used by Judge Walsh to fix blame for the accident.

From present indications, the U.S. court proceedings may be more extensive than the investigations planned by government authorities in Italy and Sweden. The Italian hearings begin shortly. The Swedish inquiry starts later.

Joe Smith, Myth, Miffs Joe Martin

Nixon's Sole Opponent Gets Sponsor Ejected From Republican Convention

By ED CREAGH
SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Joe Smith?

He's only a myth. But he landed the Republicans the biggest laugh of their convention Wednesday night. He gave the television audience an injection of wake-up juice, too.

There's one at every American political convention. Four years ago the Republicans had Marcelino Romany. He was the Puerto Rican delegate who broke up a lot of tension by demanding a poll of his three-member delegation.

This year Romany played it straight. He voted the Eisenhower-Nixon ticket. Then came Joe Smith—and the man behind him, "Terrible Terry" Carpenter.

EVERYBODY BUT TERRY Everything had been going fine up to that point. It was a wide-open convention. The door was wide open for everybody—except Vice-President Nixon—to disappear into the San Francisco fog.

Alabama yielded. Arkansas yielded. Everybody yielded except Carpenter.

It was obviously going to be Nixon for renomination. Then Nebraska's Terry Carpenter dug in his heels.

He once was a Democratic congressman. He changed parties. He has run for all sorts of offices, without success. He disapproves of Nixon.

DEFIANT DELEGATE So when the roll was called on Nixon the Nebraska delegation chairman, Mrs. George P. Abel, greeted her teeth and did her duty.

She told convention chairman Joseph W. Martin that there was a bit of a split in the Nebraska delegation: Nixon: 17. Joe Smith: 1.

"Joe who?" demanded Martin. Mrs. Abel didn't know who Joe Smith was, either. She said so, forcefully.

Martin furrowed his brow, considered the problem for a good five seconds, and told Carpenter, the defiant delegate from Nebraska:

"You take your Joe Smith and get out of here."

"LIKES TO GRANDSTAND" Carpenter, a stocky, 56-year-old businessman, took the hint. He got out, escorted by uniformed convention guards.

This is an open convention, though, so he soon marched back in.

He refused to vote on the first—and only—ballot for Nixon. He paged.

Relations Between Canada, U.S. Study For Media Chiefs

Times publisher Stuart Keate is one of about 50 prominent newspaper, radio, TV, magazine, film and theatre representatives from across the continent who will study the effect of mass communication media on Canada-U.S. relations at Rochester University, Aug. 29 and 30.

Purpose of the conference is to bring together each year American and Canadian leaders in various fields to discuss problems of mutual concern.

Attendance is by invitation and all discussion, apart from a special session on the closing day, will be off-the-record to enable free exchange of ideas and expression of frank opinion.

In charge of the conference will be Mason Wade, director of Canadian studies at the university and associate professor of history.

Official title of discussions is "The Communications of Canada and the United States."

TRAIL (CP) — Glen Clivdin, 18-year-old Trail pole vaulter, left here Wednesday for Hamilton, Ont., for the Canadian Olympic trials.

Although not an official member of the British Columbia team, Glen will be one of 16 B.C. athletes trying for a berth in the Canadian Olympic team.

Cowan Fifth

FARGO, N.D. (AP) — Gary Cowan of Kitchener, Ont., Wednesday shot a one-under-par 71 in his bid to win the international Jaycee junior golf championship for the second successive year.

The 17-year-old Canadian was in a fifth place tie at the end of the first title round of the tournament, two strokes back of George Stigger III of Henderson, Ky. The leader shot a scorching four-under-par 68.

Republicans Unanimous For Eisenhower, Nixon

By GEORGE KITCHEN
SAN FRANCISCO (OP)— President Eisenhower was due today to give his Republican party—and the American people—a re-dedication of his principles for four more years in the White House.

The party scheduled an afternoon visit to San Francisco's Cow Palace for the president to accept the Republican national convention's unanimous renomination of him as its presidential candidate for the November United States general election.

He will deliver before a great throng of delegates and other party supporters a formal acceptance speech which is expected to shape up as his first campaign address.

The convention went through the motions of selecting its election candidates Wednesday and, as was expected, gave an enthusiastic and unanimous endorsement to Eisenhower as its presidential nominee.

Then, with equal speed and no opposition to the president's nomination, it nominated Richard M. Nixon, Eisenhower's youthful vice-president.

In the long roll call of states on the first ballot—conducted by the convention chairman despite the fact that there was count.

Nixon, 43-year-old Californian who shared the party ticket with Eisenhower in 1952, coasted to renomination by the same count.

Eisenhower and Nixon

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY, AT its San Francisco convention, showed itself completely confident of victory, as the Democratic Party certainly is not. But that confidence is based on the personality of a single man.

So sure are the Republicans of Mr. Eisenhower's personal vote that they did not hesitate to renominate Mr. Nixon though knowing him to be a political liability. The President's coat tails, as the saying goes, should be long enough to carry Mr. Nixon but perhaps not to carry a Republican majority in the Congress.

The Republican convention applauded the party's record and approved a platform but its only real purpose was to make finally sure that Mr. Eisenhower ran again. Without him the party is two quarrelsome segments, almost certainly doomed to defeat. With him its unity may be artificial but its victory—provided his health remains sound—seems as sure as anything can be in politics. The President's health, indeed, was the only shadow over San Francisco and, as Mr. Stevenson has said with his usual chivalry, everyone hopes that the shadow has finally passed.

The Eisenhower of 1956 is not the Eisenhower of 1952. He has learned and unlearned much in that time. The professional soldier and amateur politician who beat the late Senator Taft for the nomination four years ago is now a professional politician and knows that politics is the most difficult of all professions. To lead an army, even the combined armies of the western world, is a simple business beside the leadership of a democracy.

Things have not turned out exactly as Mr. Eisenhower hoped in his days of political innocence. He has succeeded in many aspects of government. He has not succeeded yet in his original purpose of rebuilding the Republican Party and converting its Old Guard. He came to the San Francisco convention unchallenged as a man but his philosophy is still challenged within the party and the policies that he has vainly recommended to the Congress have been obstructed for the most part by his followers, not by the Democrats.

The two recent conventions confirm the thesis of a political historian writing in The New York Times—that the United States, ostensibly governed by a two-party system, actually maintains four parties.

The Democrats are divided between the New Dealers, heirs to Roosevelt, and the conservatives, mainly from the solid South, who are more conservative than the Eisenhower Republicans.

Both party leaders will gloss over these divisions in the campaign now beginning but they will remain and re-appear in the New Congress. In theory it will be dominated by the Republican or the Democratic Party; actually by an inter-party coalition as it has been since Roosevelt erected his odd but successful coalition of liberals and conservatives.

Mr. Eisenhower will campaign for a Republican Congress but if he succeeded he might well find that it was harder to work with than the present Democratic Congress. For by nature he is closer to the New Deal than to the Old Guard.

The personalities and the policies of the election are now settled, so far as conventions can settle them. In practical politics the personalities will be dominant.

This is to be primarily a contest between a popular President and a political philosopher. The President must carry his party to victory almost single-handed for it could not hope to win either the presidency or the Congress without him. Mr. Stevenson, on the other hand, has behind him a party which, for twenty years, represented a majority of the nation and was defeated only by Mr. Eisenhower's intervention.

The rival policies of the election are customarily vague; indeed, much more vague than usual. No clear-cut issue has emerged between the parties, no obvious alternatives as in the time of Roosevelt.

The Republicans will find it difficult to convince the people that everything is well in the nation; the Democrats to convince them that the nation is going to the dogs.

As usual the nation stands somewhere between those extremes and the President is probably unbeatable, even after two grave illnesses, because he also stands in that same position and reflects pretty accurately the nation's collective mind.

Self-Denying Ordinance

MR. BENNETT SAYS HE HAS little time for election politics. He intends to make few speeches and will remain in Victoria to conduct the public business. A laudable decision but somewhat late.

Only a few weeks ago Mr. Bennett found time to take his entire cabinet, except Mr. Chetwynd, to the Saskatchewan election and leave British Columbia with a one-man government in Victoria. Surely the people of this province are as much entitled as the people of Saskatchewan to hear the views of their premier.

But we may be sure that Mr. Bennett's self-denying ordinance will not be pushed too far. He may make few political speeches from the platform but he will make them several times a week at his press conferences.

For the last six months he has greeted newspaper correspondents with little but Social Credit propaganda and party advertisement. The newspapers have published these endless campaign documents not because they were necessarily accurate or even news, by the usual definition, but because people are entitled to hear anything the leader of their Government chooses to say, wise or unwise.

While accusing his critics of creating political instability, and thus precipitating an election, he has been electioneering without interruption in British Columbia and Saskatchewan, since last spring. Perhaps he feels that he has said enough already and that British Columbia, well indoctrinated, does not require the complete treatment applied to Saskatchewan.

It is to be hoped, however, that he will find a little time for this election, and that he may even appear on the platform to answer certain obvious questions now disturbing many voters.

The most obvious of all is why he called an election at all when, as he tells us every other day, the affairs of British Columbia are going along perfectly and no one is obstructing the best of all possible governments.

The Price of Size

AN INDICATION OF THE MAGNITUDE of the police job in New York City may be seen in recent reports on juvenile delinquency. Figures show that arrests of boys and girls in the metropolis increased 41 per cent in the first half of 1956, over the previous year.

Although part of this increase is attributed to stepped-up police activity, rather than stepped-up crime, the basic situation remains far from satisfactory.

On the other hand, juvenile gang warfare is said to have decreased as the result of "saturation" methods by the police—involving greatly intensified supervision of bars, grills and other licensed premises which are off limits to youths. In addition various agencies are at work to direct juvenile energies into athletic associations and other activities designed to keep youngsters off the streets.

Obviously this is a marathon effort; one, indeed, which can never end. Equally obviously it is a very expensive campaign, although such expenditures are preferable to the waste of lives and the loss of property which are inseparable from juvenile delinquency. Such problems seem to be an inherent part of life in a metropolis. Victorians can only be thankful that for the foreseeable future they will be immune.

Mission Accomplished

THREE FRENCH ADVENTURERS on the raft L'Egare have successfully crossed the Atlantic, borne along only by wind and ocean currents. The men, residents of Montreal prior to their unlikely undertaking, suffered considerably from storms and hunger, but apparently have survived without ill effects.

Just what such a journey proved it is difficult to say. The earlier and more famous trans-Pacific voyage of the Kōn-Tiki was designed to prove that inhabitants of the south sea islands could have had their origins in early raft voyagers from South America. L'Egare sailors naturally could not have had such a project in view. It would take more than a raft's wanderings to reverse the accepted flow of history.

However, they have proved that something could be done that had not been done before, and to that extent will reap as much human satisfaction as though they had solved one of the riddles of man's earthly distribution.

LOOSE ENDS

Men, Not Laws

We are hearing a lot about American political conventions these days but soon little will remain in the public memory but the four names of the rival presidential and vice-presidential candidates.

All but one of them will be forgotten within a generation at most and known only to students of history. Who remembers the unsuccessful candidates of twenty years ago? How many foreigners could identify Cox, Fairbanks, Knox, Curtis, Garner or Marshall (except for his immortal five-cent cigar)?

The Americans have good historic reasons for trusting conventions. It was in the various conventions of Philadelphia that the Republic was conceived and brought forth.

They have also a much greater faith than the British peoples in political theories, formulae and general declarations. It was from a certain Declaration that the nation sprang.

They rely much more than we do on legal constitutions, fixed machinery and unchanging contracts between the governors and the governed. Their system is founded on the principle of "laws, not men."

Yet there can have been few elections in the United States or any country where men were so important as they are today. The contest now under way involves many questions of law and policy but it is essentially a contest between two men, without whom neither party would have any hope of success.

The Republican Party would be swept from office but for the massive popularity of a single man who, well or ill, is regarded by his followers as indispensable. The Democratic Party's only chance, probably a small one, rests in the personality of a great philosopher of politics who, under the American system, must win a single election or retire, all his talents lost to the nation; whereas under our system he would remain in the legislature as leader of the opposition and no doubt come to office later on.

The primary purpose of a convention is to choose a party leader, a potential president. In that respect our system, in its beginning, differed completely from the American system. Until recent times, in all British countries, the public had no chance to choose a potential prime minister. The leaders of great parties were chosen not by conventions representing the local constituencies but by the members of the House of Commons.

As Bagehot says in his classic work on the British constitution, the supreme function of the House of Commons is to choose the prime minister. All other decisions, as he remarks, are subsidiary to that choice.

So the system remains in Britain but not in Canada. The House of Commons no longer chooses the prime minister. He is chosen at a party convention. Parliament cannot choose but can only dismiss him. We have adopted, in this respect, the system of our American neighbors. Whether it is a better system than the old one is a nice point.

Our early prime ministers were chosen by their followers in Parliament and the choice was usually sound. Mackenzie King was chosen at a convention, and without a convention he would not have been chosen. In that case the nation would have lost the largest political talent of his time.

On the other hand, the Conservative conventions, since the choice of R. B. Bennett, have been a very qualified success. The Conservatives in Parliament would not have chosen Mr. Bracken, for example, perhaps not Dr. Manion, and they would have been wiser than the conventions that nominated these gentlemen. Mr. Drew was chosen by a convention and while he is a great improvement on his immediate predecessors he still seems far from office.

The second purpose of a convention is to frame a policy, but the policy thus framed usually proves irrelevant shortly afterwards. Conventions seldom foresee the course of events even a few years or months ahead.

Looking back over American history, "Fortune" recently observed that the conventions of 1912 prepared for an era of human progress which Woodrow Wilson called the New Liberalism, and within two years the world had plunged into the first war.

The conventions of 1928 proclaimed the conquest of poverty and the arrival of the golden age. One year later came the great crash.

In 1932 the Democratic Party's platform called for economy, budget balancing and good old-fashioned economics. By the following spring the Democratic president had embarked on the deficit spending and Keynesian theories of the New Deal.

In 1940 both parties were firmly pledged to avoid the Second World War, which the nation entered only 15 months later.

It would be naive, therefore, to read too much into the current party platforms or the speeches of the candidates. To take one notable instance, we listened the other night to Mr. Harry Truman denouncing the evil of inflation, and in the next breath, attacking the Republican administration for raising interest rates, the most effective weapon against inflation. (Mr. Stevenson, it should be noted, was not guilty of this transparent nonsense.)

In the end little will depend, in the United States or Canada, on the platform declarations of any convention. Everything will depend on the men chosen to lead parties and the legislators elected with them.

No country really enjoys government of laws, not men. In human affairs the human being is still the decisive factor, and since human beings change their minds almost every day, no convention and no prophet can possibly foresee the future. A year hence, we may be sure, nearly everything said with such conviction this summer will look extremely queer.

As Our Readers See It

No Truck Nor Trade

Referring to your report on the Central Saanich fire truck controversy in our issue of Aug. 15.

This used truck was bought by me and entirely paid for with my personal funds in 1951. This was done to meet an urgent situation to secure this tank truck for fire fighting purposes in the then newly-formed Central Saanich municipality. Other prospective buyers were likely to buy it and used tank trucks were extremely scarce at that time.

Neither the municipality or anyone else has reimbursed me for the cash which I put up to buy this used tank truck.

The municipality has no evidence of actual ownership of this truck. It has no receipt or canceled cheque for the purchase of it. Also it has no valid document from me personally to support their present claim that I donated the truck to the municipality and that it is therefore now municipal property.

I made no such donation and it was never my intention to make such a large individual donation to the municipality.

My tank truck has given over five years' service to the municipality as a fire truck, without payment of rental, and it has never been included in the list of municipal assets.

When the present council recently decided to discard this No. 1 fire truck and replace it, I then asked to have my tank truck returned to me, after removal of all municipally owned assets, such as special tires, siren, lights, pumps, etc., as I wished to loan it to another fire department. Then the present contention arose as to its ownership.

The council have been advised by me that I was in no hurry to have my tank truck returned whilst it continues to be used as a fire-fighting unit by the municipality.

The council have also been advised by me that there is no sound reason why this matter cannot be settled in an amicable manner. This course would avoid costly law suits with the taxpayers footing the bill. It is hoped that the negotiations for an amicable settlement will be continued.

Cost of Virtue

In 1952, certain persons invaded this province from Alberta, seeking to establish themselves in the seat of government. They were not invited. The government then in office was not enmeshed in inefficiency and corruption. The economy of the province was not in a state of chaos or impoverishment.

Most of them lacked entirely experience in politics or the art of government. Because of supreme ego this did not deter them. Their sole purpose was personal aggrandizement, the establishment of a wider base for their particular political economic fiscal theories.

First they set themselves on a pedestal as a paragon of virtue, political morality, and Christian ethics. By implication they applied a wholesale smear to all and sundry then serving in public office.

Having assumed a place of prominent elevation, they are sensitive about anything that reflects, or may reflect on their virtuous role.

The premier voices pious platitudes about the Sommers vs. Sturdy case being "before the courts" . . . "sub judice." He will not discuss the matter. He is not so reticent about the things he believes he has to boast about. He will not discuss it for the sole reason that he wishes to deceive the people, keep certain knowledge from them, while he tries to persuade them to extend his term of office.

Mr. Sommers' legal counsel is concerned about conformity to legal procedure and restrictions in the interest of his client. He threatens action against anyone disclosing facts construed as being in "contempt of court."

What hypocrites! What is their record? What of the rights of the defendant?

We challenge this government with conduct unbefitting the representatives of Her Majesty in the provincial legislature.

People are justified in assuming that this government, with knowledge in its possession, has been sufficiently impressed with the seriousness of that knowledge to seek to extend their tenure of office, "hedge" their own political fortunes at all costs.

Speaking of costs, have not these political invaders caused more expense for elections, in a shorter period of time, than any other party in history?

High-Speed Finance

With reference to your "Velocity dollars" answer in your last Saturday's issue I hope that some correction and expansion, as given below, may be of help.

Aberhart, in 1935, believed that "velocity money" would help the depression situation then existing. He illustrated his ideas as follows:

"Four men were standing talking. A interrupted by saying to B, 'I have just remembered that I owe you ten dollars. Here's your money.' B said, 'That's opportune for I owe it to Mr. C.' He passed it on to D. D said, 'Well I owe it to you, A,' and passed it back. In this way four debts were squared and each man was in the same position that he occupied at the beginning."

Concerning the above, I might say that our Kiwanis Club experimented by paying debts by special marked cheques which would not be cashed by the banks for a month. The club reported the idea a flop. My personal experience was that of my two cheques one paid one additional indebtedness. The other was not reused.

Aberhart's "velocity money" consisted of $1 bills issued under his orders. As a government employee, I was advised that it would be wise to take part of my pay in this "funny money." I did so.

It was necessary to purchase very small one-cent stamps and stick one on each bill each week. Before the bill could be used it must bear a stamp for each week since its issue. The urge to get these bills off one's hands caused them to be called "velocity money."

As only certain of the stores would accept such currency, we often were left with the nuisance and expense of sticking on more and more stamps.

Thus in true "so-called sacred" style, where statements and promises are intended to serve only to hoodwink a supposedly gullible public, Mr. Aberhart, who had promised the people "interest-free money and a fair cost to live," was charging us 52 per cent per annum just to use his provincial currency.

Scientific

The word "science" is from the Latin "scire"—to know; and when on rare occasion a scientist rushes into print in defence of religion, it must not be taken to indicate a reconciliation of two diametrically opposite concepts of the universe.

Needless to say rational physicists, who are in the ascendancy everywhere today, express keen disapproval at the action of such a scholar in doing public honor to superstition.

Even today a scientist may work his heart out on some problem, the solution of which may be of inestimable benefit to mankind, and so far as the clergy are concerned he will likely be ignored. But let him once say that there is a god, or that evolution is only a theory and that the solution of all our problems is in prayer, and he will be lauded in pulpit, press and radio as one of the greatest scientists of our time, and his backslider testimony cited as proof that science and religion are no longer divorced.

Who Can Deny?

Will you please publish this as an open letter to those who, like several acquaintances of late have sort of boasted of having no religion?

"Who can deny that the universe was created for the sake of the human race, in order that from it an angelic heaven might be formed, wherein God might dwell in the dominion of His glory? To promote and accomplish this end, what mediate cause is there but religion? And what else is religion than walking with God?"

SWEDENBORGIAN.

Lumber Barons

May I comment on Mr. Snowsall's criticism of the lumber barons as a danger to our freedom which was recognized years before the CCF took up the battle, etc.

The first point to remember is that a small percentage of society own and control all the means and instruments of production, hence they legally own all the goods produced; on the other hand the great majority of the people own nothing but their labor power which they must sell to the former in order to live.

It should not be forgotten that capital and labor are both essential, one cannot exist without the other, and while labor applied to the natural resources produces all wealth, when the workers lift their wages on pay day, they have received the full value of the commodity labor power, hence they have no further claim whatsoever on the wealth produced.

What have the CCF this last twenty years or more done to remedy this constant accumulation of capital? Simply advocated state ownership of these various industries, which would ultimately bind the chains of slavery and regimentation more firmly on the Canadian workers than at present.

It is clear the reasoning powers of the CCF are very shallow in the economic field.

In refusing to recognize that the private ownership of the means of production is the cause of all our trouble they are not only anti-labor but also anti-socialist and should be treated as such on election day.

Responsible Beings

I am amazed that so many abusive letters have appeared in your paper and so few supporting Dean Whitlow's exposures of the Jehovah Witnesses' teaching.

Their followers, chiefly elderly women, used to call at intervals at my former home. I always told them, after reading their pamphlets, pleasantly but firmly that I believe God looks upon us as responsible beings and expects us to do all we can as citizens under His guidance, including defending our country. That Christ told us to "render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's."

British Schools

Your correspondent, K. Macdonald, may be a retired school principal from a Scottish school, but his letter reflects very little credit on his profession and since I also feel competent to speak on English education—through experience—may I correct the entirely false impression his letter will undoubtedly create.

Certainly the term "public school" is a misnomer in England, but that has nothing whatever to do with English elementary, secondary and grammar schools or their Scottish counterparts.

Why Mr. Macdonald should deliberately misrepresent conditions of English education by saying that what he rightly claims for Scotland does not apply to England, I cannot imagine.

The English student goes to a very similar elementary school as does the Scottish pupil and following on much the same examination continues in an equally good high school during the course of which he benefits from all the free services mentioned by Mr. Macdonald plus, where necessary, free clothing, lunches and transportation.

Bursaries are available to assist students to further their education in the excellent English universities.

I cannot conceive that your correspondent is ignorant of these facts and can be serious in his assertion that standards of education differ so much in England and Scotland, especially since he was a professional educationist.

Canadiana

I SUPPOSE I have a low taste in literature, but I'm a persistent reader of the big mail order catalogues. They strike me as such human volumes and such fascinating bits of Canadiana.

For nearly two decades now, we've bought enough from "the catalogue" to be on the mailing list for a new one every spring and fall.

I like the mental pictures they bring me, the pictures of other Canadians poring over the illustrated pages, adding up the prices, figuring out the freight on larger items, writing out the order, waiting for the parcel to come.

I know a ranch house in the Cariboo where the rancher and his wife spread the catalogue on the table beneath the hanging gasoline lamp.

I know an up-coast family where the father is a commercial fisherman. Each September when he comes home from the summer's fishing, they make out their list of winter needs.

I know a logging town where the people go down to the post office for their mail because there is no house-to-house delivery. On the day that the catalogue arrives, the general delivery pigeonholes are absolutely full of the familiar books.

I suppose that city folk who've never lived in little towns or isolated districts, just don't know what the catalogue means.

It's window shopping without tired feet, and price gauging the easy reliable way. It's little girls picking out their favorite dress, and admiring the pictured girls who wear them. "She's cute, isn't she?"

It's tiny children whose first picture book is very often the mail order catalogue. (No fooling. I know whereof I speak.)

It's gangling boys saving up for bikes and

skates and fancy sweaters in the colors of their favorite teams.

It's girls who are going to be married looking up the page with wedding dresses and bouquets of artificial flowers.

It's the young wife looking for a maternity dress. (And the moment she puts it on, every woman in the community will know her secret, along with the price of the dress, and the alternative styles she might have chosen.)

What a picture of our changing social mores. See how flappers and bread makers have disappeared. See how freezers and the extras you need with them now take up more space than old-fashioned canning.

Look, here are sad irons. Who remembers sad irons in these days? But some Canadian women are still using them. Here's that wife-killer, the washboard. Here's a handwinger as well as automatic washers. Here, shrunk to half a page, is horse harness for a farm team. Here's a hand pump for well or kitchen sink. (And what city child knows anything about priming a pump and working away at the handle before he can have a drink of cold, cold water?)

Here are pretty-pretties for young girls, and heavy corsets for stouter women. Here are stalwart males, forever smiling and forever warm in long-legged, heavy knit underwear. Here's all the paraphernalia for babies and their bottles. Here's almost everything for either sex from the cradle to the grave. And here's a special page introducing new Canadians to this country's ways and shopping habits.

"Neu Canadier," it says, "Schreiben sie an... in Ihrer eigenen Sprache."

"Nieuw Canadezen," it says, "Schrijf naar... in Uw eigen taal."

"Neo Canadesi," it says, "Scrivete ad... nella vostra lingua."

And finally, "Nowi Kanadyjczy, Piszcie do... waszym obcym jazyku."

Canadiana? I'll say it is. It's some of the most built-in-the-country literature we have.

Persons Always Tired

Dr. Alvarez is Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine Mayo Foundation.

Following the publication of my column on the persons who are always tired and cannot do as much work as they wish they could do, I have received interesting letters from good people all over who tell me that I described their case exactly. They are grateful for the article because it has helped them and their family to understand the situation and to adjust to it.

As one woman said, "As a child I was very nervous and sickly, but I always had a great drive and a zest for living. I would rather work to help people than to have fun myself. But I never had the physical strength or nerve force to enable me to do all I wanted to do. Finally, I learned that if I overdid my strength one day, I would have to pay it back the next day."

"Always I've been ashamed of my weakness, and some people have suspected I was coddling myself too much. This accusation always so distressed me that I tried hard to accomplish more, but I just couldn't do it. Finally, I learned to budget my strength, and then I was able to live more comfortably; I could enjoy life and could be much more useful. Now I am not ashamed when I have to give in and take a rest."

"What you said about heredity was true, many of my relatives for generations before me had poor nerves. Thanks to your article my family now has a much clearer understanding of my problem, and they are more willing than ever before to make allowances for me, and to help me. Fortunately, our doctor has always understood my problem as you do, and for this I love him."

CONGENITAL DISLOCATION OF THE HIP
Most persons must have noted those many many men and women who walk with a peculiar rolling gait due to the lack of a solid joint in the hips. For lack of this, with every step the body sinks two or three inches.

The trouble is due to a lack of proper development of the hip joint when the child is in his mother's womb.

The disease is seen more commonly in girls than in boys. It occurs in one out of 500 girls, and in one in every 2,000 or 3,000 boys. In about 40 per cent of the cases, both hips are involved.

According to the Dight Institute of the University of Minnesota, the defect is inherited as if due to what is called a dominant gene, which does not always produce the abnormality even when the parents carry it. Only about one in six of the children who might inherit the defect from an ancestor actually get it.

When a mother has a child with congenital dislocation of the hip she often wants to know what the chances are that another child born to her would have the defect. According to the Dight Institute, the chance would be about 17 per cent for a girl, and considerably less for a boy.

ACHONDROPLASTIC DWARFS
Achondroplastic dwarfs are easily recognized with their short arms and legs, their large head and their full-sized trunk. This condition is due to a defect in growth in the cartilages at the ends of some of the long bones. It appears to be transmitted through what is called a dominant gene, but there are puzzling cases in which the inheritance does not follow the "rule." It is transmitted from the affected parent to the offspring without skipping generations. When an achondroplastic child is born to normal parents it is thought to be due to what is called a mutation, or a sudden change of a normal gene to a defective one. This accident happens to about one in 44,000 of the population.

Parents of such children write asking me if there is any clinic to which they can take the child for treatment, and I have to answer sadly that I know of none. There is no known treatment for the disease. These dwarfs appear to be normal except for the lack of growth in their long bones. They are sturdy and long-lived. When they marry, their children usually show the defect.

Primulas to Benefit If Dug and Divided

If you have a shady garden, here is a job which may be done even while the weather is warm. Without some sort of shade, however, it will have to wait for an overcast day.

The polyanthus, thus primulas and auriculas have made a fair amount of growth during the summer if water was supplied. They will now benefit from being dug and divided.

There is really no difficulty about this job, but if a new site for them is being used, prepare it before digging the plants.

For the spring flowering season, polyanthus enjoys a sunny location; under tall deciduous (leaf-losing) trees is ideal, since shade for the summer months is an asset.

The soil should be well dug, and if clay predominates, work in as much compost as can be spared. Blue Whale or straight peat moss, or leaf mould are all good additions. A little coarse sand aids drainage in heavy soils.

Dig the plants, and separate each crown complete with its

Campney Leaves for Tour Of NATO Defence Forces

He said recently that NATO policy in Europe must be reviewed in respect to numbers of men and type of weapons to be employed. He also said any decision by Britain and the United States to withdraw forces from Europe would be "most unwise."

Mr. Campney will confer in Paris with representatives of NATO, be briefed in Bonn on the German defence situation and visit Canadian army bases in France and West Germany.

Farmers Would Beat Bennett, Says Snowsell

"If Premier Bennett depended on the farm vote he would have been out of office long ago," Frank Snowsell, CCF candidate for Saanich, told a campaign meeting at Sidney Wednesday night.

Mr. Snowsell said dairy farmers, faced by a hay shortage, had asked Agriculture Minister Kenneth Kiernan for financial assistance to buy hay.

"The minister tells them to get rid of their cows. I guess Mr. Kiernan has never read that verse in the Bible: 'They cry to you for bread and you give them a stone.'"

MILK PRICE UP

"Our dairy farmers follow Mr. Kiernan's advice, sell the cows and up goes the price of milk. But you can't just replace dairy cows on the spur of the moment."

"It takes years to establish a good dairy herd. So there is a shortage of pure, fresh milk. The dairies, as they are doing right now in Victoria, mix up powdered milk and add it to the fresh milk and sell us this adulterated mixture at fresh milk prices."

Mr. Snowsell said the CCF will establish, in co-operation with producer and consumer organizations, a planned co-operative marketing system which will ensure the maximum return to the producer at reasonable prices to the consumer.

EXTENSION DIRECTOR

Woods Plan Built B.C., Says Wismer

Gordon Wismer, QC, former B.C. attorney-general, told the Sloan Royal commission on forestry Wednesday forest management licence legislation passed after the 1954 report of Commissioner Gordon Sloan "has done more to strengthen and build the economy of British Columbia than any other statute from the earliest days."

"It has been directly responsible for capital investment amounting to more than $200,000,000, creating employment for thousands of our citizens," Mr. Wismer said.

Mr. Wismer, who is appearing as counsel for Forest Policy Development Association, charged Gordon Gibson, former Liberal MLA, with using the witness box of the Sloan commission as a forum for political attacks.

AIMED TO DISTURB

He said Mr. Gibson's submissions to the commission consisted largely of a "thinly disguised political attack designed to disturb and mislead the Commissioner and the people of British Columbia."

Mr. Wismer declared that when last June he attempted to challenge statements made by Mr. Gibson he had "run foul" of a ruling by Commissioner Sloan that such statements were inadmissible.

"I now find myself in the same position as I was at the outset," Mr. Wismer continued. "If I read any considerable part of Mr. Gibson's submission I have to use such words as 'tammany hall,' 'suspicion,' 'corruption,' 'political faction,' 'boys in the back room,' 'pressure politics,' and a host of other statements. . . ."

Victoria Daily Times THURSDAY, AUG. 23, 1956 7

Minesweeper Aids Hurt U.S. Seaman

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Royal Canadian Navy minesweeper brought badly injured seaman aboard the U.S. cable ship Albert J. Meyer, southbound off the coast of Vancouver Island.

Alsece Wore, 31, of Seattle, crushed when a cable drum toppled on him, was transferred to the minesweeper HMCS Oshawa which was to take him to Port Hardy. There an RCAF Dakota from Sea Island air base was waiting to fly him to Seattle. A doctor and nurse were to accompany him.

90 MILES OUT

The transfer took place 90 miles out to sea off Quatsino Sound, near the north end of Vancouver Island. Port Hardy is on the northern tip of the island.

Previous attempts to transfer Wore from the cable ship had failed. The Albert J. Meyer could not alter course or speed for fear of breaking a $15,000,000 cable it is laying south from Alaska.

It outran a Canadian fisheries boat. Heavy seas and rough weather prevented planes from picking up the injured man.

IT'S MY VIEW

BY

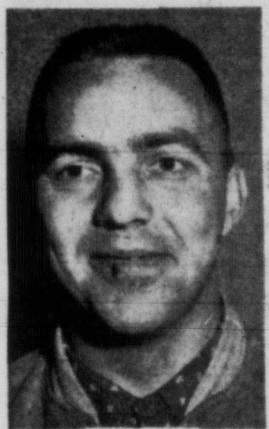

Bill Walker

You're a football fan, see, and you're from Victoria, and the thing you want most in life this fall is to see the Lions play.

But it's tough—the traveling, that is. You catch a boat in the afternoon and you have to take half the day off work to get there. You can take a plane and get there in time, but the coming home now is the stickler. . . . You can't catch the last plane, because the last plane home that night leaves too early.

So you have to take the boat home, and that makes it an expensive game, either way.

So you figure you got a beef. Well, we got a guy to listen. He's Art Ousman, of Trans-Canada Air Lines.

KEN HIGGS

(CPR officials step forward; now it's your turn. You may have the floor if you wish. Anything to assist the sport fan will be welcome.)

So you're in our shoes, see, and you've given a special prize for the largest coho caught in the Ladder Derby fishoff. And someone takes a sneak look at the prize list shortly before expiration of the derby and there's a familiar name on top. It's James C. Tang, of the sheet down the street.

It beats everyone how it got there, but we have one friend left and he makes it up to us. He gets one a little bigger than Jim's, and you come out of hiding, see, and why not?

So, you're another football fan, see, and you want to know "why in the Dickens isn't Higgs (Ken) playing for the Lions—instead of all those imports?" But what you don't realize is that Ken is a Victoria product, is a Canadian and the Lions know what he CAN do. What they don't know, and what they must find out before next week is what the U.S. imports CAN'T do; that's why Ken hasn't been playing; but the word is, he will.

And you're in this business, see, and you say that Teresa hasn't yet won Galiffa's job with the Lions. . . . And no sooner than the ink is dry, does Galiffa get the gate, the heave-ho, the royal bounce. . . . and then you start work again, today, see, and some guy calls and says: "How wrong can you get?" . . . Of course, there's the other way—the easy way out, like predicting swins; you say someone's going to swim sometime, and when they do, you're right. It's that easy.

And a bowlful of orchids to manager Joe Bryant and the Gorge Hotel softball team. . . . three successive provincial championships is not to be sneezed at, and that's the record owned by the hotelmen, and Fletchers before them. . . . and a bouquet of roses to Polyettes for a commendable showing in their first year of senior A intercity competition. . . . The Polys lost out to Vancouver by the odd game in three, and Coach John Oster was fair in his appraisal of the winners: "We just couldn't hit their pitcher—she was too good," he said of the double shutout engineered against the locals in the final two games. . . . How different from the sour grapes that often accompany defeat.

ODE TO THE LIONS

You didn't roar, in fifty-four. Winning one, but not any more. You barely survived, in fifty-five. Only in five did you have the drive. But as playoff picks, in fifty-six, Vereb's the guy with the winning tricks.

United Can Still Do It ---Get Lead Friday

Victoria United will get another day earned him a starting berth at chance to grab top spot in the inside right Friday. He will have Coast Soccer League Friday night: Ed Robb on his wing, with Ken at Athletic Park, but this time it's Hibbert again at centre in place of can get only a piece of first place.

United, tied for first place with North Shore, plays second-place New Westminster Royals and a win will give the Victoria squad a tie for first with Vancouver Halecos.

Halecos downed Victoria, 2-1, in a battle for first place Tuesday in Vancouver.

Coach Willie Hamilton again has changed his line-up slightly for the game.

Milwaukee Jitters Says Rianey

MILWAUKEE (AP)—Experienced baseball men, who have been on the Braves' bandwagon since they left the east in first place a month ago, now are beginning to doubt that Milwaukee will win the National League pennant.

Only two days ago, manager Bill Rianey of New York Giants unequivocally picked Braves to beat out Brooklyn and Cincinnati. Wednesday, after his rereading of the final of the three-game series here, 2-1, he changed his mind.

"I'm not so sure now that Milwaukee will win it," Rianey said. "Those guys seem to be on edge. They don't seem to have that certain fire that a first-place team should have. They talk kind of funny, too, as if they're not so sure themselves they can win it."

Bertoia, Browning Spark Irish As Series Squared

Shamrocks 10, Pilseners 6
(Best-of-five series tied 1-1.)

By BILL WALKER

It was award night Wednesday at Memorial arena—honor roll call and the second game of the Intercity Lacrosse League semifinal between the Shamrocks and Pilseners.

The trophy winners were Alan Gill, Bill Bamford and Pee-wee Bradshaw. Gill won the Dillabaugh Trophy for his exemplary play and sportsmanship.

Bamford was picked as most valuable player and the winner of the George Blackstock Trophy.

Bradshaw was selected by the fans as most popular Shamrock and the Birks award winner. All this was at half time, and a good thing too.

For if the presentations had been made after the game, there might have been cause to suggest that a recount should have been made.

For two other Rocks rose far above the rest.

They were burly Bert Bertoia and lithe Archie Browning. They stole the curtain calls in the Rocks' 10-6 triumph over Pils.

Third game goes Friday at Vancouver, the fourth here Monday.

Double Quick Counters Cinched It

It was Bertoia with a total of four goals, and two quick counters during Jim Swanson's penalty in the third period to break a 4-4 tie.

It was Browning, who got five goals in the series' opener, for another brilliant display. Shadowed tenaciously, Browning finally broke the game open and closed the door on the Pils with two goals 12 seconds apart in the fourth quarter.

The Pils were dead then, and maybe even before that.

For if you like the coaches' comments, they tell the story. "We played better than Tuesday," said Irish mentor Whitey Severson. Bert and Archie—they were great; our defence excuse they didn't use it in the game post mortem. And it was a big one at the time. Three times on successive shots, with the Rocks leading 6-4, they hit the goal post.

But then Stan Joseph should never have committed the felony he did either. On four clean breaks by the Irish he slammed the door.

Geordy Johnston, on the other hand, was equally proficient, getting better aid from his mates than in the series opener and, given that extra, made good use of it.

Then Browning made it certain, and Bertoia added another for good measure.

DODGERS GAIN, BRAVES LOSE

Cards Secret Brook Weapon

By the Associated Press

Don Newcombe, with his 19 victories, and Duke Snider, with his 33 home runs, have been big guns for Brooklyn's world champion Dodgers, but where would the Dodgers be without those friendly St. Louis Cardinals in the National League pennant race?

The Brooks have won more games from the fourth place Cards than they have from any other club—mainly because of Redbird errors. In at least four games, the gift runs paid off in Dodger victories.

It was the same old story again Wednesday night as Dodgers scored four unearned runs to beat St. Louis 5-3 for a 15-5 season mark against the Cardinals. This time the Dodgers used the Redbirds to edge within two games of first place Milwaukee, beaten 2-1 by the last-place New York Giants.

NEWCOMBE AIMS AT 20th The victory also kept Dodgers a full game ahead of Cincinnati Redlegs, who defeated Pittsburgh 6-3, as the two challengers meet in the opener of a three-game series at Crosley Field tonight. Newcombe, incidentally, will be going for No. 20 opposing Johnny Killebrew.

Chicago Cubs defeated Philadelphia 6-3 in the other NL game.

In the American, New York Yankees defeated Cleveland 3-2 on a double error by Al Rosen on one play. That lifted the Yanks back into an 8½-game lead over the second-place Indians. The third-place Chicago White Sox split a day-night pair at Boston, with Billy Pierce winning his 18th with 6-3 decision over the Red Sox, who then came back to win 7-6.

Detroit peppered Washington 9-3. Kansas City defeated Baltimore 7-2 in 11 innings.

VITRA Blood Parade Members of the Vancouver Island Track Racing Association will turn out en masse tonight to donate blood at Red Cross House, Fort Street.

Clinic will be open for VITRA members from 7.30-9.30.

MIAMI, Fla. (UP)—Jimmy Foxx, who came within a whisker of tying Babe Ruth's 60-homer record 24 years ago, came right out and said today he is pulling for Mickey Mantle to break the mark.

"It won't take a thing away from the Babe," Foxx said. "He's a legend. Most of today's fans never saw Ruth play and baseball needs a new hero."

Foxx, still big, husky and powerful looking as he was with the Philadelphia Athletics in his prime during 1932 when he hit 58 homers, feels Mantle's chances to crack Ruth's record this season are good.

"The kid's hot," said old Double-X, as he was affectionately known in his playing days. "He's on a streak . . . and from where he's sitting, now his chances look mighty good to me."

Foxx hit a total of 534 home runs during his 18 years in the majors. The year he missed matching Ruth's record in 1932 he injured and lost three home runs.

"There was a screen in St. Louis that came down later," he recalled, "and it caught a bunch of my long hits. Then there was a barbed wire in Philadelphia that caught at least three more. After the season, I went out there and found the wire barricade actually was outside the ball park, but all I got at the time was three doubles."

Despite his injured wrist in 1932, Foxx said he could have hit 70 homers that season if the ball parks were tailored the way they are today.

REPORT FROM THE OUTDOORS

The ways of salmon are many and varied, but most fishing establishments rely on their reaching a certain spot at a certain time.

The big tye runs, currently close to full strength at Campbell River and Port Alberni, can be traced directly to the fact that the congregation of salmon are just waiting to go up the river to spawn. Cowichan bay's fishing stems from the same circumstances.

But why are there salmon in Saanich Inlet? The spawning reason does not hold here, for the salmon that go up its streams are mainly chum, with a scattering of coho, while by far the majority of fish caught are springs.

Saanich Inlet doesn't lead anywhere, so the fish cannot be "just passing through." One answer is that the salmon are after feed, but then why isn't there good salmon fishing in such similar waterways as Portage Inlet?

No one knows the answer, but the man who finds it will be doing something worthwhile.

One of the largest tye this year, a 62½-pounder, was landed at Campbell River recently by Fred Jordan, a visitor from California. But the tale he'll recite will likely centre not on the weight, but on the fact that he caught the monster on nothing but a white bucktail fly. The battle must have been long and furious, and well worth the trip from California.

Other big ones boated in the past week were: Rule Gibbs, 42½ pounds; Doug Joyce, 59; W. Covington Jr., 43½; R. Singlar, 38½; J. Brimhall, 30½; Wade Newgatin, 53 and 35½; Archie McDonald, 59; Dr. Petray, 30 and Mr. Begg, 38. The usual variety of lures prevailed, with every tye being hooked on something different. It seems that when they're biting, they'll strike at everything.

Those who enjoy playing fish without the encumbrance of weights (and who doesn't?) would do well to look into reports from Miracle Beach and Oyster River. Humpies up to six pounds are being taken in the surf by spinners and bait-casters, and although the fish strike in anger and not hunger, they still provide exciting fare on light tackle. Best fishing is in the evening, while nearly any weighted spinning lure will get them on a good day.

Fresh water enthusiasts will still find their best fishing at Lower Campbell Lake, where good-sized trout are taking gang troll, spinner and worm, or flatfish rigs, while those who like to match wits with a tye should find satisfaction at Port Alberni. The big ones are striking both plugs and spoons.

Killer whales, which can play havoc with fishing wherever they appear, have been showing in Saanich Inlet according to reports from Sunday's ladder derby fishoff. One of the unlucky anglers to hook into these extra-big sea-going mammals was Mrs. Jessie Marshall, who was of the opinion that she's struck bottom until she saw what she'd hooked. Amazing part about it was that no tackle was lost in the operation.

Fred Booth, who reportedly forsook Saanich Inlet for Sooke, pulled in what could be one of the biggest cohoes taken on the island this year at Otter Point. Weighing 17½ pounds, the big silver was caught on a flasher and minnow outfit on Sunday.

And, in the derby department, the Victoria Kinsmen have their annual fishoff at Cowichan Bay on Sunday. Boating will be left to individual members, while fish must be on the docks at Ordano's not later than four in the afternoon.

Ronnie Really Rocks, But Riders Roll to Win

Galiffa Shown Gate By Lions

VANCOUVER (CP) — Arnie Galiffa, all-American quarterback with Army in 1949, Wednesday was released by the British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union.

Coach Clem Crowe said it is expected that Galiffa, who piloted the Lions last year, will find a position with another WIFU club.

He did not specify which one. Crowe said Galiffa could land a job with a Big Four club; but he prefers to stay in the West.

"We hate to see him go," the coach said, "but cutting him now will give him a better chance to get another position."

The Lions could have kept Galiffa another week before deadline arrives for cutting their import roster to 12.

His release leaves the quarterback job to Tony Teresa and Paul Cameron, both of whom are regarded as more versatile than Galiffa. They can play halfback as well as quarter.

Compton, Tyson Join English Side

LONDON (Reuters) — England's cricket team went into its fifth and final game with Australia today at London's Oval cricket ground a solid favorite to win decisively over their traditional enemies.

Having won two games, lost one and tied one, England already has retained the Ashes, symbolic of test cricket supremacy. Australia could tie the best-of-five series with a victory, but a draw goes in favor of the defending champions.

Only changes in England's lineup will be Denis Compton and Frank Tyson, who will play in place of Alan Oakman and Freddie Trueman, respectively. The home side still has the services of its whirlwind bowler, Jim Laker, who needs only one more wicket to beat the record of 39 set by Alec Bedser against Australia in 1953.

The Aussies will field a team much improved in county play during the last few weeks. They won four out of five games. Colin McDonald, Ian Craig and Alan Davidson all showed up well against Essex on a wicket similar to that expected at the Oval—home ground for England's Laker, Tony Lock and English captain Peter May.

Howe Signs

DETROIT (AP) — Gordie Howe, Detroit Red Wings' all-time high scorer, Wednesday signed his contract for the 1956-57 National Hockey League season.

Howe's signing by general manager Jack Adams marked the second signing in two weeks of a veteran player. Defenceman Red Kelly signed 10 days ago.

OLYMPIC REP

MONTREAL (CP) — Dr. Archie Cameron of Montreal Wednesday won the right to represent Canada in the Sharpe class events in sailing competition at the Olympic games in Melbourne, Australia.

Bukich Case Unsettled

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Superior Judge John J. Ford Wednesday took under advisement the question whether he shall issue a preliminary injunction that would prohibit Rudy Bukich, former Southern California football star, from playing for Los Angeles Rams this fall.

British Columbia Lions of the Western Interprovincial Football Union seek the injunction, claiming they have a contract for his services this season. The Rams claim they have a prior contract.

2% Cut in Sales Tax Possible, Says Gibbs

'Giant Killer' Again Choice Of Liberal Forces in Oak Bay

Premier Bennett's statement that a 1 per cent reduction in the 5 per cent sales tax would wreck the B.C. Hospital Insurance Scheme was challenged by P. A. Gibbs on his nomination as Liberal candidate for Oak Bay Wednesday night.

"I would like to debunk that," said Mr. Gibbs, who was acclaimed by an enthusiastic meeting as the "giant killer" who defeated two finance ministers in two provincial elections—Conservative Herbert Anscomb in 1952 and Einar Gunderson in 1953.

"It would be possible to make even a 2 per cent cut in the sales tax without curbing the hospital scheme," Mr. Gibbs said, "but our executive felt we should start with a 1 per cent cut."

FURTHER CUTS

"When we are returned to power we will see the picture as it is and plan further reductions accordingly."

Mr. Gibbs was renominated for Oak Bay without opposition and his candidature was supported by Dr. Frank Fairley, federal Liberal member for Victoria, and Harry Perry, a former minister of education in the provincial Liberal government.

"Where is Mr. Bennett getting his $28 per household tax exemption from?" asked Mr. Gibbs. "We could easily say he is taking it out of the hospital insurance fund."

NO SMEAR

"We are not smearing him when we say that—we are merely stating it is not the right thing to do. We believe any reduction in taxes should be a reduction across the board benefiting all—not just a grant at the whim of the premier."

Mr. Gibbs said the government is now collecting $66,000,000 from the sales tax and a 1 per cent cut would not touch that portion of the tax earmarked for hospitals.

"The cut would leave 2 per cent for hospitals and 2 per cent for consolidated revenue," he said.

The Social Credit government, he continued, claimed to have spent more on B.C. roads in four years than previous governments had done in 40.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL APPEAL COST TAXPAYERS $2,000

Taxpayer costs in the recent school hearings which resulted in dismissal of Mount Newton principal Arthur Voge were about $2,000 in legal fees, Saanich school board heard Monday from the board's solicitor.

The bill was from Crease & Co.

Mr. Voge's hearing dragged on for weeks, based on the premise he was inefficient in administrative duties.

Mr. Perry, who was welcomed as "one of the great men of the Liberal regime, declared the Social Credit government's main activity had been extending policies initiated by the provincial Liberal government."

"Their only big new policy has been an increase in our sales tax from 3 to 5 per cent—a tax which all students of taxation deplore as placing a tremendous burden on small income men and women."

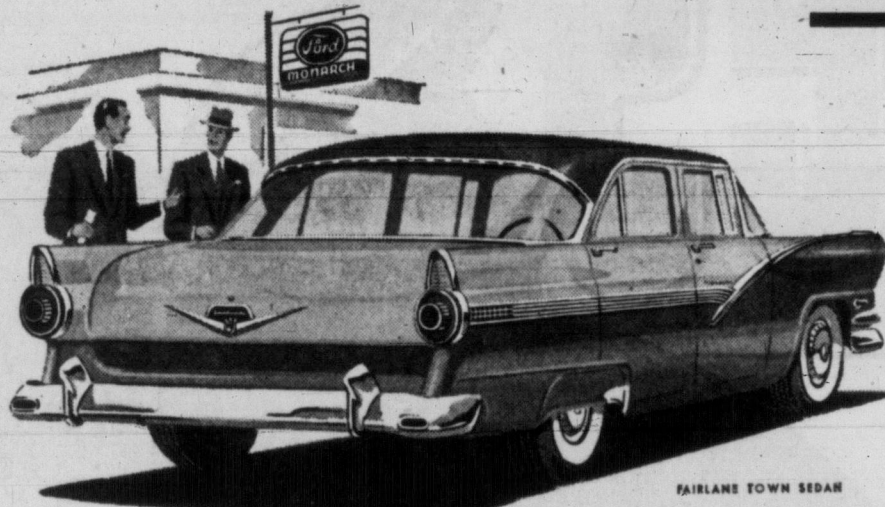

"We give them all credit for what they have done, particularly for their initiative in taking the Pacific Great Eastern Railway into the Peace River country. But that is not a new policy; it is just another extension of Liberal policies."

"And they ought to do something with the $250,000,000 revenue they get."

Dr. Fairley said there is a division in the Social Credit party at the present time "and the real old-time Social Crediters are annoyed at the new Social Crediters taking over."

"I believe this division will ultimately bring the party down," he said.

City, Saanich Combined City Hall Discussed

Pooling of Physical Resources Suggested

Pooling Victoria and Saanich physical resources was suggested Wednesday as a means of making a joint city hall economic.

First formal meeting of Victoria and Saanich representatives exploring the possibility of a single city hall for the two municipal governments was held at city hall this morning with acting mayor Ald. W. F. Pinfold in the chair.

It was his suggestion that pooling physical resources, thereby eliminating duplication to a large extent, would mean a financial saving to both municipalities and if carried on extensively over a period of 20 years might pay for cost of erecting the new building.

City Manager C. C. Wyatt emphasized that such circumstances would in no way interfere with the legislative or executive administration of either Victoria or Saanich.

SEPARATE OFFICIALS

Each would retain its own council and senior executive posts, upon which decisions regarding the welfare of their particular jurisdictions would continue to rest.

"This would have nothing to do with amalgamation," Ald. Pinfold said.

Meanwhile, the committee, represented today by Coun. J. Ronald Grant and Reeve Arthur Ash of Saanich, and Aids. Robert Macmillan and Arthur Dowell for the city, is awaiting a report from the Capital Region Planning Board which was asked to recommend a site for the structure.

Ald. Pinfold said a reply is expected next week.

WORK WOULD BENEFIT

The public works departments of Saanich and Victoria could best benefit by a pooling of resources. For example a fewer number of gravel trucks would be required to do the work of both departments and those in the fleet would see full use.

Other areas where a saving could be made in the proposed system are centralized purchasing, heating and caretaking, reception and switchboard operation, mimeographing, cashier service, assessment service, single council chamber and committee rooms and staff rooms.

An important point, Mr. Wyatt mentioned, would be that a joint operation of administrative and operational services could result in a manpower saving.

Workability of the plan is exemplified by the present library board, union board of health and Greater Victoria water district, which are joint municipal enterprises.

'Dead' Woman A Mere Slip Of a Ghoul

MELBOURNE, Australia (UP)—Mrs. Sheila Baulch, an officially certified corpse who came back to life, said today, "if it weren't so serious I'd die laughing" over the incident.

"I'm 44 years old, a mere slip of a ghoul," she said in describing the incident in which she was knocked unconscious in a street accident and was certified dead by a Melbourne hospital.

A policeman noticed her eye twitch just as he was about to wheel her into the refrigerator at the morgue. She recovered a few hours later, apparently none the wiser.

"It's dead right I'm starting a new life," she told the United Press, "except I don't want another 10 kids. It's like a lifetime since it happened last Saturday."

 MILAN (AP-Reuters)—Gino-omino, Italian clown who performed at the court of the last Russian czar and later became Charlie Chaplin's stand-in, has died here.

Start of Swim Was Big Gamble

But Marilyn's Power, Good Tides Made All Out Try

By DENNY BOYD

The first part of Marilyn's swim was a battle of decision whether she should try the full route or not. But by 3.30 p.m. she had battled her way past Race Rocks and caught the flood tide toward Victoria.

What started out as a possible "training swim," because the weather looked so bad, turned into an all-out battle between the swimming skill and endurance of the young swimming star and the whitecaps and tides tossed up by Juan de Fuca strait.

She had apparently recovered from a soreness in her left arm, which for a time seemed to give her trouble. But, as she cleared the Race Rocks area, it was once more coming up strong and high from the water.

She was stroking off about 60 to the minute, stopping infrequently for very brief feedings. Earlier she had remarked "my stomach is turning around."

Winds whipped the strait into a froth of whitecaps but her coach said: "She is strong and determined, better than she ever looked on her previous attempt. Only adverse weather or cold water can beat Marilyn."

She took off from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at 9.30 a.m. in calm inshore water, but in the face of ominous weather forecasts. At the outset her coach, Gus Ryder, said she would be taken from the water unless conditions smoothed out, and the swim would be termed a "practice."

Marilyn appeared in better condition, mentally and physically, than on her first attempt, which she later termed "just not one of my days."

She swam strongly, her famed flutter kick forcing her through the rolling troughs and over the spindrift crests of waves from a foot to 18 inches deep.

The calm inshore water was soon replaced by a light chop, which increased in intensity.

Looking astern from the accompanying coach boat, the smoke from the Port Angeles mills was whipped out parallel to the ground.

Winds at noon were south-west 15, gusting to 20, according to the official observatory report.

Flotilla Not Optimistic

Feeling aboard the swim flotilla—a tiny one compared to that which accompanied her attempt from the Victoria side Aug. 10—was more of admiration for her swimming style and stamina, than of high optimism.

As early as the second hour of the swim, it did not seem possible she would be able to go all the way, or even to make an all-out effort to reach the Victoria shore.

But there was the usual good-natured by-play between the swimmer and accompanying craft. Shortly after the start of the swim, coach Gus Ryder eased Marilyn along at a clockwork 54 strokes to the minute. Talking to himself, but aloud, he said, "She's working into her stride."

FAIR TRADE?

MONTREAL (CP) — A man telephoned The Canadian Press Montreal bureau today and proposed:

"If you'll give me some information I'll give you some in return."

"Shoot."

"Has Marilyn Bell started her swim yet?"

"Yes."

"Thanks. Alouettes will beat Argos Saturday. Good bye."

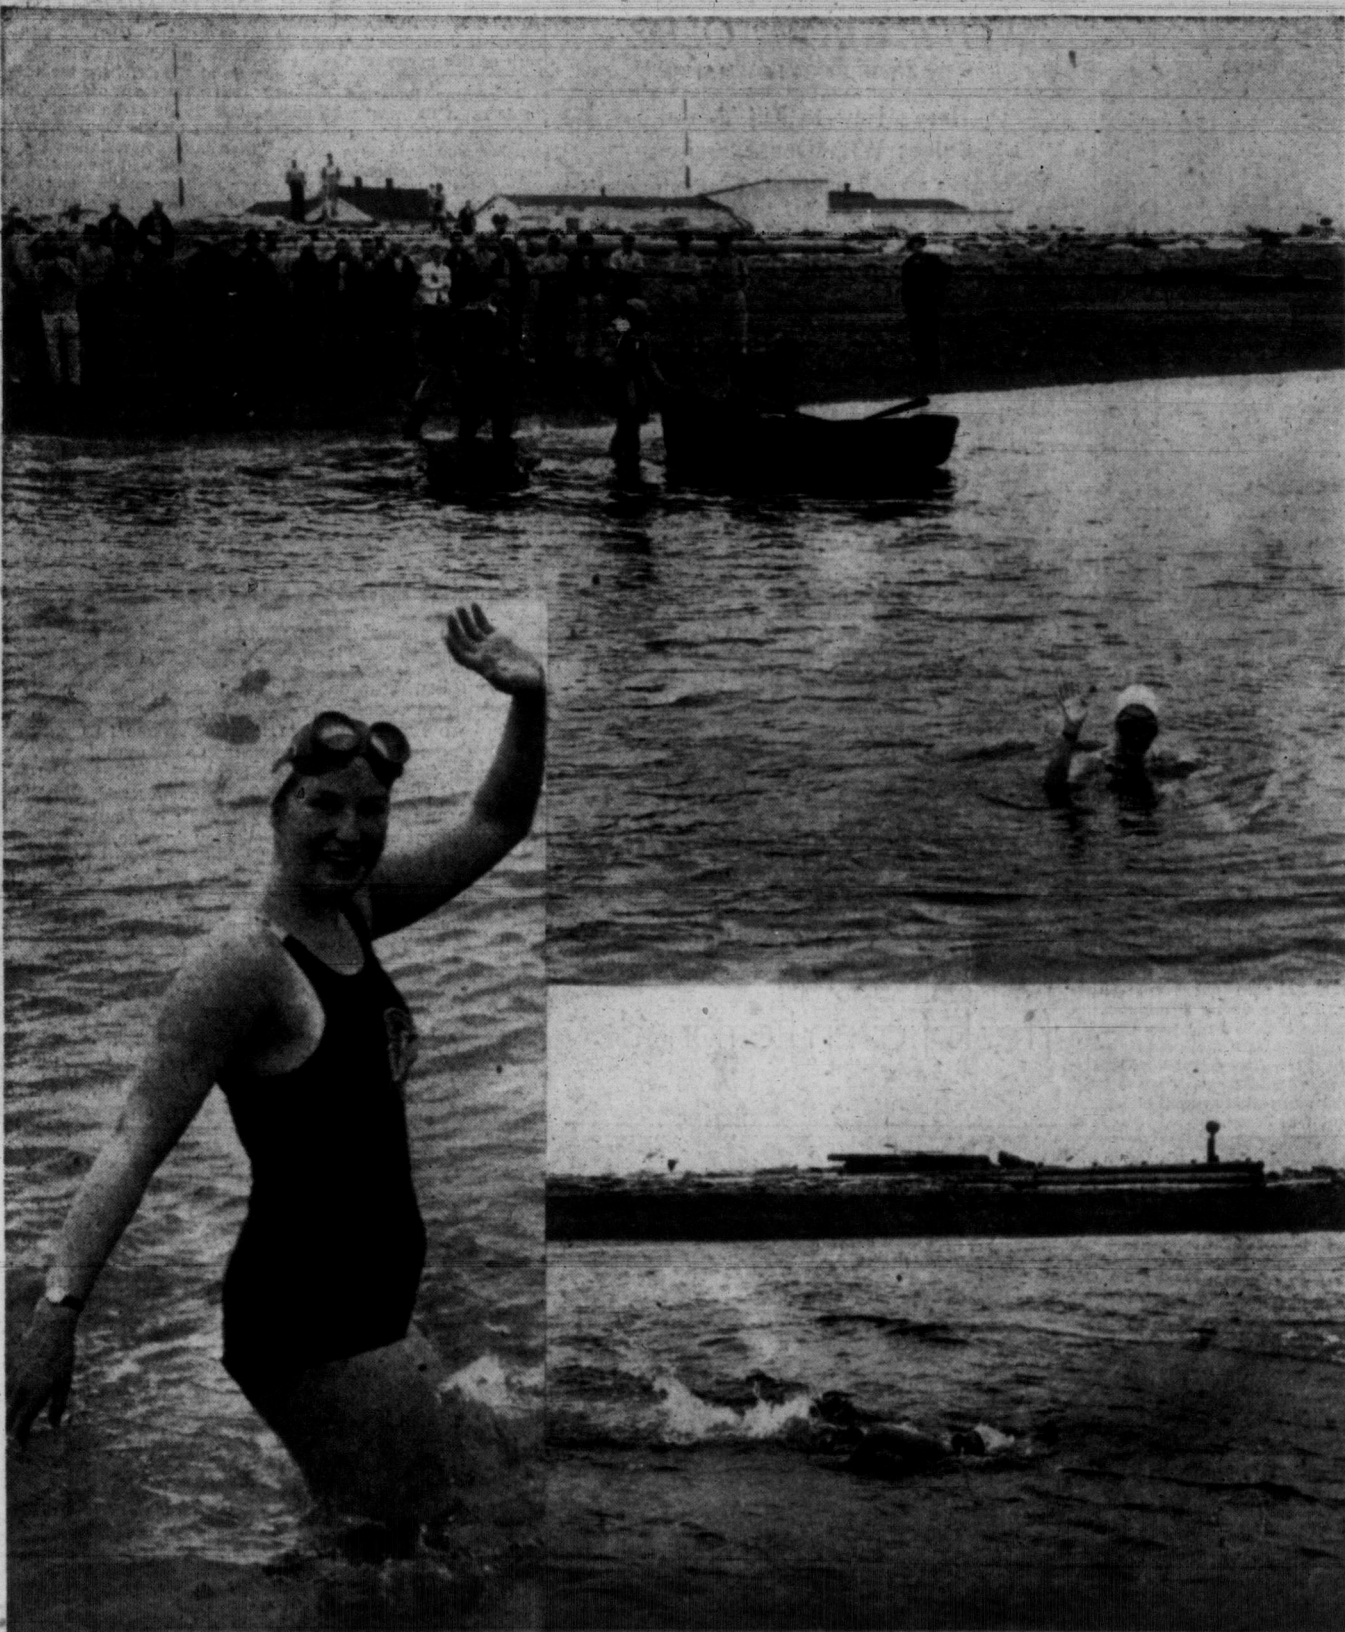

"She's got a big steak to work off and her little bit of breakfast," he murmured. "I don't want her working too hard until we know how her tummy reacts in the rough water."

As the navigation boat, Island Tug and Barge company's Island Champion, drew alongside, Marilyn started to breathe on her left side so she could see the familiar faces lining its rail—navigator Capt. Ellice Cavin, her parents, her friend, Maria Brenk; Mrs. Ryder, her physician, Dr. Reg Wride; Stuart Keate, publisher of the Times, and Archie McKinnon of the YMCA.

Then, without breaking rhythm or changing her stroke, which had increased to 60 strokes per minute, she turned to breathe, as she usually does on her right side.

To Capt. Cavin, Gus passed this message: "We'll just see how things are. If the wind is too strong and the strait acts up, I will just tell Marilyn to come out. There is no use her going on if conditions aren't good."

This was shortly before 10.30 a.m. At 1 p.m., Marilyn was still plugging along, despite conditions which were anything but perfect.

THE START OF A SWIM THAT MADE HISTORY

Here is the pictorial record of the start of a swim that made history today. Lower left, Canada's champion woman marathon swimmer Marilyn Bell turns with a cheerful, confident smile as she wades into the chilly Strait, to wave at the crowd that had gathered at the U.S. Coastguard station at Ediz Hook. Top she is water-borne taking her first few strokes and lower right, well clear of the U.S. shore, Canada's swimming sweetheart is on her way to becoming the first Canadian woman to swim the Strait of Juan de Fuca, to set a new time record for the crossing to establish herself still more firmly in the affections of her public.—(Times photos by Bill Halkett.)

SWIM SIDELIGHTS

Marilyn and her party had a lot closer," said Marilyn. "Phyl Griffiths and Art Holland have probably been out all night pushing it over."

Weinberger Kidnapping Case Solved

NEW YORK — The FBI has announced the arrest of a man who it says, has confessed the kidnapping of infant Peter Weinberger.

The suspect is identified as 31-year-old Angelo John la Marca. The FBI says he told authorities he left the baby along a roadside in Long Island.

At one time during the swim, Marilyn heard an announcer say, "I've got noise on my channel." Marilyn said, "he's lucky. I've got rough water on mine."

The evening before at the Port Angeles motel, Amy Hill and the California housewife, who swam almost 20 miles between Port Angeles and William Head last week, wished Marilyn luck.

Amy told Marilyn she had been trying to reach Victoria but had been caught in the tides—rushing around Race Rocks.

"I did four miles in 35 minutes," she said. "I felt as if there were giants in the water one pulling one leg one way, and another pulling a leg the other way."

Amy said she would not try the straits again this year, but was thinking of trying Catalina.

Marilyn and her party had sister Karen, a wired haired terrier with a music box in its stomach from her Telegram Inn's keeper Mr. and Mrs. Stan Morrow. Dorothy Howarth and Gus Ryder were the parents and Jack Judges and Marilyn were the son and daughter. So out in the water, every time Jack leaned over and roared, "Come on sis," he got a smile from Marilyn.

At one time Marilyn saw sea gulls swooping down low over her and pretended to duck.

While Marilyn was greasing up before the swim, Jack Todd, boatman, who was in water to his thighs, shouted, "hurry up, Marilyn, it's cold out here."

Marilyn answered, "You're telling me."

Before the start, Marilyn worried that perhaps her favorite toys would not be in the coach boat. Marilyn looks on the toys as good luck charms, because they represent the friends who are pulling for her. Her Burro from her Lorretto classmates, a stuffed skunk in lavender from

As Marilyn was swimming towards Victoria, she smiled but did not break her stroke as she heard the dinner gong ring on the Island Champion.

As Marilyn quickly drank a cup of tea, she looked quickly towards Race Rock and said, "It looks good, I can see it."

Toronto Wild Over Marilyn

TORONTO — This city was wildly excited tonight as the reports came through that Marilyn Bell was nearing the Victoria shore. Mos Ruby, of the Wilton Court Hotel, posted $1,000 for her whether she completed the swim or not.

Marilyn Requests Bonfire

By AB RENT

Less than 100 spectators watched as Marilyn Bell, in her familiar black bathing suit and white cap, waded into Juan de Fuca Strait at Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, this morning.

The quiet, almost casual start to another water adventure was in direct contrast to the boisterous, cheering send-off to her previous attempt.

The take-off was deliberately arranged for the least fuss, noise and excitement. Coach Gus Ryder wanted his star pupil in a relaxed frame of mind for today's effort.

Most of the onlookers were from the coast guard station on the Hook.

Take-off was planned for 9.30 a.m.—and at precisely 9.30, Victoria chamber of commerce president Pat Dunn fired the starting gun.

Gus and Marilyn appeared on the beach a few minutes earlier. While Marilyn was rubbing a thin layer of vaseline on her arms and legs, Jack Todd, her boatman, was standing in water up to his knees.

"Hurry up," he shouted. "It's cold in here."

Marilyn answered "you're telling me."

She called to Times reporter Denny Boyd: "Have a bonfire ready for me on the other side."

Mr. Dunn noticed she was wearing rings on her fingers. "Do you wear them while swimming?" he asked.

"Yes," quipped Marilyn, "they keep me warm."

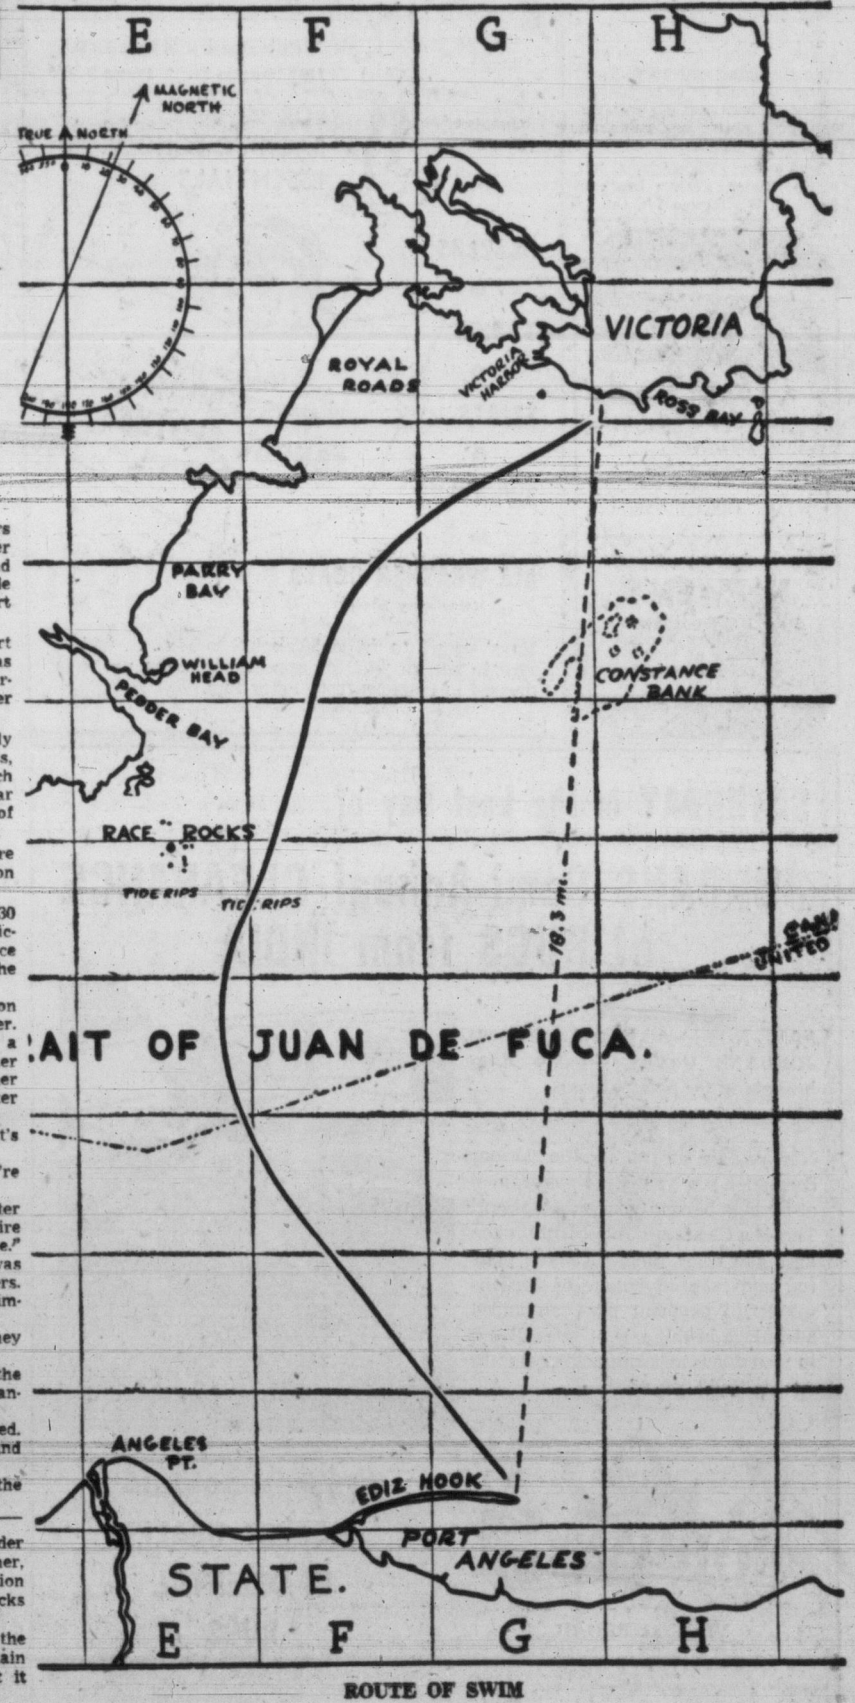

Then Gus kissed her on the cheek and said "swim to Canada, Marilyn."

"I'll do it, Gus," she promised. Mr. Dunn said "goodbye and God bless you, Marilyn."

And Marilyn Bell was in the water, swimming.

The Island Champion in order to stay beside the swimmer, lowered its anchor in addition to the two 80 foot boomsticks it was already towing.

When Marilyn heard the grinding of the anchor chain she looked up to see what it was.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here's How to Kill Two Bulges With One Exercise

Today exercises are streamlined. Women used to go through many laborious, ineffective and rapid exercises and then wonder why they did not get the results they craved. Today a few highly effective motions, when indulged in for 20 or 30 minutes each day, will improve the figure remarkably.

Some exercises are especially effective in slimming a couple of figure faults. With each motion you kill two bulges. What more could you ask? I call these my combination exercises.

The following exercise is effective in reducing the thighs and the abdomen: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms out at your sides (resting on the floor) and your legs straight. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. As you stretch the legs, separate them and lower them to the floor as far apart as comfortable. Drag the legs together (not lifting the heels from the floor). Bend and continue. If you have sacroiliac trouble you should not try this exercise, or should be very careful when you do.

This exercise slims the abdomen, waist and hips. Lie on the floor on your back, with your legs straight and your arms stretched out on the floor extending straight from your shoulders. Lift your left leg up as far as comfortable with a stiff knee. Cross the left leg over the right and touch the floor on the right side of the body with the left foot. Lift the left leg up and then return it to place on the floor. This time lift the right leg up as far as comfortable, cross it over the left leg and touch the floor on the left side of your body with your right foot. Continue, alternating left and right.

Do all of your exercises with rhythm, in a smooth way, not jerkily. Also beware of doing them too rapidly. Take time for the stretch.

If you would like to have my combination exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 5 "Combination Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Jet! Not airplanes, but jewelry. Five or seven rows of jet for the newest necklaces (Dior); jet again for trimmings on black suits (Jean Patou); and again on a wonderful black velvet shovel-hat (Albony) inspired by the Saxe statuettes. For hats! Everyone's talking about them and everyone will be wearing them: high, Russian-hat style, done up in fox, beaver, ocelot, panther or colored Persian lamb, etc. (Balmain and most of the others). Blouses! They are most certainly here to stay. Under the loosely-fitted jacket of a thick jersey blouse (Balmain), a wispy chiffon one (Dior), an elegant velvet one (Jacques Heim), a brilliant satin one (Madeleine de Rauch). Ribbons! For wide satin belts on narrow frocks, Empire line (Patou); for bows and all sorts of trimmings (Dior). Perfume! Modiste Claude Saint-Cyr (who has H.M. ## A MONTH'S VISIT IN VICTORIA

While her husband is on a hunting trip far north in Yukon Territory, Mrs. Walter W. Butler, centre, of Oklahoma City, Okla., with daughter, Barbara, and Mrs. Douglas L. Rippeta, also of Oklahoma City, is enjoying sunshine and flowers in Victoria. The trio is spending the month of August in this city at the Empress Hotel.

Wedding in Port Alberni Of Interest in Victoria

In St. Alban's Church, Port Alberni, Rev. G. H. Greenhalgh solemnized the exchange of vows and rings made by Miss Cora May Manton and Arthur Norman Skipsy in a recent early afternoon ceremony.

Pink and white gladioli formed the altar setting, and windows were decorated with vases of sweet peas, snapdragons and other summer blossoms for the wedding, during which organist, Mrs. Ken Hutcheson, accompanied the congregation who sang "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

The bride, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Manton of Victoria, was given in marriage by her brother, J. Manton. An afternoon-length dress of imported white Swiss eyelet with full skirt gathered daintily to a scalloped lowered waistline was worn by the bride. The bodice of her gown was fitted in princess style with tapered elbow-length sleeves and soft Peter Pan collar. A close-fitting lace covered with tiny white blossoms complemented her dress. She carried a white satin-bound Bible touched with waterfall bouquet of roses, white heather and stephanotis, and also had a lace-edged handkerchief which had been carried by the groom's mother on her wedding day.

Miss Muriel Jones was bridesmaid, and wore a dusky pink gown of imported Swiss eyelet styled similarly to the bride's. The newlyweds left for a honeymoon trip to Vancouver and the interior of British Columbia. The new Mrs. Skipsy chose a white linen suit with white linen shoes to match, a navy blue hat and bag and white gloves for her travelling outfit.

Rumors Stop Women's Work

LONDON (Reuters)—Four British women have quit their jobs at clinics in Jordan because of rumors they were poisoning hundreds of Arab children.

The women have been running clinics in Moslem villages around Hebron, 30 miles south of Jerusalem, for the Save the Children fund.

After the rumors of poisoning were fanned by anti-British feeling over the Suez crisis, British consul William Wilson suggested the women resign and demanded a Jordan government inquiry into the allegations.

A slight outbreak of illness among a few boys is reported to have begun rumors in Arabic newspapers that the women had poisoned them.

The suggestions were described here Wednesday as "scandalous and totally untrue" by a representative of the Save the Children fund.

Mr. and Mrs. Skipsy will make their home on Faber road, Sprout Lake, B.C.

Victorian in England Finds Snow, Hail in May

Now home in Victoria after a two-year stay in England is 23-year-old Miss Joyce Watkins, of 4053 Torquay drive. She has been working as a secretary in the apprentice department of BSA, in Birmingham.

The purpose of her long "working holiday" was to see as much as possible of Britain and Europe, and she has travelled extensively in her spare-time. Birmingham, she found, was a complete contrast to Victoria, for although the city covers about the same area as this city, it has a population of 1½ million. Joyce was fascinated by the crowded streets and what she frankly calls "the cramped quarters."

Although she was overseas two years, Joyce still feels she has only "scratched the surface." She describes England as "a little country but with so much to see" and she says that when she visited western Europe last summer she only "touched the highlights."

This young Canadian was rather taken aback by the notorious English climate, for she was unlucky enough to experience snow and hail in May, at the start of a typical British "summer." After that, she tried with great determination to wean her English friends away from their traditional open coal fires to the comfort of central heating.

Joyce returned to Canada on the RMS Loch Gowan, by way of the Panama Canal. It docked in Vancouver on the weekend and the young traveller immediately left for the Gordon

Head home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Watkins. Before she left the BSA offices in Birmingham for the last time, Joyce was presented with a number of gifts by her colleagues, with whom she was very popular. "I've enjoyed every minute of my stay over there," she says, "and I hated to leave—but there are so many other places yet to see."

Once Shipwrecked Missionary Now To Go by Plane

LANDSDOWNE, Ont. (CP)—After two years as dean of women at the Eastern Pentecostal Bible College at Peterborough, Mrs. Marion Parkinson is returning to her former job as a missionary in the West Indies.

Mrs. Parkinson spent 12 years as a missionary in Trinidad and leaves this month for a new post on Antigua in the Leeward Islands. She and her husband, the late Rev. R. A. Parkinson, were on their way to missionary work in Trinidad in 1941 when their ship was torpedoed. Mrs. Parkinson was one of the 75 survivors, but her husband was lost.

Recently, she decided to return to field work and took a refresher course. This time she will fly to take up her new duties.

Also with the party was Mrs. Beth Norgren, director of the Junior Red Cross for Alberta, who conducted the tour.

LOUD-SPEAKING PHONE HERE IN TWO MONTHS

A "loud-speaking" telephone, to be on the market here within two months, was introduced Wednesday at City Toastmasters' "Paul Haeblerin Night."

Haeblerin is the only Canadian on the Toastmasters International board of directors, now attending the 25th annual convention in Detroit.

Demonstrated for the first time in Victoria, the telephone has an amplifier attachment which allows the caller to broadcast to a large group.

Local toastmasters placed a call to Detroit during the meeting and talked to directors there.

"It worked perfectly," said S. R. Thomson, past president of the Camosun Club. "Everyone in our crowd of 54 heard every word spoken."

"We'll have them here in two months," said Art Chubb of B.C. Telephone.

Five toastmaster and two toastmistress clubs attended the meeting in the Dominion hotel.

Children's Disease Upswing Noted in City, Esquimalt

An increase in the incidence of children's diseases in the Victoria-Esquimalt health district was reported Wednesday by the Union Board of Health.

Second quarterly report showed that incidence of chickenpox, mumps and German measles from May to June was far above normal compared to the same quarter last year.

More than 211 cases of chickenpox were recorded for the three-month period, compared to 94 last year and a four-year median of 140 cases.

Number of children stricken with mumps totaled 205 this year, seven last year, compared to a median of 10.

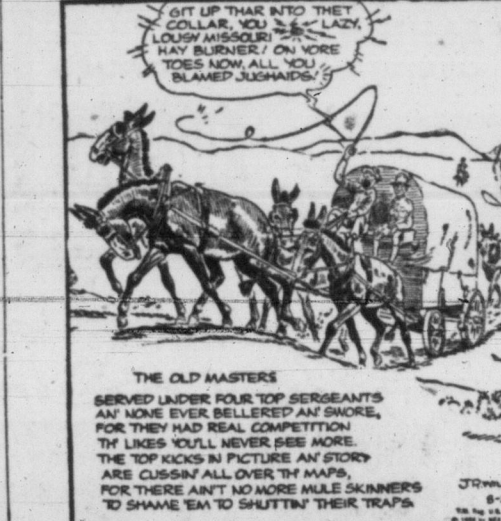

German measles totaled 614, compared to 18 in 1955 and a median of eight.

There was only one reported case of the common form of measles in three months. Last year 53 cases were reported.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Diane Skorupski, aged 12, St. Catharines, Ont., for her question:

Is a Tomato a Fruit or a Vegetable?

If a tomato could talk, we each seed with its own pantry could ask it. A smart tomato. The pod dries up when its job is done. It can pop open with one of its own. Are you a girl, Diane, or a human being? You are both, of course. Well, the tomato is both a fruit and a vegetable.

On our diet we list some of these items as fruit and some as vegetables. Strictly speaking, all of them are fruits and all are members of the vegetable world. A botanist lists a tomato as a fruit. A cook lists it as a vegetable. In any case, it makes a delicious mouthful, whether stewed, in soup, raw in salad, squeezed into juice or pickled in catsup. It teems with vitamins A and C.

Andy sends a Hammond Nature Atlas of America to Ronald Henry, age 10, of Albany, N.Y., for his question:

Do Worms have eyes?

This question baffles a lot of people, especially young fishermen. You go to pick up a nice fat worm and he wriggles away. He can even dodge you after dark. Shine a flashlight as he pokes up from his burrow and back he goes.

Naturally you expect him to own a pair of sharp eyes. Yet when you finally catch him, where are they? The fact is, he has no eyes and needs none. He is a simple creature with a simple nervous system. Nerve endings reach under the skin all over his body. Some of these are sensitive to light.

They inform Mr. Pinky when a shadow falls over his path. This may mean trouble, so away he wriggles to safety. They inform him of the sudden flashlight. This surely means trouble. Mr. Pinky wriggles back home just to be on the safe side. Of course he cannot see as we do. All he can detect is the difference between lightness and dark.

Each plant has its own way of caring for its seeds. They are provided for in many different kinds of fruit. One group produces juicy berries. Each raspberry seed is wrapped in a red glob of food. A berry is a cluster of seeds each huddled in its own food supply.

Apples, pears, melons and oranges cover a group of small seeds with one big pantry. We bite into these fleshy fruits and find the little seeds clustered near the centre.

The seeds of the stone fruits are individually wrapped. These are the plums, cherries, and peaches. We bite into their soft food supply and find the stony pit in the middle. The pit is the seed.

Other plants provide harder rations for their seeds. An ear of wheat is the fruit of the wheat plant. Each little grain of cereal is a seed with its own supply of concentrated food. An acorn is the fruit of the oak tree. And even hard nuts are fruits. They ripen and fall to the ground. The seed inside feeds on nut meat until it is strong enough to burst its prison walls.

Beans and peas are also fruit. They are sheltered in pods while the plants provide.

Seals Split With Mounties

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Home runs settled the issues again Wednesday as San Francisco and Vancouver split another doubleheader.

Kal Segrist won the opener for Vancouver's Mounties 4-3, an eighth-inning round tripper. Sal Taormina and Larry Dippio each hit two-run homers as the Seals won the five-inning nightcap, 8-2.

That game was cut short to allow pods while the plants provide.

ACCEPTANCE SPEECHES WIND UP GOP CONVENTION

PLAYWRIGHTS' MECCA—The day is growing nearer when top dramatists will write regularly for TV in the opinion of Mort Abrahams, executive producer of NBC-TV's "Producer's Showcase."

As quoted by NEA's Dick Kleiner, Abrahams figures that within a few years playwrights like Tennessee Williams and William Inge will be writing originals for TV.

"For one thing," he says, "the 90-minute show allows for greater plot and character development. Ninety minutes is not too much shorter than the two hours of a Broadway play."

There is also a financial consideration. A play on TV has a guaranteed sum which is usually pretty hefty. Broadway is always a gamble.

AND, LASTLY, Abrahams thinks that TV is becoming more adult and that the great playwrights need not fear that they will be confined to innocuous themes if they write for TV.

"Proof of that," Abrahams says, "is that NBC has accepted the idea of doing the Greek comedy, 'Lysistrata,' on 'Showcase,' though, of course, they are reserving the right to limit the treatment."

The theme of "Lysistrata" is that the women refuse to have any relations with men until the men promise to make no more war. It's a far cry from "Life With Riley," observes Kleiner.

And so it is.

Marilyn Bucking Rough Strait

COAST GUARD MEN SEE MARILYN OFF

Cluster of newspaper, newsreel and TV photographers waded in ankle deep to take final pictures seconds before start of swim, which was witnessed by less than 100 spectators. Start was deliberately planned to be

15-Mile Wind, Chop Hampering 2nd Try

By DENNY BOYD
Times Staff Reporter

A strong and determined Marilyn Bell at 2 p.m. today was swimming against strong wind and wave in a bid to cross Juan de Fuca strait from Port Angeles to Victoria.

Winds whipped the strait into a froth of whitecaps but her coach said: "She is strong and determined, better than she ever looked on her previous attempt. Only adverse weather or cold water can beat Marilyn."

At 2 p.m. she was three miles southeast of Race Rocks. (Half way up the line between E and F in square 8 on the Times grid map.)

She took off from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at 9.30 a.m. in calm inshore water, but in the face of ominous weather forecasts.

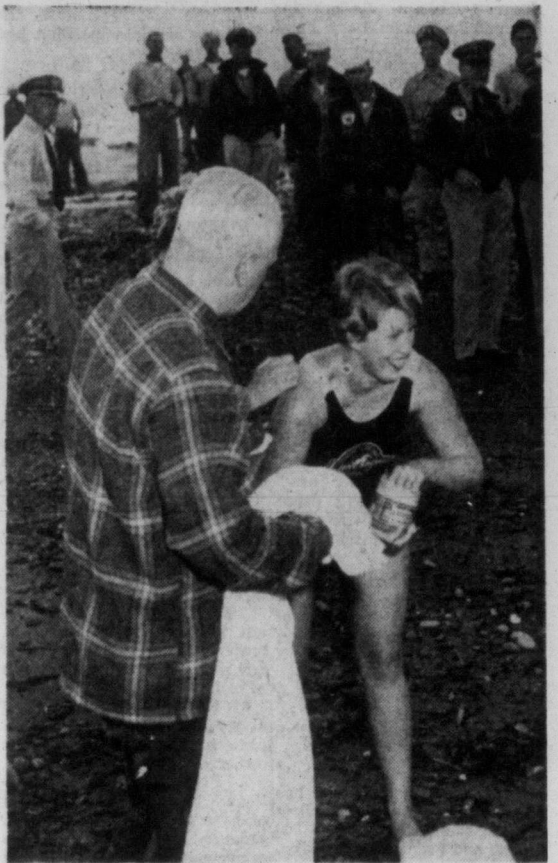

At the outset her coach, Gus Ryder, said she would be taken from the water unless conditions smoothed out, and the swim would be termed a "practice."

Marilyn appeared in better condition, mentally and physically, than on her first attempt, which she later termed "just not one of my days."

She swam strongly, her famed flutter kick forcing her through the rolling troughs and over the spindrift crests of waves from a foot to 18 inches deep.

The calm inshore water was soon replaced by a light chop, which increased in intensity.

Looking astern from the accompanying coach boat, the

SMILING, CHEERFUL

Beaten, Robbed in Park

VANCOUVER (CP)—Thomas Lawrence Kennedy of Edmonton was found in Stanley Park by police Wednesday, beaten and robbed of $1,200 in travellers' cheques and cash. He is in hospital.

The announcement said the contract has been awarded "as part of AECL's policy of providing for the greatest possible participation of private industry in the Canadian atomic energy program."

AMF Atomics Ltd. has agreed to set up a plant at Port Hope, Ont., and sell the rods at cost to the crown company.

It is understood AMF Atomics felt that by offering to produce rods at cost it would be placing itself in a position to establish a Canadian industry which could later supply other purchasers in Canada and sell on world markets.

Value of the contract was not disclosed.

Fuel rods for research reactors are made by rolling uranium metal into 10-foot cylinders. The uranium oxide to be used in the power plant probably will be in the form of compressed pellets.

Flotilla Not Optimistic

Feeling aboard the swim flotilla—a tiny one compared to that which accompanied her attempt from the Victoria side Aug. 10—was more of admiration for her swimming style and stamina, than of high optimism.

As early as the second hour of the swim, it did not seem possible she would be able to go all the way, or even to make an all-out effort to reach the Victoria shore.

But there was the usual good-natured by-play between the swimmer and accompanying craft.

Shortly after the start of the swim, coach Gus Ryder eased Marilyn along at a clockwork 54 strokes to the minute. Talking to himself, but aloud, he said, "She's working into her stride."

Then, without breaking rhythm or changing her stroke, which had increased to 60 strokes per minute, she turned to breathe, as she usually does on her right side.

Word was passed to the coach boat to have Marilyn step up the pace. Shortly before, Ryder had said "she's looking better now than she did at any time on her first swim."

In addition to the Island Champion and the coach boat, five craft with newsmen aboard were in the flotilla as it reached a point five miles from the U.S. shore. The Champion flew four flags—the Canadian ensign, the Stars and Stripes, the Island Tug and Barge house flag, and Marilyn's own flag, which accompanied her to victory over the English Channel.

The Champion flew four flags—the Canadian ensign, the Stars and Stripes, the Island Tug and Barge house flag, and Marilyn's own flag, which accompanied her to victory over the English Channel.

Word was passed to the coach boat to have Marilyn step up the pace. Shortly before, Ryder had said "she's looking better now than she did at any time on her first swim."

Tory, 2 Papers Called to Court

Sommers' Claim of 'Contempt' To Be Heard Monday By Judge

VANCOUVER (CP)—Counsel for a former British Columbia cabinet minister will try to prove in Supreme Court Monday that two Vancouver newspapers and the B.C. Progressive Conservative party leader have been in contempt of court through election campaign statements.

Counsel for R. E. Sommers—lands and forests minister in the Social Credit government who resigned after launching a slander suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy—was granted leave to apply for writs of attachment for commitment of the Vancouver Sun, Vancouver Herald, and PC leader Deane Finlayson.

The writs are legally defined as court orders commanding the sheriff to bring before it a person who allegedly has been guilty of contempt.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson will be asked to rule that an election campaign speech made by Mr. Finlayson last Monday and reports of that speech in the newspapers were prejudicial to the outcome of Mr. Sommers' pending slander action.

Mr. Finlayson's speech, in which he read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence in the slander action, was the start of his campaigning for the Sept. 19 provincial general election, called 10 days ago by Social Credit Premier Bennett.

NAME INDIVIDUALS
Individuals named in the contempt actions against the two newspapers are Donald C. Cromie, president and publisher of The Sun; Frank Walden, Sun staff reporter; and Gerald M. Brown, publisher and editor-in-chief of The Herald.

Mr. Sommers' counsel will ask for costs of the action.

The Province, Vancouver's third newspaper, is not involved in this latest development of the election campaign and of the Sommers-Sturdy slander suit. Mr. Finlayson's speech, in which he read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence in the slander action, was the start of his campaigning for the Sept. 19 provincial general election, called 10 days ago by Social Credit Premier Bennett.

CROMIE MAKES STATEMENT

VANCOUVER (CP)—Donald Cromie, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, said today The Sun published the statement of defence in the Sommers-Sturdy Libel case because it felt "Our duty lay in treating the case as news."

EGYPT WARNED

Even as the conference adjourned, Britain was pressing its mid-Eastern military build-up. It also issued a stern warning to Egypt not to hold up British and French shipping in the strategic waterway.

In New York, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld disclosed he had cancelled a projected visit to Latin America because of the "present situation—the Middle East Suez and the situation generally."

OIL THREAT

In Paris the Egyptian embassy announced that Saudi Arabia had warned the United States that millions of dollars of U.S. oil installations would "go up in smoke" if the West tried to impose its Suez decision on Egypt by force.

London afternoon newspapers reported in banner headlines the Eden cabinet's determination to act if there's any slowdown in Anglo-French shipping in the Suez.

The British foreign office spokesman said the government had received cable reports of the Egyptian threat to delay British and French ships if western pilots quit.

He said this would be "a very grave matter" and "a serious discrimination against British shipping."

The Cairo newspaper Al-Akhar reported that Russia has offered to supply Soviet pilots for the canal should some 300 British and French pilots resign.

CRACK UNITS LEAVE

Britain's fully-mechanized Lifeguards, the senior regiment in the British Army, moved from its barracks at Windsor for a secret Mediterranean destination.

Hundreds of tanks, armored cars and trucks—all painted a yellowish-buff for desert warfare—continued to pour into the port of Plymouth where they have been arriving for several days.

Tomorrow's sermon from Cairo's Al-Azhar mosque was published today. It will be broadcast to Moslems worldwide urging Arabs to take up arms and enlist for military training.

The sermon cites verses from the Koran and Mohammed's example for "general mobilization and national struggle."

If the Moslems were ever to launch a Jihad, or holy war, against the western powers it would be proclaimed at Al-Azhar mosque. One was proclaimed during the 1948 war against Israel.

Announcement of the Friday sermon followed long conversations between Nasser and his military commanders.

At the same time, Kamal Ramzy Stino, Egyptian minister of supply, announced that Egypt had sufficient supplies and food stocks for six months. The supply committee yesterday reviewed the country's food position if faced by western blockade.

EDMONTON (CP)—The Alberta government realized $736,043.53 Wednesday from the sale of drilling reservations of petroleum and natural gas rights to 17 parcels in the east-central part of the province.

Canadian City Service Petroleum Association was top bidder. $167,761 for 7,042 acres near Alsike.

Imperial Oil bid $103,681.57 for 5,118 acres near Toes and Phillips Oil paid $130,000 for two parcels totalling 11,689 acres north of St. Paul.

government, "back-room" timber deals, the Social Credit government's attempts to give the province's power resources away to private interests, and the "poor relation" treatment for agriculture.

Mr. Strachan restricted his criticism of other parties almost entirely to the Social Crediters. "The Liberals are not an issue in this campaign, because they are no longer a party with a basic progressive policy," he said. "The Conservatives under that name are dead in the province of B.C."

In the last legislature the CCF, the official opposition, had 14 of the 48 seats.

The platform:
1. Power—Electricity at the lowest rates by the publicly-owned B.C. Power Commission. Private profit-making interests must be kept out of the Columbia River development. The Mica Creek dam should be built by the combined federal-provincial authorities.

2. Forest Management—End control by private monopolies and restore to the public full management of timberlands through the forest service. No more forest management licences.

FARM FUND

3. Agriculture—Cut farm costs through public power and cheap fertilizer. Set up a farm stabilization fund to give security to farm families in emergencies.

4. The right to strike and peaceful picketing must be restored by abolishing "ex parte" injunctions.

5. Housing—Build and assist in the purchase of good, modern housing for people on low incomes at a price they can afford.

6. Natural gas—cheap and abundant gas for industry, farm and home through public ownership.

7. Provincial-municipal relations—Equal treatment for all taxpayers and municipalities. Enlarged provincial grants to municipalities to reduce the tax burden on land.

FISHERIES

8. The Fraser—Preserve the salmon supply and fishing industry, for many years ahead. Other sources, such as the Columbia River, can supply power for expansion.

9. Hospitals for Chronics—Provide the care they need and relieve the overcrowding of general hospitals.

10. Public Car Insurance at Cost—Protect the public, car owners, passengers, pedestrians, and the families involved in accidents.

11. A Highway Commission—Build roads on a properly-planned, province-wide basis, free from patronage and other political pressures.

AMHERST, N.S. (CP)—The manager of last year's Amherst Ramblers of the Atlantic Coast Senior Hockey League said Wednesday Pierre Brillant, reported to have signed with Kamloops Elks of the Okanagan Senior League, is still the property of Ramblers.

Lawsuits Over Doria-Stockholm Collision Could Run for Years

By GEORGE MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Legal fog is likely to hang over the Andrea Doria-Stockholm collision for some time, years perhaps, marine law experts say.

There is no international machinery to settle legal questions or to determine guilt in collisions between ships of different nationalities on the high seas.

Many admiralty lawyers, however, take the view that the legal jigsaw puzzle was fitted together when the Italian line and Swedish American line, the ship operators involved, took their dispute into federal court at New York.

Some believe that once the case went before an American court, the chances lessened that Swedish or Italian courts would ever be called upon to consider it.

Ten American courts are sitting in judgment because American interests claimed damage to persons and cargoes, and both steamship companies have assets in the U.S.

HOW BINDING?

But some experts ask: "How binding will be the limits of liability set by an American court on a Swedish or Italian tribunal?"

These limits are bound, according to U.S. statute, to the present $3,211,655 value of the surviving Stockholm, or in the case of the sunken Andrea Doria to $55 a gross ton or about $1,900,000 plus cargo value.

Ordinarily the ocean tragedy could not be investigated officially by U.S. authorities. The U.S. Coast Guard can only sift for evidence of error arising out of the operation of ships under the U.S. flag or in American territorial waters.

Rules exist to promote safety at sea—the 1948 international convention for safety at sea. However, international authority to guarantee compliance from ships operated on the high seas is non-existent.

There are those who want the rule enforced by an international agency such as the World Court or the United Nations.

OPPOSES IDEA

But maritime interests in many places favor enforcement as now—on a purely national basis.

The rules are there. Ships should keep to their side of the sea lanes. They should operate at a safe, moderate speed in low visibility areas.

Nonetheless, ship collisions are not rare. The coast guard reported that in U.S. territorial waters in 1955 there were 244 collisions, involving 580 vessels, and that damage in each instance ran over $1,500.

Not unlike motorists involved in a highway collision, shipowners generally tend to claim it was "the other guy's fault" and that he should be made to pay damages for whatever harm is done.

In the present instance, the Swedish American line started the legal action by seeking exoneration for the Stockholm in federal court. At the same time the company asked that its liability be limited to the value of the ship, now undergoing a $995,000 repair job at a Brooklyn shipyard.

In turn, the Italian line has asked the court to declare the Andrea Doria blameless. It has filed a $25,000,000 claim for the sunken ship. It also has sought an unstated sum as "indemnity or contribution" from the Swedish line for all sums which the Italian line may be called upon to pay for deaths, injuries and losses arising from the disaster.

The Italian line likewise has sought to have the court limit its liability in suits brought against the line to $400,000.

A number of claims running into the tens of millions have been filed since the Andrea Doria went to her Atlantic grave south of Nantucket on July 26, about 11 hours after colliding with the Stockholm. About fifty persons are presumed dead or unaccounted for.

At least 12 suits are on record against the steamship companies in federal court. Judge Lawrence E. Walsh has approved their consolidation into one overall action. One, a $900,000 suit against the Swedish line, had been filed on behalf of 78 shippers, consignees and underwriters.

Later, Judge Walsh named four well-known lawyers to serve as unpaid special masters to take a mass of pre-trial evidence beginning Sept. 10. The thousands of pages of testimony given by scores of witnesses before the special masters eventually will be used by Judge Walsh to fix blame for the accident.

From present indications, the U.S. court proceedings may be more extensive than the investigations planned by government authorities in Italy and Sweden. The Italian hearings begin shortly. The Swedish inquiry starts later.

... CONTEMPT

LEGAL WARNING

Before Mr. Finlayson's Monday night speech, Alfred Bull, one of the former minister's legal advisers, had told the Progressive Conservative leader he would take contempt-of-court action if Mr. Finlayson made any reference to details involved in the slander suit.

However, Mr. Finlayson in his speech read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence. The Vancouver Herald and The Sun published quotations from the statement of defence next day. The Province carried lengthy excerpts from Mr. Finlayson's speech but did not mention the specific charges included in the statement.

The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative, also did not quote from the statement of defence. Subsequently it sought copies of both the statement of defence and the statement of claim filed earlier by Mr. Sommers in launching his slander action.

Court officials said the statements were not available for publication at this time. Counsel for Mr. Sommers declined to permit publication of the statement of claim.

Mr. Sommers, nominated this week as Social Credit candidate to seek re-election in Rossland-Trail constituency, resigned his cabinet portfolio—but not his legislative seat—last Feb. 27.

He charged early this year that he was the victim of a conspiracy by a section of the forest industry and the Liberal party in British Columbia.

(Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for Mr. Sommers, was quoted in papers this morning as saying that further applications may be made in connection with the contempt writs.

"We have decided to leave the Victoria Daily Times for the moment," Mr. Bull was quoted as saying. The Times published the report of Mr. Finlayson's speech.)

BETWEEN TIMES By MONTE ROBERTS

The way things are going in this election campaign, a man has to be mighty careful what he says, does, or (especially) writes.

Therefore, I am issuing a warning to my friends in the advertising business.

Dear friends in the advertising business: do not write anything which may be construed as supporting or condemning one or the other of the political parties.

Do not, for instance, write an advertisement which states your client offers a liberal trade-in allowance.

This can be interpreted by the courts as being prejudiced opinion, and, to say the least, you will wind up in jail for a long time.

It would be unwise, dear friends in the advertising business, to announce one of your clients has sold more widgets than any other widget manufacturer by, at a conservative estimate, 10,000 widgets.

The courts would be inclined to regard this as apt to influence the electorate, cause them to pre-judge the merits of candidates, and cause you, dear friends in the advertising business, to be dunked in Finlayson's Arm (1,000 scenic feet below the Malahat Chalet. Advt.).

For the time being at least, dear friends etc., you would be well advised to stay away from co-operative advertising.

Even in regard to labor-saving devices, no matter how popular they are through the commonwealth. It would be so easy to have your names Strachan from the record.

And as for references to easy credit terms, 24 years to pay—need I point out the pitfalls, dear friends in the advertising business?

Your polished prose would likely be misinterpreted as a reference to credit used for social purposes, and you could well be marched to the wall by a firing squad with Bennett's at the rear.

To sum up, dear friends in the advertising business—and if you think I am being too liberal with advice, or laboring the point, give me credit for a conservative summation—don't sue us, we'll sue you.

Or, as the lawyer said to his pal as they left the bar: "I'll be suing you in all the old familiar places."

SHIRLEY FRAYN

LIKES DUTCH TOO

London Tops With City Girl

Men's and ladies' groups of the Esquimalt Salvation Army Citadel competed last spring to "send Shirley to London."

The ladies raised the most money, so they were treated to a social evening, and Shirley Frayn, daughter of the Citadel's Senior Captain, Cyril Frayn, got her trip.

The young teenager returned this week following the Army's 12-day international corps cadets' congress in London.

RED BLAZERS

Close to 100 corps cadets from all parts of the world attended to celebrate the corps' 60th anniversary. Shirley was among eight delegates from B.C., and 68 from other parts of Canada. All B.C. "Sally Anns" wore red blazers with a B.C. crest, presented to the group in Vancouver by Mayor Fred Hume.

"It was the most wonderful trip I've ever taken," she says. Shirley met delegates from several countries, some through interpreters, and was so impressed by the Dutch delegation that she flew to Holland for a week's visit before coming home.

Highlight of her stay in London was a tour of Madame Tussaud's waxworks, where she came face to face with a life-like image of General William Booth, Salvation Army founder, and the only member of the Army in the collection.

Shirley intends to make her career with the Sally Ann. She graduated from Victoria High School in June.

Victoria's Lack Of Trailer Parks Brings Criticism

Victoria is criticized for its lack of trailer parks in a feature article written by Volle Tripp for the magazine "Trail-R-News" which caters to thousands of owners of trailers throughout the United States.

Otherwise the U.S. writer praises Victoria for its gardens and stately homes and urges "road-gypsies" to visit the city.

Mr. Tripp who visited the city recently, writes that Victoria has no trailer parks that Americans would call "parks" by their standards.

"The trailer idea has not caught on up there just yet, and such 'parks' as one finds are operated more or less as a side line to a motel," he said.

He added: "They are not landscaped and are not attractive. An attitude of casualness or indifference, seems to hover about them."

The writer's impressions of the city proves that U.S. tourists see things of interest which the average Victorian does not consider worthwhile advertising.

For instance, he raps Victorians for not publicizing Craigdarroch Castle and Hatley Park.

In addition, he writes that one of the most interesting things he saw were the many little roadside stalls or stands selling jams and jellies, in Saanich.

View Royal Set To Fight Water Rate Hike

'Not Justified' Says Official

View Royal and other rural residents will strongly oppose any move by the Greater Victoria Water District to boost their rates 35 to 40 per cent for water.

This is the reaction of householders to an announcement made by water commissioner I. D. Lachlan Tuesday that the Water Board will apply to the Public Utilities Commission for permission to increase the water rates in rural areas.

2,800 AFFECTED

If the commission grants the application, he said, 2,800 homes in an area extending from View Royal to Sooke Harbor would be affected by the new rates.

The new rates would only affect homes situated outside the four municipalities of Greater Victoria, he explained.

He said the water district is seeking increased rates because the cost of servicing had risen steadily over a period of years.

"The rates we are asking for may sound like a fair wallop," he stated, "but it would be the first boost in rural rates in 24 years."

Costs of materials and labor have nearly doubled in that period, he said.

Persons objecting to the revision of rates, he said, will have until Sept. 12 to register their objections with the PUC at 620 View Street.

STRONG FIGHT

W. Maude-Moore, president of the View Royal Community Association, said the proposed rate hike is not justified and will be strongly opposed.

Duncan McTavish, former city alderman and a View Royal resident, said the water district seemed to be seeking to force rural householders to subsidize areas which are not serviced with water.

"Saanich makes a big profit from its water," he said. "It uses the profits for the extension of the water supply to outlying districts."

Mr. McTavish said if Saanich residents are willing to subsidize other areas in the municipality that was their affair, but View Royal should not be forced to do the same.

Tuna Industry Re-Birth Indicated by V.I. Catch

Fisheries Boat Ordered To Investigate Reports

Re-birth of B.C.'s $2,000,000 tuna fishing industry is a distinct possibility today as the federal fisheries vessel Kitimat speeds from Victoria to the West Coast to investigate reports of tuna strikes.

The Vancouver fishboat Anchor M III reported catches of 200 tuna Tuesday and 100 Wednesday off Estevan Point on the west coast south of Nootka Sound, 150 miles northwest of Victoria.

No tuna have been caught off the B.C. coast since 1950. That year showed a sharp decline over the record $2,000,000 catch in 1949.

SPECIAL PATROL

The Kitimat was ordered out on a special patrol today to check on the Anchor M's report. The fishboat is still out on the grounds.

Possibility that this may be the beginning of a profitable tuna run is strengthened by reports from Astoria, Ore., of a single boat catch of 300 tuna on Tuesday. The Oregon coast has also been minus tuna for several years.

Why the run disappeared is an unknown factor. Each year fisheries patrol vessels test the grounds, which run as much as 150 miles offshore.

The Kitimat returned from a patrol last week with encouraging reports of conditions suitable for tuna, but without having sighted or caught a fish.

12-20 POUNDS

Tuna caught off the B.C. coast average about 12 pounds, although some run to 20 pounds or more. In past years, they were frozen at storage plants here and in Vancouver, then shipped to canneries in the U.S. Biggest demand for tinned tuna fish is in the United States. At one time, about 70 tuna boats fished out of Victoria.

MARRIED AT WASHINGTON FAIR

Wedding Contest Winners Honeymoon Here Sept. 3

A young Tacoma couple who "just didn't have the money to be married" will be here for three days starting Sept. 3 at the Empress Hotel—very much married.

Joyce Allen, 17, and Gerald Walden, 18, were chosen as winners of the Monroe Fair wedding contest, and they've received about $2,000 in gifts from Washington State businessmen, plus the wedding trip here.

They'll be married Sept. 2 at the fair.

The young couple competed with many other twosomes who had applied for assistance to the fair committee in a marriage contest with awards, based on "worthwhileness," of the engaged couples.

Walden is a short-haul navy vet; she's an adopted daughter.

"Gerald and I are very much in love," said pretty Joyce.

FORMER VICTORIAN, opera tenor Arthur Ross-Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Ross-Jones, 1973 Crescent Road, will appear on "Talent Scouts" over CBS television Monday at 8:30 p.m.

Upon graduation from Victoria College Mr. Ross-Jones joined radio station CBR, Vancouver, as a staff singer. Two years later he left for Hollywood, where he sang recently in the Hollywood Bowl during a Rodgers and Hammerstein program. He will return to the famed amphitheatre Sept. 22 to sing tenor lead in the opera "David."

Forest Probe Conclusion Seen Today

After more than 18 months, hearings on British Columbia's forest industry are expected to conclude this afternoon at the courthouse here.

Last witness to be heard will be L. L. G. Bentley, vice-president of Canadian Forest Products.

Chief Justice Gordon Sloan will then proceed with his study of the monumental report.

Witnesses before the commission today agreed that clause 30 of the forest management legislation should be rewritten, Mr. Sloan said.

Clause 30 provides for small loggers to have access to 30 per cent of the timber cut in management licence areas.

"If there is any unanimity in this inquiry it seems to be that clause 30 should be re-written," the chief justice said.

He was commenting on submissions made in rebuttal today by Ian Barclay for Columbia Cellulose Co.

Concluding his case in rebuttal for the Forest Policy Development Association, Gordon Wismer, Q.C., noted that former MLA Gordon Gibson had recommended the cancellation or appropriation of all FMLs.

He declared that such a step "would destroy the only virtue industry remaining to the city of Victoria, eliminating 1,500 jobs, directly associated with this industry, and wiping out payrolls in excess of $45,000,000 a year."

Half-Day Closing Tested

Court Rules Against Store

An attempt to defeat Victoria's "confusing" Wednesday store closing legislation was unsuccessful in city police court today.

Mrs. Elizabeth Fitzgerald, operator of The Quest for Handicrafts store at 607 Fort, was fined a nominal $10 for violating the provincial Shops Closing Act.

Counsel Edwin E. Pearlman sought dismissal of the charge on the grounds the prosecution had not proved existence of a city by-law as required by the act.

He described the original Act of 1916 and subsequent amendments allowing exemptions as a "hodge-podge."

City clerk Frank Hunter testified for the prosecution that a 1918 referendum approved changing the half-day closing from Saturday to Wednesday by a margin of 1609 to 1459.

NO BY-LAW

Mr. Pearlman contended the record of this referendum did not prove existence of a by-law ordering half-day closing for stores. The provincial statute required individual municipalities to establish the closing day, he said.

Magistrate A. I. Thomas said he had "no doubt" there had been a violation of the statute in this case.

The charge was laid when a plainclothes policeman purchased a man's tie in the shop at 3 p.m. Wednesday, July 18.

Mr. Pearlman said the tie, made by disabled weavers in Canada, could be construed as a souvenir, which may be sold on Wednesday afternoons.

False Pretences Charge Brings Two-Year Term

A two-year prison term in Oakalla was imposed by Magistrate A. I. Thomas in city police court today on Christopher Kitley, convicted of false pretences.

Prosecutor Alan Bigelow said Kitley had an "extensive" criminal record and read off a number of charges over the last 10 years including breaking and entering and robbery with violence.

Kitley admitted obtaining $98 of paint from Mount-Grant Ltd. by false pretences.

Court was told he obtained the paint by charging it in the name of the landlady of his rooming house.

Ban on Women In Pool Rooms Upheld By Court

A "discriminatory" city by-law which makes it illegal for women to be in a pool room was upheld in police court today.

Stanley Taylor, manager of the Royal Olympic billiard room at 642 Johnson, pleaded guilty and was fined a nominal $5 by Magistrate A. I. Thomas.

The magistrate admitted the by-law was "outdated as far as modern society is concerned."

Counsel David Sloan said Mr. Taylor had never heard of the by-law, which he described as "archaic and discriminatory."

Women had been encouraged to play billiards by the management, he said.

In this particular case, Mr. Sloan said, the 19-year-old girl was the wife of a man playing pool in the hall.

The charge was laid Aug. 9, at 9:35 p.m.

ASK The TIMES

Q.—Many years ago, when I was a little girl, a passenger ship named the Bourgoyne, was sunk in a collision in the Atlantic. What date was that and how many lives were lost?

Mrs. P.D.

A.—La Bourgoyne, a French passenger liner of 7,385 tons gross, was struck by the British ship Cromartyshire 60 miles south of Sable Island, often referred to as "the graveyard of the Atlantic," about 5 a.m. July 4, 1898 and sank in ten minutes. It was an appalling sea disaster in which 569 persons lost their lives. She was carrying 725, including 565 passengers. These history records 165 were saved. That disaster was separated by but a few months from the sinking of the U.S. battleship Maine in Havana Harbor, Feb. 15, 1898, which act brought on the Spanish-American War.

VANCOUVER APPLAUDS VICTORIA

More than 250,000 people watched the Victoria entry in the Pacific National Exhibition parade in Vancouver Wednesday, and they loved it. Reason? Victoria's float, with Miss Victoria Marilynne Dawson and princesses Doreen Gerard and Jill Pinniger aboard, won second prize in the out-of-town division. The float, which cost $750, was designed by Ray Garside and built by Norman Findler and Bard Wheatcroft. Flowers were made by city Girl Guides and other volunteer helpers. Driver of float was Ken Quagliotti. Victoria's hanging flower baskets, a sure attention-getter here, were featured.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Here's How to Kill Two Bulges With One Exercise

Today exercises are streamlined. Women used to go through many laborious, ineffective and rapid exercises and then wonder why they did not get the results they craved. Today a few highly effective motions, when indulged in for 20 or 30 minutes each day, will improve the figure remarkably.

Some exercises are especially effective in slimming a couple of figure faults. With each motion you kill two bulges. What more could you ask? I call these my combination exercises.

The following exercise is effective in reducing the thighs and the abdomen: Lie on the floor on your back with your arms out at your sides (resting on the floor) and your legs straight. Bend both knees up close to the abdomen. As you stretch the legs, separate them and lower them to the floor, as far apart as comfortable. Drag the legs together (not lifting the heels from the floor). Bend and continue. If you have sacroiliac trouble you should not try this exercise, or should be very careful when you do.

This exercise slims the abdomen, waist and hips. Lie on the floor on your back, with your legs straight and your arms stretched out on the floor extending straight from your shoulders. Palms cling to the floor. Lift your left leg up as far as comfortable with a stiff knee. Cross the left leg over the right and touch the floor on the right side of the body with the left foot. Lift the left leg up and then return it to place on the floor. This time lift the right leg up as far as comfortable, cross it over the left leg and touch the floor on the left side of your body with your right foot. Continue, alternating left and right.

Do all of your exercises with rhythm, in a smooth way, not jerkily. Also beware of doing them too rapidly. Take time for the stretch.

If you would like to have my combination exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 5 "Combination Exercises," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Woman Sought in Vancouver Slaying

VANCOUVER (CP)—Police said today they are seeking a woman in a polka-dotted dress for what may be "valuable" information in the death of Horst Fenske, 43-year-old German immigrant, who died Sunday in hospital after a severe beating.

Fenske was found lying on the sidewalk in the downtown area. He died without regaining consciousness from severe head and throat injuries following an operation Sunday.

B.C. Swimmer Sets Record in Trials

TORONTO (CP)—Vancouver's 16-year-old Allan Brew, last year named Canada's best all-round junior swimmer, cheered a rain-soaked crowd today at heats of the Canadian Olympic trials and national championships, finishing to a Canadian junior and senior record in the junior 100-yard backstroke.

Tory, 2 Papers
Called to Court

VANCOUVER (CP)—Counsel for a former British Columbia cabinet minister will try to prove in Supreme Court Monday that two Vancouver newspapers and the B.C. Progressive Conservative party leader have been in contempt of court through election campaign statements.

Sun Publisher
Tells Why He Printed Charges

VANCOUVER (CP)—Donald Cromie, publisher of the Vancouver Sun, said today the Sun published the statement of defence in the Sommers-Sturdy Libel case because it felt "Our duty lay in treating the case as news."

In a front-page statement published today by The Sun, Mr. Cromie said: "We reported to the public what opposition candidates proclaim is important criticism of the government. They charge that the government has called an election while charges remain outstanding against an ex-cabinet minister. And, they described those charges against the ex-minister, descriptions which might normally be in contempt of court, because of the pending court case over them."

"We faced the question of whether the ex-minister's civil rights took precedence over the public's parliamentary rights to hear criticisms and charges before voting. Are the charges legitimate news?"

"We considered the fact that the premier accepted his minister's resignation; that his attorney-general ordered an investigation and received a report on the charges, and withheld the report from the public; that the premier called an election while this situation was unresolved; that the ex-minister, Robert E. Sommers, now stands as an election candidate."

"As a newspaper, we had to answer the question of the public's parliamentary and political rights versus candidate Sommers' private rights in view of these considerations. In time to publish the news or not publish it."

"We reasoned that candidate Sommers, therefore removed his own immunity, if his colleagues had not already done so by removing the case to the larger court of parliamentary campaign, and that our duty lay in treating the case as news."

Counsel for R. E. Sommers-lands and forests minister in the Social Credit government who resigned after launching a slander suit against Vancouver lawyer David Sturdy—was granted leave to apply for writs of attachment for committal of the Vancouver Sun, Vancouver Herald, and PC leader Deane Finlayson.

The writs are legally defined as court orders commanding the sheriff to bring before it a person who allegedly has been guilty of contempt.

Mr. Justice A. M. Manson will be asked to rule that an election campaign speech made by Mr. Finlayson last Monday and reports of that speech in the newspapers were prejudicial to the outcome of Mr. Sommers' pending slander action.

Mr. Finlayson's speech, in which he read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence in the slander action, was the start of his campaigning for the Sept. 19 provincial general election, called 10 days ago by Social Credit Premier Bennett.

NAME INDIVIDUALS
Individuals named in the contempt actions against the two newspapers are Donald C. Cromie, president and publisher of The Sun; Frank Walden, Sun staff reporter; and Gerald M. Brown, publisher and editor-in-chief of The Herald.

Mr. Sommers' counsel will ask for costs of the actions.

The Province, Vancouver's third newspaper, is not involved in this latest development of the election campaign and of the Sommers-Sturdy slander suit. Mr. Sommers' counsel will ask for costs of the actions.

COAST GUARD MEN SEE MARILYN OFF

Nasser to Listen
With 'No' in Mind

LONDON (UP)—The 22-nation Suez conference ended today in an atmosphere of bitterness heightened by the virtual certainty Egypt would reject the majority-approved plan to internationalize the canal.

Russian Foreign Minister D. I. Shepilov accused the west of "splitting the conference" with its determination to submit to Egypt the John Foster Dulles plan for internationalization which was supported by 18 of the 22 nations attending.

The London conference's delegation to Cairo will consist of representatives of Australia, Ethiopia, Iran, Sweden and the United States and will be headed by Australian Premier Robert G. Menzies.

Meanwhile, authoritative sources in Cairo said that Nasser's answer to the Dulles plan will be a firm "no."

They said, however, he would receive any delegation from the London conference.

ABUSIVE

In Cairo the government newspaper Al Gomhuria said official sources "categorically denied" a Wednesday report that Egypt would agree to negotiate on the Dulles plan.

Other newspapers heaped abuse on the plan as a "snake inside a bouquet of flowers."

The Cairo sources said also there was little enthusiasm in the city.

Marilyn Battling Wind-Whipped Sea

By DENNY BOYD

With more than 10 miles of wind-whipped water behind her, Marilyn Bell at 3.30 p.m. today was battling her way past Race Rocks in an effort to swim from Port Angeles to Victoria under adverse weather conditions.

What started out as a possible "training swim," because the weather looked so bad, turned into an all-out battle between the swimming skill and endurance of the young swimming star and the whitecaps and tides tossed up by Juan de Fuca strait.

At 3.30 p.m., Marilyn was 10 1/2 miles from her starting point, with 7 1/2 miles to go to the Victoria shoreline. She was in F6 on the Times' swim chart, after six hours in the water.

She had apparently recovered from a soreness in her left arm, which for a time seemed to give her trouble. But, as she cleared the Race Rocks area, it was once more coming up strong and high from the water.

She was stroking off about 60 to the minute, stopping infrequently for very brief feedings. Earlier she had remarked "my stomach is turning around."

Winds whipped the strait into a froth of whitecaps but, her coach said: "She is strong and determined, better than she ever looked on her previous attempt. Only adverse weather or cold water can beat Marilyn."

She took off from Ediz Hook, Port Angeles, at 9.30 a.m. in calm inshore water, but in the face of ominous weather forecasts.

At the outset her coach, Gus Ryder, said she would be taken from the water unless conditions smoothed out, and the swim would be termed a "practice."

Marilyn appeared in better condition, mentally and physically, than on her first attempt, which she later termed "just not one of my days."

She swam strongly, her famed flutter kick forcing her through the rolling troughs and over the spindrift crests of waves from a foot to 18 inches deep.

The calm inshore water was soon replaced by a light chop, which increased in intensity.

Looking astern from the accompanying coach boat, the smoke from the Port Angeles mills was whipped out parallel to the ground.

Winds at noon were southwest 15, gusting to 20, according to the official observatory report.

Flotilla Not Optimistic

Feeling aboard the swim flotilla—a tiny one compared to that which accompanied her attempt from the Victoria side Aug. 10—was more of admiration for her swimming style and stamina, than of high optimism.

As early as the second hour of the swim, it did not seem possible she would be able to go all the way, or even to make an all-out effort to reach the Victoria shore.

But there was the usual good-natured, by-play between the swimmer and accompanying craft.

Shortly after the start of the swim, coach Gus Ryder eased Marilyn along at a clockwork 54 strokes to the minute. Talking to himself, but aloud, he said, "She's working into her stride."

"She's got a big steak to work off and her little bit of breakfast," he murmured. "I don't want her working too hard until we know how her tummy reacts in the rough water."

As the navigation boat, Island Tug and Barge company's Island Champion, drew alongside, Marilyn started to breathe on her left side so she could see the familiar faces lining its beach a few minutes earlier. While Marilyn was rubbing a thin layer of vaseline on her arms and legs, Jack Todd, her boatman, was standing in water up to his knees.

"Hurry up," he shouted. "It's cold in here."

Marilyn answered "you're telling me."

She called to Times reporter Denny Boyd: "Have a bonfire ready for me on the other side."

Mr. Dunn noticed she was wearing rings on her fingers. "Do you wear them while swimming?" he asked.

"Yes," quipped Marilyn, "they keep me warm."

Then Gus kissed her on the cheek and said "swim to Canada, Marilyn."

"I'll do it, Gus," she promised. Mr. Dunn said "goodbye and God bless you, Marilyn."

And Marilyn Bell was in the water, swimming.

SMILING, CHEERFUL

Smiling, cheerful Marilyn Bell applied usual light coating of vaseline before entering water at 9.30 a.m. from Ediz Hook. Gus Ryder lent steady hand as personnel from U.S. Coast Guard station watched.

EOKA SPURNS AMNESTY
'COME AND GET US'

NICOSIA (UP)—The EOKA extremist organization rejected Britain's surrender offer today.

The rejection was published in the form of leaflets circulated in Nicosia and Limassol.

In the leaflet EOKA, which has been fighting for union of this British Mediterranean colony with Greece, rejected surrender terms offered its members Wednesday night by Sir John Harding, island governor. It challenged the British to "come and get us."

REPORT FROM FRANCE

Stalin Met Revolt, Tried To Call Aid, Dropped Dead

PARIS (Reuters)—The weekly newspaper France-Dimanche said a Soviet Communist leader, Lazar Kaganovich, now first deputy premier, threw his Communist card in Stalin's face just before the Russian dictator's death in 1953.

The newspaper says this happened at a meeting of the Supreme Presidium called by Kaganovich on his own initiative. It adds that its version of the events came from what Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg told the French existentialist philosopher, Jean Paul Sartre.

At the presidium meeting on March 1, 1953, Kaganovich proposed a special committee to study the case of doctors arrested without proof in an alleged "doctors' plot," and called for revocation of a Stalin decision on deportation of Jews.

Stalin lost his temper and swore at his colleagues. Anastas Mikoyan, also now a first deputy premier, warned him against any "foolishness," adding, "If we do not leave your office freely in half an hour, the army will occupy the Kremlin."

Kaganovich stood up, brandishing his party card. "Look what I do with this," he said. He tore it up into small pieces and threw the pieces in Stalin's face.

Stalin's face became purple. He reached for a bell-button to call his guards, but dropped from a stroke before he could touch it.

Egypt for the Indian plan which would recognize Egypt's right to own and control the canal but would set up an international body with advisory capacities only.

They said there was no point in considering the Indian plan because only four nations backed it.

EGYPT WARNED

Even as the conference adjourned, Britain was pressing its mid-Eastern military build-up. It also issued a stern warning to Egypt not to hold up British and French shipping in the strategic waterway.

In New York, United Nations Secretary General Dag Hammarskjöld disclosed he had called a projected visit to Latin America because of the "present situation—the Middle East, Suez and the situation generally."

OIL THREAT

In Paris the Egyptian embassy announced that Saudi Arabia had warned the United States that millions of dollars of U.S. oil installations would "go up in smoke" if the West tries to impose its Suez decision on Egypt by force.

London afternoon newspapers reported in banner headlines the Eden cabinet's determination to act if there's any slowdown in Anglo-French shipping in the Suez.

The British foreign office spokesman said the government had received reliable reports of the Egyptian threat to delay British and French ships if western pilots quit.

He said this would be "a very grave matter" and "a serious discrimination against British shipping."

The Cairo newspaper Al Akhar reported that Russia has offered to supply Soviet pilots for the canal should some 300 British and French pilots resign.

CRACK UNITS LEAVE

Britain's fully mechanized Lifeguards, the senior regiment in the British Army, moved from its barracks at Windsor for a secret Mediterranean destination.

Hundreds of tanks, armored cars and trucks—all painted a yellowish-beige for desert warfare—continued to pour into the port of Plymouth where they have been arriving for several days.

Tomorrow's sermon from Cairo's Al Azhar mosque was published today. It will be broadcast to Moslems worldwide urging Arabs to take up arms and enlist for military training.

The sermon cites verses from the Koran and Mohammed's example for "general mobilization and national struggle."

If the Moslems were ever to launch a Jihad, or holy war, against the western powers it would be proclaimed at Al Azhar mosque. One was proclaimed during the 1948 war against Israel.

Announcement of the Friday sermon followed long conversations between Nasser and his military commanders.

At the same time, Kamal Ramzy Stino, Egyptian minister of supply, announced that Egypt had sufficient supplies and food stocks for six months. The supply committee yesterday reviewed the country's food position if faced by western blockade.

CCF CHALLENGE

Why Hide RCMP File On Sommers?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Attorney-General R. W. Bonner was challenged Wednesday night to publicize before election day what the RCMP found about charges against former lands and forests minister R. E. Sommers.

CCF leader Robert Strachan called on Mr. Bonner "to stand up and speak for the people of British Columbia" by making public the report.

His reference was to a report of Inspector Butler of the RCMP, recently superannuated. The inspector was assigned Feb. 9 by Mr. Bonner to investigate the photostatic documents of lawyer David Sturdy, on which accusations against the ex-minister have been based.

Mr. Strachan was addressing a CCF Burrard nominating convention here.

"This is a government which has promised to keep the people of British Columbia informed, and it's hiding behind a civil case."

"If the report which the RCMP made to Mr. Bonner indicates that Mr. Sommers is guilty, then it is no longer a civil case, it is a criminal case."

"The attorney-general would have no alternative but to act on it."

"If there is nothing in the RCMP report which incriminates Mr. Sommers, then it is Mr. Bonner's duty to tell that to the people of British Columbia."

Atlin Soeds Name Asselstine

VANCOUVER (CP)—W. J. Asselstine, provincial Liberal minister of mines, trade and industry from 1937 to 1941, has been named Social Credit candidate for Atlin in the September 19 provincial election, it was learned here.

He has been a Social Credit party member for some time.

The riding, in the far northwest corner of the province, was represented in the last legislature by Frank Calder, CCF.

Helicopter Found

Company officials in Ottawa said today the aircraft was damaged but the pilot, Frank Harley, of Ottawa, was not hurt.

LEGAL FOG REPLACES REAL THING

Lawsuits Over Doria-Stockholm Collision Could Run for Years

By GEORGE MILLER

NEW YORK (AP)—Legal fog is likely to hang over the Andrea Doria-Stockholm collision for some time, years perhaps, marine law experts say.

There is no international machinery to settle legal questions or to determine guilt in collisions between ships of different nationalities on the high seas.

Many admiralty lawyers, however, take the view that the legal jigsaw puzzle was fitted together when the Italian line and Swedish American line, the ship operators involved, took their dispute into federal court at New York.

Some believe that once the case went before an American court, the chances lessened that Swedish or Italian courts would ever be called upon to consider it.

T American courts are sitting in judgment because American interests claimed damage to persons and cargoes, and both steamship companies have assets in the U.S.

But some experts ask: "How binding will be the limits of liability set by an American court on a Swedish or Italian tribunal?"

These limits are bound, according to U.S. statute, to the present $3,021,655 value of the surviving Stockholm, or in the case of the sunken Andrea Doria to $65 a gross ton or about $1,900,000 plus cargo value.

Originally, the ocean tragedy could not be investigated officially by U.S. authorities. The U.S. Coast Guard can only sift for evidence of error arising out of the operation of ships under the U.S. flag or in American territorial waters.

Rules exist to promote safety at sea—the 1948 international convention for safety at sea. However, international authority to guarantee compliance from ships operated on the high seas is non-existent.

There are those who want the rule enforced by an international agency such as the World Court or the United Nations.

OPPOSES IDEA But maritime interests in many places favor enforcement as now—on a purely national basis.

The rules are there. Ships should keep to their side of the sea lanes. They should operate at a safe, moderate speed in low visibility areas.

Nonetheless, ship collisions are not rare. The coast guard reported that in U.S. territorial waters in 1955 there were 244 collisions, involving 580 vessels, and that damage in each instance ran over $1,500.

Not unlike motorists involved in a highway collision, shipowners generally tend to claim it was "the other guy's fault" and that he should be made to pay damages for whatever harm is done.

In the present instance, the Swedish American line started the legal action by seeking exoneration for the Stockholm in federal court. At the same time the company asked that its liability be limited to the value of the ship, now undergoing a $995,000 repair job at a Brooklyn shipyard.

In turn, the Italian line has asked the court to declare the Andrea Doria blameless. It has filed a $25,000,000 claim for the sunken ship. It also has sought an unstated sum as "indemnity or contribution" from the Swedish line for all sums which the Italian line may be called upon to pay for deaths, injuries and losses arising from the disaster.

The Italian line likewise has sought to have the court limit its liability in suits brought against the line to $400,000.

A number of claims running into the tens of millions have been filed since the Andrea Doria went to her Atlantic grave south of Nantucket on July 26, about 11 hours after colliding with the Stockholm. About fifty persons are presumed dead or unaccounted for.

At least 12 suits are on record against the steamship companies in federal court. Judge Lawrence E. Walsh has approved their consolidation into one overall action. One, a $900,000 suit against the Swedish line, had been filed on behalf of 78 shippers, consignees and underwriters.

Later, Judge Walsh named four well-known lawyers to serve as unpaid special masters to take a mass of pre-trial evidence, beginning Sept. 10. The thousands of pages of testimony given by scores of witnesses before the special masters eventually will be used by Judge Walsh to fix blame for the accident.

From present indications, the U.S. court proceedings may be more extensive than the investigations planned by government authorities in Italy and Sweden. The Italian hearings begin shortly. The Swedish inquiry starts later.

CONTEMPT

LEGAL WARNING

Before Mr. Finlayson's Monday night speech, Alfred Bull, one of the former minister's legal advisers, had told the Progressive Conservative leader he would take contempt-of-court action if Mr. Finlayson made any reference to details involved in the slander suit.

However, Mr. Finlayson in his speech read from Mr. Sturdy's amended statement of defence. The Vancouver Herald and The Sun published quotations from the statement of defence next day. The Province carried lengthy excerpts from Mr. Finlayson's speech but did not mention the specific charges included in the statement.

The Canadian Press, national news-gathering co-operative, also did not quote from the statement of defence. Subsequently it sought copies of both the statement of defence and the statement of claim filed earlier by Mr. Sommers in launching his slander action.

Court officials said the statements were not available for publication at this time. Counsel for Mr. Sommers declined to permit publication of the statement of claim.

Mr. Sommers, nominated this week as Social Credit candidate to seek re-election in Rossland-Trail constituency, resigned his cabinet portfolio—but not his legislative seat—last Feb. 27.

He charged early this year that he was the victim of a conspiracy by a section of the forest industry and the Liberal party in British Columbia.

(Alfred Bull, QC, counsel for Mr. Sommers, was quoted in papers this morning as saying that further applications may be made in connection with the contempt writs.

"We have decided to leave the Victoria Daily Times for the moment," Mr. Bull was quoted as saying. The Times published the report of Mr. Finlayson's speech.)

3-WEEK BRINKS TRIAL REJECTS 1,146TH JUROR

BOSTON (UP)—The Brink's trial expected to seat its first juror today despite defence manoeuvres which challenged 262 veniremen of 1,146 so far rejected by the court.

The defence exhausted its remaining challenges Wednesday in the nearly three-week-old trial of eight men accused of robbing Brink's of $1,219,000.

Defence challenges wrecked court efforts to speed up trial. More than half of Suffolk county's venire list was used up during the steady fire of rejections.

Atomic Industry Starts in Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—The start of a new atomic industry for Canada was foreseen here today in an announcement that a private company will manufacture uranium fuel rods for experimental reactors at the Chalk River, Ont., atomic project.

Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., crown company which operates the atomic plant, said a contract for production of fuel rods has been awarded to AMF Atomics (Canada) Ltd., Canadian subsidiary of the American Machine and Foundry Company.

The announcement said the contract has been awarded "as part of AECL's policy of providing for the greatest possible participation of private industry in the Canadian atomic energy program."

AMF Atomics Ltd. has agreed to set up a plant at Port Hope, Ont., and sell the rods at cost to the crown company.

It is understood AMF Atomics felt that by offering to produce rods at cost it would be placing itself in a position to establish a Canadian industry which could later supply other purchasers in Canada and sell on world markets.

Value of the contract was not disclosed.

Fuel rods for research reactors are made by rolling uranium.

Midget Record

TORONTO (CP)—Jeff Engel, 15, broke the Canadian midget 220-yard dash record Tuesday, flashing over the distance in 23.2 seconds. His time was one-half second faster than the old record.

The youngster, at Varsity Stadium as track stars tuned up for Olympic trials to be held in Hamilton Friday and Saturday, bested the Dominion midget record of 23.7 seconds.

CCF Pinpoints Election Planks

VANCOUVER — An 11-point platform keyed to public ownership, including full public management of timberlands, was unveiled by CCF leader Robert M. Strachan Wednesday night.

The Opposition leader is scheduled to sketch his party's program when he appears on CBU-TV tonight at 7:30.

The CCF platform calls for public power, government assistance for low-income housing, public distribution of natural gas and public car insurance.

"The sales tax is not one of the major items" in the Sept. 19 election," Mr. Strachan said in an address at a Vancouver Burrard riding nomination convention, "because any political party must reduce the sales tax."

The Liberal party has announced one of its election planks is a promise to reduce to 4 per cent the province's 5 per cent sales tax.

Last night's convention nominated Pat Burns, 35-year-old news editor for radio station CKLG in North Vancouver, and Alex B. Macdonald, Vancouver barrister, as CCF candidates for the two-member riding of Vancouver-Burrard.

Mr. Macdonald is provincial president of the party and was once secretary for M. J. Coldwell, CCF national leader.

About 200 persons attended the convention.

Mr. Strachan, who this spring succeeded Arnold Webster of Vancouver as provincial leader, also said the CCF stands for equality for agriculture, fair dealing with labor, better provincial-municipal relations, preservation of the Fraser River for fishing, hospitals for the chronically ill, and a highway commission.

He said the five issues of the election are the CCF's opposition to Premier Bennett's "one-man rule," the "sharp political trickery" of the Social Credit government, "back-room" timber deals, the Social Credit government's attempts to give the province's power resources away to private interests, and the "poor-relation" treatment for agriculture.

Mr. Strachan restricted his criticism of other parties almost entirely to the Social Crediters.

"The Liberals are not an issue in this campaign, because they are no longer a party with a basic progressive policy," he said.

HIT 'CHIANG' PLANE, SAYS PEIPING

TOKYO (AP)—Red China said one of its planes damaged a "Chiang Kai-shek" aircraft early today over islands south of Shanghai—the area where a U.S. navy patrol plane with a crew of 16 was believed shot down.

In Washington the United States state department said it is asking Britain to find out whether Red China has any information on the fate of the missing U.S. plane.

Britain has diplomatic relations with Red China; the United States does not.

U.S. naval authorities in Hong Kong tonight broadcast urgent recall messages to all officers and men of four American destroyers in port. They were told to return immediately to their ships in connection with the missing plane.

A Peiping broadcast, without identifying the plane beyond the reference to the Chinese Nationalist leader, said it had intruded over Chinese islands and made off after the encounter toward the southeast—the direction of Formosa.

U.S. ships and planes were searching for the naval patrol plane, believed downed by Communist Chinese aircraft 32 miles off Wenchow, China. Nightfall came without any announced word of the results.

A last brief radio message from the plane, a four-engine Mercator, reported it was "under attack by aircraft" at 1:25 a.m. Wednesday.

Vice-Admiral Stuart Ingersoll, chief of the U.S. Formosa defence command, said the Mercator "is assumed to have been shot down by the attacking aircraft."

It was the first attack on an American plane in the Formosa area since Jan. 18, 1953. On that date a navy Neptune was downed by Red gunfire off Swatow and 17 men were lost.

The U.S. navy spokesman insisted that the Mercator was over neutral waters of the east China Sea at the time the attack was reported.

"It was then, operating 32 miles off Chinese Communist territory," he said, "160 miles north of Formosa."

His busy "yes," may reassure you... but are mere locks enough to safeguard your jewelry or valuable papers? Surely a better place for them is behind the steel-strong doors of a BANK OF MONTREAL vault! You can rent a Bank of Montreal Safety Deposit Box for less than two cents a day and know you have the utmost protection from fire or theft. Why not add this to your list of "things to do" today or tomorrow? See about this sure, low-cost protection well ahead of frenzied last minute packing.

Still A New Trick! Seems to us that our budgie is learning new tricks every day. He used to climb on top of his cage and, after setting all the bells inside a-singing and a-ringing, pick off the outside bell and throw it to the ground—for us to pick up. Now he picks the bell off, and rushes round the top of the cage pretending to throw it off. Round and round he goes with all of us laughing at him, then finally—wham! and down it comes! It's BROCK'S NATURAL FEEDING DIET that's keeping him so happy and healthy—he's no trouble to us at all! Just fun!
